Edberg girl wins $50,000 for novel

An Edberg girl, Aritha van Herk, is the winner of a $50,000 prize awarded last Thursday for her first novel, Judith. She received the award in Montreal from Jack McClelland, of the Canadian publishing firm of McClelland and Stewart, which expects to publish Miss van Herk's book out in Octo'er.

A native of Wetaskiwin, Ms van Herk moved to Edberg when her parents, Mr and Mrs. William van Herk moved there, after emigrating from Holland in 1949. She took all her schooling in Edberg, graduating at 17, then moved on to the University of Alberta, where she will graduate this Spring with a master's degree in English.

Ms. van Herk maintains she wants to live in the West, and hopes to continue her writing and studying in this area and atmosphere.

She paid high tribute to Rudy Wiebe, who has taught her in the field of writing over the past five years, and who has made her work exceptionally hard at the craft Mr Wiebe is well known in this region from his Round Hill connections, and gained a good deal of fame last year over his original stage play "Far as The Eye Can See" which tells the Dodds-Ryley coal project.

Now 23, Ms. van Herk wrote much of her prize-winning novel last summer while working in a bush camp in the Yukon. She is now working on a second novel, which she contends will be better than her first, and intends to devote full time to her writing career.

While Ms van Herk is sure her second effort will be better than her first, Publisher Jack McClelland praised Judith warmly, saying it is extremely rare for a novel as professional and as finished as this one to come out of a young novelist.

Judith started off in the first place as simply a short story, but Mr Wiebe told her it had the potential for a full novel. Reassured, she spent two years developing the story, which is based in both rural and urban Alberta.

Her husband, Robert Sharp, is a geologist.

Canadian comment

In this case, Hamilton pointed out that every passenger on Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines is insured for $75,000 as part of the price of the ticket, but because of federal rules, hardly any policy benefits get paid. To collect, the relatives of any fatality victim have to prove who was at fault in the accident, then the insurance company pays, and collects from the liable party.

The obvious intent of the act as passed in Parliament was to protect the relatives of those travelling on Canadian airlines, but when court costs and accident investigation can run to hundreds of thousands of dollars, few of those mandatory policies can be changed.

Hamilton had another example of bureaucratic perversion of legislative intent. Somebody in the civil service decided, on examining the baby bonus laws, that any child who had lost both mother and father must surely have an estate and consequently wouldn't need the $20 a month family allowance. That means that orphans in Canada can't collect the baby bonus.

What total nonsense.

Two things are needed to correct the morass of regulations drafted by bureaucrats and often never seen by Parliament. We need a freedom of information law with teeth, and we need the authority of Parliament to recall any piece of legislation volved with a fine eye.

There's no denying that bureaucrats in the main are well-intentioned servants of the public, but they have a tendency to get carried away with detail when it comes to creating rules. That's because everything to do with federal laws must be done according to the book.

There has to be some way to reduce the number of government regulations, though, and to put some common sense into the ones which remain. Government, Parliament and the bureaucracy are after all servants of the people, not vice versa.

Hall Board reviews rental rates

At the last meeting of the Tofield Community Hall Board, it was decided that the hall's rates are out-of-date

In order to make the Community Hall rates reasonable but still profitable, the current rates are under review and will be undergoing changes.

It is hoped that with the new rates, the Hall will be used more often during the week, as well as on the weekends

The new rental contract and rates will be drawn up in the near future and the community will be informed of them.

Since the theatre has become more profitable in the past few months, it was decided that it would extend it's season through June instead of ending in May as it has in previous years.

It is hoped that the community will support the theatre since there will be some excellent movies, such as "Star Wars" and "Oh God" being shown this spring.

The Hall Board has also discussed running the theatre during the summer months, but this will all depend on the theatre's attendance during May and June.

If there are any people interested in helping to take tickets or sell popcorn on above nights, please contact Stan Schacher. Any help will be greatly appreciated.

Ryley plans graduation

Plans are being finalized for graduation ceremonies at Ryley High School.

This year's graduation will be held on Saturday, May 13, with twenty-three graduates receiving diplomas.

The graduation has been returned to the spring season after being held in the fall in recent years. Elimination of many of the problems encountered in holding a spring prom and a fall graduation are expected to be eliminated with the change.

Graduation ceremonies will begin with a banquet in the Community Centre for invited guests while graduation exercises will be held in the school gym and will be followed by a dance

Members of the graduating class include Gerry Anderson, Nadine Beattie, Rodney Hayduk, Dennis Holowaychuk, Morley Kozak, Rose Lehman, Cheryl Lyons, Philip Manderson, Cynthia Mills,

Ryley Junior Sports forms an association

At a meeting on Monday night, a great deal of support was shown for Ryley Junior Sports Association by parents and other interested people.

A Board of Directors consisting of Cynthia Clarke, Oliver Lehman, Val Shipka, Keith Murray, Eveline Baker, Janet Wiemer, Mildred Kobuz, George Bekker and Marlene Podolsky was chosen.

A committee was formed to do an inventory of equipment and uniforms and to decide on new purchases of these items.

A number of items were discussed, among them the use of buses to out of town games, age categories for boys and girls teams, coaches managers and registrations

It was decided that two nights for registrations would be set, Friday, April 28, 7-9 p.m., Mon., May 1st - 7-9 p.m. in the school Library.

It must be stressed that players must register on either of these two nights as there will be no other opportunity to register

There will be ball teams for younger children, 6 years and under as well as 10 and under, 12 and under 14 and under, 16 and under girls 17 and over girls, and 18 and over boys

Boys wishing to play in the 15 and over category (Juvenile) will be required to leave their names only, until it can be determined if there will be teams in that age category in the other town in the league

Coaches and managers were determined for all expected teams and practices will get underway as soon as registrations are finalized.

Plans are underway for big Ryley Fair

Preparations are now underway for the annual summer fair sponsored by the Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society.

The fair is scheduled for Wednesday, August 16 at the Ryley Community Hall and surrounding grounds. In order to accomodate as many people as possible, some changes are being made this year

It has been decided to have the fair exhibits and contests scheduled for late afternoon and evening, so those working during the day can also participate

As in earlier fairs, residents of the area will have the opportunity of exhibiting things in many classes included are baking, sewing, produce and handicraft classes and a crop show.

Following up on a suggestion made last year, separate classes for senior citizens are also included

Junior classes have been expanded to include penmanship and art work for kindergarten through grade 6.

Regular features such as races, children's pet show and scavenger hunt will also take place, as well as a few new contests designed for fun

It is planned that a gymkhana will also be held during the early part of the afternoon, featuring local riders.

The fair booklets are in the process of being assembled and printed. Be sure to watch for one in your mailbox and be prepared to help participate and make it the best fair ever 19 for liquor?

Only a few of the bills proposed for this session of the Alberta Legislature have come our way so far, although provision is being made for more than two hundred to surface during the session.

However, one of this small group which we find particularly interesting is that of a back bench member of the government, Mr. Thompson, who, in Bill 211, is proposing that the legal age for the use of liquor shall be raised from eighteen years to nineteen. For all other purposes, at least under his proposed Bill, the age of majority would continue to be 18.

We find it rather interesting that the Bill is coming from one of the backbench members, indicating the government is willing to let it come to the Assembly and test the wind on it, but apparently not willing to give it official government support.

According to report, there is rather sharp cleavage of opinion on the question, depending on residence of the member. Large numbers of the rural MLA's face strong arguments urging them to raise the age, to 19 at the very least, while urban voters seem not to be bothered by the issue nearly so much.

Whether it's because rural voters live in smaller, more closely knit communities, tend to see the problem more and recognize it as such, while areas of activity in the larger centres tend to be more separated so that older people aren't as aware of younger ones, is hard to say. Whatever the reason, the difference exists, based on quite sharp lines.

For our own part, we hope Mr. Thompson will gain widespread support, and that the measure will pass. It won't in itself clean up all the problems associated with liquor, nor will it eliminate drinking by young people. The age of 21 didn't eliminate teen-age consumption of alcohol and it's a cinch that 19 won't either.

But at least it would make it illegal, for all practical purposes, on school premises, and that in itself would be a significant, and worthwhile step forward.

Bodes ill for Trudeau

While Premier Alex Campbell went back as leader of Prince Edward Island's government Monday, it can really be said the election constituted a major defeat for him, as he lost eight of the Liberal seats he held before dissolution. In point of fact, he dropped from a Legislature where he held 25 seats to the Conservatives' eight, to an almost balanced situation of 17 to 15.

The news can hardly be considered encouraging for Prime Minister Trudeau, and may well support him in his apparent decision to hold off. It's still possible, of course, be may call a general election in time for June 26, or the occasionally mentioned July 3 (after the glitter and blaze of Canada Day celebrations) but this tends to look less and less likely.

Members of Parliament had better climb down from the hustings and get back to work in Ottawa That's where the action is going to be for some time yet

CUTS COMING

To the Citizens of Holden and district;

How many people in the Holden area are aware of the contemplated cuts in the courses to be offered in the Holden High School for the fall term?

One such cut will be that of our second language, French. I am sure that some area residents will make such asinine statements as, "about time" and "who needs it", etc. But there will be others who, like myself, find this to be most alarming.

Does the Board of Education of the County of Beaver have the right to deprive our children of the right to learn their country's second language, and of being a part of helping to reunite the two official cultures, thus giving them the opportunities offered to children in the rest of Canada?

Of course, if one wishes to spend his entire life in the Holden area, English will suffice. But we are suffering from tunnel vision if we only think in terms of Holden, rather than enlarging our vision, because there is a large area outside of Holden where French is required as a part of life.

The Board of Education states that the cost of offering the course outweigh the demand for a second language. But do they, when you consider the consequences of small people thinking in a small way. . . another [illegible]

If you feel as I do that French should continue to be offered in Holden School get on the phone and call your elected representative to the County Board of Education and let your views be known.

"DISCRIMINATION"
April 17, 1978

To the Editor:

As a farm woman, I feel strongly that my concerns and the concerns of other rural women are not seen as priorities by the people who make policy

I would like to know, for instance, why we can't get operating loans to farm on our land.

Why isn't day care available to us? People in the cities may have trouble finding good day care, but for us, it's nonexistent . . . even though our taxes support it

We pay taxes for other social, educational and recreational facilities, too — stadiums, sports rinks, libraries, colleges and technical schools. But how many are located close enough for us to use them?

The same goes for such services as alcoholism and marital counselling.

These are priorities to me, and I want to see them taken seriously

That's why I've joined the Alberta Status of Women Action Committee. Members of ASWAC are working to give us women more say about what happens to us and our families They need help and support from all of us.

If you want to find out more about ASWAC and how to join it, write to me at P.O. Box 33, Minburn, Alta. T0B 3B0.

Sincerely yours,
Joanne Johnson.

Dear Sir:

Referring to "Continuing Saga", it is interesting to see that the Alberta Teachers' Association does not wish to be remote. At its annual convention held March 27 - 30, teacher delegates changed one of their by-laws to "provide easier access to non-ATA members for the lodging of written complaints against teachers" (Pearl Muir, ATA News, April 10, 1978).

Perhaps the referred to community is not the only community that is having difficulty reaching its administrators. Perhaps this community is not the only community that has local problem solvers in name only!

Sincerely,
A Ryley Bystander

ANNIVERSARY

Dear Editor,

The City of Lloydminster is celebrating its 75th anniversary of the arrival of the Barr Colonists who settled in our area.

To commemorate this historic event, July 23 to 29th, 1978 has been set aside as "Homecoming Week" in the City. Many activities for each day during the week have been planned as well as a visit from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Through your paper, we would like to invite former residents and visitors home July 23 to 29th and help us celebrate during their special year. Details of the weeks activities can be obtained by writing the Chamber of commerce, 4919-50 Ave., Lloydminster, Sask. / Alta., S9V 0P7.

The Editor
Dear Sir;

During 1978, the town of Fairview in the Peace River district will be celebrating its Golden Jubilee - - the 50th anniversary of the founding of the town with the arrival of the railroad in 1928

We will be celebrating our Jubilee during the week of August 7th to the 13th with a great variety of activities, social, cultural and sports events.

Although we have sent out nearly two thousand invitations to former residents, we know it is not possible to reach everyone who has lived in Fairview that way.

We hope that through your paper we may reach some of our former neighbors who have not yet heard of the Jubilee and extend an invitation to them to come home for the festivities.

Your truly,
Fairview Golden Jubilee Committee

HASTE MAKES WASTE

PRACTICE GOOD DRIVING HABITS AND SAVE FUEL

Gasoline efficiency can be increased up to 40 percent by improving driving techniques on typical stop-and-go routes. Here are some fuel-saving ideas:

Don't rev your engine. Accelerate smoothly.

Anticipate stops and slow gradually.

Moderate, steady speeds increase gas mileage.

Move with traffic flow. Don't change lanes constantly.

Reduce engine warm-up. Idle more-warming cars drive slowly for the first few minutes.

Idling a minute wastes more gas than restarting most cars.

Riding the brake as you drive wastes gas and wears out brakes.

Racing the engine before turning off the key is bad for the engine and mileage.

Carrying extra weight uses more gasoline. Check your trunk.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — In the course of covering federal politics you develop eye strain from tussling your way through the reams of paper which are required reading, but occasionally there's a political book produced which is a joy to read.

I found that to be the case with "The Dangerous Delusion," a book backgrounding Quebec's possible independence, written by former National Capital Commission Chairman Doug Fullerton.

Around the capital, Doug has been known as basically Liberal in his politics, and he's spent his career - or most of it - working for either the federal or Quebec governments. Finance is his bag, making one hell of a lot of noise has been his secret for getting things done

Fullerton has been very close to Rene Levesque and many of his cabinet ministers over the years, and he has packed his book with anecdotes allowing readers to assess the characters of these men who are so potentially destructive for Canada

There's a lot of plain Fullerton in the book which doesn't bear in a major way on the independence for Quebec issue, but it's written in readable style and openly leaving at least the impression that the author doesn't mind you making judgements about his character, either

Fullerton's conclusions on the separatist issue are obvious from the title - it won't work, but in the process of making his arguments, he exposes the truth-stretching political techniques of both Levesque and Trudeau. It's a book which should be read not only to gain insight into the Quebec issue, but to prepare yourself for the federal election vote which is coming soon.

Just as Rene Levesque plays with figures to make a weak case, so too do the members of the federal cabinet, the prime minister in particular. Fullerton also goes into some philosophical detail about Pierre Trudeau's value systems and warns people convincingly about the centralism, structuralist, methods which have been employed in Ottawa for far too long.

I hope his book is well read in Quebec, but I'm afraid it won't be. I hope those in English-speaking Canada who read it pass it on to a friend and convince others to read it. "Dangerous Delusion" was published earlier this year by McClelland and Stewart ($14.95).

Bashaw Angus show may go international

This year's Canadian National Junior Angus Heifer Show will have truly national scope, say committee members, and it may even become international. At least one lease-load of cattle is committed from Ontario, and ontrios may reach across the border into the United States, where entries from the State of Washington are being indicated.

The Bashaw Agriculture Society has announced the appointment of Fred Noad of Freeway Angus, Alix, as placement judge for the Canadian National Junior Angus Heifer Show in addition to Mr Noad, the showmanship judge will be Dennis Ericson of Getaleau Farms, Wetaskiwin. Both judges bring many years of showing and judging experience to the National show to be held at Bashaw, Alberta on July 21 and 22.

Prize money this year will again be appropriate for a major show. Entries are expected to reach as high as the two hundred mark with many of last year's yearlings being returned as Futurity hopefuls with calves at side. In addition to the showing of cattle, various demonstrations will be conducted by noted cattlemen and fitters, as well as a Junior Angus club agenda of meetings and social functions to be announced at a later date.

Visit Brownrey, the noted cattle and horse photographer, will be in attendance for photos of both champions and for private photos of individual calves as requested.

Bruce news

by Bea Fredericks

The Bruce Fire Department responded to two calls on Saturday. Both were grass fires which were quickly extinguished - one at the Ralston farm just northeast of Bruce and the other at the cemetery. Each year there are fires at the cemetery and local residents feel that they are started by trains. However, the CNR doesn't go along with that theory.

Bouquet of the week goes to the energetic ladies who did a super cleaning job at the Recreation Centre.

Judy Kalita recently returned from a trip to Quebec and other eastern points where she visited with relatives and [illegible].

On Sunday at 9 a.m., the Holden United Church will hold its monthly Family Sunday. There will be special music and coffee will be served following the service.

[illegible] Constituency Convenor

The Wainwright Constituency Convenor of District 2, chaired the conference Mrs. T.S. Kozdrowski, Director of District 2, and Mrs. G.C. Hatherfield, Second Vice-President of Alberta Women's Institute, were the guest speakers. The Irma and Rosewillow branches supplied the entertainment - a humorous skit about ladies wearing apparel and a singsong. Mrs W. Parsons was the [illegible].

The Bruce, Shady Cove and Rosegarland branches hosted a cold luncheon complete with a salad bar and punch. There was also an impressive display of baking and handicrafts entered by the various branches. The exhibits were judged by the District Home Economist and were given points. Four branches had equal points in the baking competition. They were Kinsella, Shady Cove, Rosewillow and Strawberry Plains. The handicraft competition resulted in a three-way tie with Shady Cove, Irma and Kinsella sharing the honors. In the over 70 class, Shady Cove and Rosegarland emerged with top points.

A very informative, satisfying and pleasant day was enjoyed by the 82 ladies who attended. Sonja Babbitz won the door prize and two local ladies had such an interesting day they decided to join the Bruce Women's Institute. Previous to this the Bruce Branch had only six members.

Confronting Your Faith

With Rev. Carl E. Hansen of the Salem Mennonite Church

Some of you have been watching the T.V. series on "The Holocaust. Out of all the horrors of World War II and the Nazi experience in Germany, one small good thing emerged as a blessing to Christianity was the life and witness of Pastor Dietrich Bonhoeffer. At a point most of the war period in a Nazi concentration camp and was executed there, a martyr for his faith a few days before his camp was liberated.

I have been very deeply impressed by his life and prolific writings. In his darkest hours surrounded by his fellow prisoners going mad with suffering and despair Bonhoeffer remained calm and reassuring a pillar of hope in the midst of torture, cruelty, hatred, and war with its indescribable horrors ministering to the needs of his fellow prisoners One wonders What superhuman strength lay inside that man to make him big enough to serve others while his own life was surely being cut off? He gives us the answer in his little book, "Life Together" written before his arrest

In his first chapter on "Community" he points out that a Christian must relate to others only through Jesus Christ. He points out the difference between the human community where people relate to each other directly and the community of the Spirit where Christians relate to others through the mediation of Jesus Christ.

This is a very important and relevant message for our day and age. It raises the question of how Bonhoeffer would stand up and help others in the midst of the many challenges we face today.

Bonhoeffer was a man who had a deep personal relationship with Jesus Christ. He was a man of prayer and meditation on the Word of God. He was a man who lived out his faith in the midst of a hostile world. He was a man who was willing to suffer for his faith.

Bonhoeffer was a man who was willing to suffer for his faith. He was a man who was willing to suffer for his faith

Bruce correspondent enjoys first festival

by Bea Fredericks

This weekend I attended my first Beaver Regional Arts Festival.

Since this year it was held in the Bruce Community Centre, I could find no excuse not to walk the two blocks to find out what was going on. Now I know what I've been missing, and you can bet your last dollar that I will be attending again next year.

I will not attempt to give you a list of prize winners for the Recreation Director will do that much more accurately than I could, but I would like to share with you some of my impressions.

The Bruce Community Centre was certainly ideal for the event and I overheard many compliments on the arrangement. The senior citizens very capably served snacks and coffee in their drop-in centre which made it convenient to relax and visit without leaving the building. Although attendance was poor on Friday evening and Saturday morning, Saturday and Sunday afternoons proved to be much busier. I was still, nevertheless, a bit disappointed that more people didn't take the time to visit the Sunday afternoon program.

Although I am told the exhibits were not as plentiful as last year, except in the creative writing, they were still varied and interesting. It's unfortunate to see all that hidden talent assembled.

I liked the ceramic frog with eyelashes, the chicken spurs made into a miniature hors arrangement and the painting of the crocuses, to mention a few. I was disappointed that the creative writing wasn't judged - at least there was no indication that it had been.

Actually the Bruce-ites did quite well in the handicrafts and I noted several firsts. Ken Stambaugh's sailing ship entered in the string art was attractive and rated a red ribbon as did Annie Koppel's quilt, Anne Meiknski's sketch, Art Minchau's belt buckle entered under lapidary and Roxane Meiknski's drawings. Other prize winners from Bruce were Mildred Maljevany, Kim Maljevany, Trudy Erickson, Tracy Dewart, Kevin Dewart, Darry Babbitz, Norma Babbitz, Betty Laing and Tabatha Chrystian.

The concert of finalists on Sunday afternoon was well arranged and just the right length.

Walter Kasse, Deputy Minister of Alberta Culture, was on hand to present participants with their red ribbons. His interest in each performer and his appropriate remarks added zest to the program.

Although all numbers were extremely well done, I would like to give special mention to a few. First of all I would commend the Community Choir under the direction of Elaine Dawson. Their obvious enjoyment as they presented "All in the April's Evening" and "This Land is Your Land" made me wish that I had been blessed with a singing voice.

In my opinion, Earl Davis's presentation of his own poem "The Arrangement" also deserved compliments. (I noticed that he had also entered a short story in the creative writing competition).

While I am handing out bouquets, I would present one also to the Vegreville Ukrainian School of Dancing. Their four numbers were very well received and I felt that the Sword Dance was exceptionally well executed. Last of all, a special word of praise to Lorna Grande for her piano solo "The Robin's Return".

On the whole, the weekend was a success and the organizers deserve our applause!

Volunteerism, A Dying Art? I DISAGREE!

Last week I wrote about volunteerism and questioned whether or not it was dying in our community. I believe it's not dying. This past weekend I attended the annual Arts and Music Festival held in Bruce.

It seemed everything that [illegible] through volunteer labour. Lunch and coffee was served by the Bruce Senior Citizens, this service was open with the doors everyday. Each member of the Beaver Regional Arts Society were busy overseeing displays, taking tickets and generally making sure everything ran smoothly. And what about the residents of Bruce who were hostessing, arranging chairs - they weren't paid. Also, I'm sure there were many volunteers doing jobs I didn't even see.

Volunteerism was not dying in the little Village of Bruce last weekend during the annual County Arts, Crafts and Music Festival.

Last night I attended another function where the volunteer is not dying. No, he is thriving but needed a little encouraging [illegible]

Last week, the Ryley Junior Sports League was in trouble with little parent support. An article was written in the paper and word of mouth carried the message the organizer's needed. Last night about 50 parents showed up to support Ryley Junior Sport. It was decided a board of directors were needed - eight people volunteered. When the previous director asked for coaches, comments such as the following occurred, "I'll take the 10 and under girls" or "I'll help John with the boys". Isn't that great? If the parents weren't volunteering to coach or manage, most said they would help out driving or anyway they could.

So [illegible] is neither dead or dying. It is alive, and well, and hiding in your community. Take the time to find it-it's well worth the effort.

Ryley School playground to undergo changes

This summer will see some dramatic changes in the Ryley School playground.

The United Church men's group in Ryley under the leadership of Randy Neal and George Baker, have been successful in obtaining a grant from the Young Canada Works program for $7,840.00 to build an adventure playground for Ryley School.

The County of Beaver and the Regional Recreation Dept. are each providing $4,500.00 for capital expenditures. The master plan for the playground was developed by the principal of Ryley School, Jim Clarke and vice-principal, Tom Kendal.

A number of students will be hired this summer for a 9-week period and a project manager will be required for 11 weeks, beginning June 19.

The pay is expected to be $130.00 weekly and any interested students are asked to contact the Job Creation Branch of Canada Manpower in Edmonton. Preference will be given to students requiring money for educational purposes.

Calvin United Church men will administer the Young Canada Works grant on this project which will provide an exciting year-round playground facilities and a picnic area for Ryley residents.

As I see it

by Dr. Walt Buck, MLA Vegreville

Last Thursday in the Legislature, Opposition Leader Bob Clark introduced a resolution before the House dealing specifically with quotas being imposed on a number of faculties at universities in Alberta.

The imposition of non-essential quotas on professional faculties is a threat to Alberta society. Alberta businessmen are required to import graduates from other provinces and in some cases, other countries, particularly in the field of engineering. While the government, on many occasions, has voiced its intention to strengthen the agricultural sector of our economy, it is now sitting back and doing nothing about ensuring the removal of the quota from the faculty of Agriculture and Forestry at the University of Alberta. Because of these quotas, qualified and ambitious young Albertans are compelled to go elsewhere to get the education they need and want, or to settle for second choice in their career selection.

In his speech, Mr. Clark urged immediate establishment of a university-government body to examine the disorganized and inequitable matter of professional education in Alberta, and to recommend solutions to the Legislature within six months. If such a committee is not set up, the Official Opposition, at the fall session, will demand that a select committee of the Legislature be established to carry out a desperately needed examination.

To ensure that our young people are not deprived of opportunities for adequate education in their choice of vocation, and to ensure the economic welfare of our province, now and in the future, we cannot do less than thoroughly examine this issue and recommend solutions.

If you have concerns or suggestions, please phone my offices in Fort Saskatchewan at 998-5376, or in Edmonton at 471-4881.

Students will help

The social studies ten class in Tofield School are prepared to go beyond talking about what is needed to beautify Tofield.

The class is prepared to go to work.

First of all, they want to do something about the general appearance of the business community.

The class has offered to provide the labour if the businesses would supply the paint, and they would paint store fronts in the business community.

Store front awnings, which may be used to provide shade in the summer and which can be rolled up in winter, would be installed by students.

Any business interested in having the students do some painting or install awnings, should either contact the school, or get in direct touch with Debbie Delisle, Jim Blakey, Irene Culp, or Carol Hinse.

Volunteer is needed

by Grace Phillips

The Saturday Story Hour at the Tofield Library needs a volunteer for the third Saturday of each month from 1-2 p.m. says Mrs. Dorothea Prestbury, librarian.

Mrs. Judy Hastings has been using puppets to illustrate her stories on the first Saturday of each month. Mrs. Carol Rurka will be beginning as Story Lady for the second Saturday in May; Mrs. Grace Phillips has a flannel-graph to illustrate stories on the fourth Saturday. The occasional fifth Saturday will be taken by Mrs. Helen Tomlinson.

Mrs. Prestbury would be happy to hear from anyone who will volunteer to read stories to pre-school and primary child on the third Saturday from 1-2 p.m. Mrs. Prestbury's phone is 662-3474. Library hours for the public are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday. The Story Hour precedes regular library hours on Saturday.

ALBERTA FARMERS SEEDING INTENTIONS

The number of acres Alberta Farmers intend to seed to rapeseed this spring is expected to reach an all-time high of 2.3 million acres.

According to Fred Boyce, statistician with Alberta Agriculture, the March 15 survey of planting intentions, conducted by Statistics Canada, shows that this year's rapeseed acreage is expected to increase by 550,000 acres or nearly 65 per cent above that of last year.

Mr Boyce reports that the total wheat acreage is expected to be similar to that of last year, which was 4.8 million acres. The acreage devoted to durum is expected to increase to 420,000 from 350,000 acres, while acreage seeded to spring wheat is expected to drop slightly.

Barley and flax acreages are predicted to be down from last year. The total barley acreage is expected to decline to 5.6 million acres from 5.9 million acres in 1977, representing a drop of 4 per cent. The flax acreage is expected to decrease to 50,000 acres from 130,000 in 1977. If this expectation materializes, the flax acreage in Alberta will be the lowest it has been since 1938.

Planting intentions for oats show no change in acreage from last year's 2 million acres.

Alberta's summerfallow acreage is expected to decrease by 500,000 acres this year, which means it will drop to 6.6 million acres from 7.1 million acres in 1977.

Survey correspondents report little or no change in the intended acreage of most other crops.

Mr Boyce emphasizes that since the above figures represent farmers' seeding intentions as of March 15, the actual seeded acreage could vary substantially for a variety of reasons. These include such things as market prices, weather and even this report itself.

The national intentions to plant are as follows:

	Thousand Acres
	1978	1977	%
All Wheat	25,535	25,992	102
Oats	5,982	6,018	94

Rye	609	594	108
Flaxseed	1,052	1,439	74
Rapeseed	5,469	3,330	165
Sum. fallow	20,800	27,300	95
Potatoes	261	275	95
Corn	1,755	1,801	97

Comm. groups meet Rec. Board

Three community association groups attended the March meeting of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board.

The groups had been invited to attend the meeting to outline their participation in the Five-Year Plan and were told about grant monies that were available for projects.

Jim Sangbeil, regional recreation consultant, outlined the agenda for a regional workshop and introduced Judy Underschultz, who would be attending the workshop.

The reports of George Baker and Colleen Walker of the Regional Recreation Department were accepted as presented.

Minutes of meetings held on February 22 and 28 were adopted.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a meeting held on March 29, with Andy Heiberg in the chair.

Future bride feted at shower

by Grace Phillips

Miss Susan Sarken, whose marriage to David Francis will be solemnized on May 6 was honored with a pre-nuptial shower last Friday evening. With Leona Voltner as committee chairman, members of the CWL of St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church were hostesses in the social room of their church.

Jeanne Rude representing the women of the Battle Lutheran Church was in charge of the entertainment.

The bride-to-be, her mother, Mrs. Millie Sarken, her sister Sandra, and Mrs. Iris Francis were seated at the appropriately decorated head table after being welcomed by Leona Voltner who assisted by Dorothy Shewchuk and Mavis Jacobsen presented corsages to Susan, Mrs. Sarken, and Mrs. Francis.

Mrs. Norma Anderson read a poem for the bride which gave a portrait of a good wife. An amusing mock wedding was presented by a group of Lutheran ladies consisting of Jeanne Rude, Pat Letwin, Thaina Erickson, Diane Rude, Cathy Mosby, Gail Fosbrug and Eleanor Jacobsen with Mrs. Severson reading the commentary.

On behalf of the guests, Dorothy Shewchuk and Terry Kallal presented the guest of honor with a large number of both practical and decorative gifts. Susan was assisted in opening and recording her gifts by her sister Sandra and by Cathy Jones. After the gifts had been admired by the guests, Susan thanked all who had organized and attended the shower and those who had provided the entertainment. She said she and David will be making their home in Tofield and would welcome guests.

The lunch, provided by both church groups, was enjoyed.

Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Sarken, and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Francis, all of Tofield.

Harry Tkaczyk was fined $56 for shipping furs out of the province without paying Excise Tax.

Wayne B. Rarka was fined $30 each on two counts of speeding and an additional $25 for failing to appear in court.

Palmer-Earling

The Don Campbells who recently returned from Victoria, B.C., and Vancouver were also visitors at the homes of her brothers, Irving and Wilfred Rivveld, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Bray, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swanson at Victoria.

LAURA CHRISTIANSON PASSES

Mrs. Laura Christianson, 94, passed away on April 15th at Bethany Nursing Home in Camrose where she had resided the past eleven years. Prior to that she lived on their farm very near Holden, where she had many friends. She was born on Jan. 13, 1884, in Milbank, S. Dakota.

She leaves to mourn her passing four sons, Wilfred of Kelowna, B.C., Ross of Armstrong, B.C., Donald of Edmonton, and Jim of Camrose; ten grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren; one brother and one sister at Milbank, S. IF YOU DON'T HAVE 10 INCHES* OF INSULATION IN YOUR ATTIC, YOU'RE LOSING HEAT AND WASTING MONEY.

If your home is like 90% of Canadian homes, it's not properly insulated. This chart gives you an idea of how much you could save by bringing your home from the average level of insulation up to today's recommended standards. Of course, as energy costs go up, so will these savings.

	Oil Heat	Gas Heat	Electric Heat
ST. JOHN'S	$209	N/A	$386
FREDERICTON	$204	N/A	$215
MONTREAL	$195	$176	$202
TORONTO	$139	$115	$242
WINNIPEG	$237	$162	$330
REGINA	N/A	$130	$360
EDMONTON	$226	$140	N/A
VANCOUVER	$130	$130	$199

These savings are based on a typical 2-storey pre-war home of 1,100 square feet.
*based on insulation material with R 3 value per inch (2.54 cm.)

NOW HOMES BUILT BEFORE 1946 ARE ELIGIBLE FOR A HOME INSULATION GRANT OF UP TO $360.

If your home was built before 1946, is your principal residence, and is three storeys or less, you're eligible for a taxable grant of ⅓ of the cost of your insulation materials, up to a maximum of $360 (retroactive to materials purchased on or after September 1, 1977).

Minister Study Centre works with Athabasca

The 6th of July, 1978 will mark the beginning of the Fifth year of cooperation between the Minister Hills Field Study Centre and Athabasca University.

In the summer of 1974, two students of Athabasca's World Ecology course attended the Minister Hills Field Study Centre near Tofield, as part of an optional project.

In the next three years, 39 other students have participated in what is now known as the Field Ecology Workshop.

From this cooperation, Athabasca University has been able to offer its students field and laboratory services that it could not otherwise afford, and the Field Centre has been able to keep itself viable a difficult task for an organization that wishes to provide a unique service to the students of Alberta.

Though there are a number of field biology centres in Britain, where children and adults come to learn about nature, the Minister Hills Centre is, as far as is known, the only one of its kind in Canada.

The Minister Hills Field Study Centre is owned and operated by Dr. Lois Fenna.

Dr Fenna started it because she loves nature and because she firmly believes that all young and not so young, should learn to know nature, and thereby love and respect it.

Though the Centre is supposed to be a nonprofit venture, it would be impossible if Dr. Fenna is running it at a financial loss.

Her husband, Dr. Don Fenna, and their three sons, have given her their fullest support in running the Centre.

In the past, Athabasca University students have come to the Minisith Hills from such places as Edmonton, Calgary, Athabasca, Grande Prairie, Valleyview, Swan Hills, Vegreville, Eldorado (Saskatchewan), Fort Smith (Nothwest Territories), and Crystal Lake (Illinois).

Inquiries have been received as far away as Vancouver Island.

On Saturday the 8th of July, Athabasca University, in cooperation with Dr. Lois Fenna, will begin the Field Ecology Workshops for 1978

You are hereby invited to join in studying the various organisms that live in the ponds, fields, and forests of the Minisith Hills.

Tofield 4-H has car wash

by Carol Brom

During the April meeting of the Tofield 4-H Beef Club, we discussed the car wash and decided that it would be held on April 29, from 10 to 4:30 at the arena, and that pie and coffee would be available.

The 4-H'ers are going to be involved in another highway clean-up this year on May 6. Members are reminded that we will gather at Charles Place at 9:00 a.m. prior to this.

Various fun activities were discussed and we decided that we would be going bowling in Sherwood Park on April 23.

Some of the members attended the county 4-H family dance and bus social which was held in Bruce on April 14.

Application forms were available at the meeting on a 4-H pleasure riding project and two families have taken advantage of this interesting opportunity so far.

The meeting was rounded off with a marshmallow "nonsense impromptu"

Holden 4-H plans clean-up

by Brian Hejnar

On April 20th, the Holden 4-H Beef Club held its regular meeting.

Preceeding the meeting an interesting and authoritive talk was given by a member of the RCMP Detachment of Tofield. In the talk, regulations such as the stray animal act and Livestock Branch Inspection Act were discussed.

The meeting was called to order by club president Karen Schmidt, roll call was taken by each member given the name of his or her self.

A motion was passed to have a highway clean-up on May 6th, along Holden's Highway 14.

The following day, May 7th, a field day is planned and is being held at the farm of Mr and Mrs Lawrence Hurum

The next regular meeting will be held May 18

Silent sentries guard crops

Dr. Harold Specht uses ultra violet rays at night to lure moths and flying insects into special traps. Farmers fields fit monitoring the traps on a regular basis, he can spot increases in populations of harmful insects and recommend spraying or other control methods.

THE OPULENT SOCIETY

That postal problem

We found a new light on the cause of some of the problems in the delivery of mail the other day, and found it most illuminating.

Not too strong a supporter of unions, our informant nevertheless felt the public and the Post Office was entitled to a fair and representative picture of some of the problems, and indicated that the impossibility of dealing with government bureaux makes up at least a part of the problem. And this, of course, is one of the reasons behind the repeated urging of the postal workers to become part of a crown corporation, so they would be dealing with just one body, not a variety of them.

But going back . . . much of the trouble with erratic delivery, late delivery and non delivery of mail stems from the government's policy of an absolute freeze on hirings, said our informant. Not only is expansion of the labor force ruled out, but jobs are simply not filled when workers leave the service. In other words, the job is cancelled.

In essence, that means that fewer and fewer postal workers are available in the cities of Edmonton or Calgary, for instance, both of which sort huge volumes of mail, both coming and going, and which affect all other parts of the country. The same is true everywhere else, apparently, and obviously the service must deteriorate.

Retrenching is one thing, but surely this is carrying the economy bit past the level of extreme, to the point of being absurd. Would they, to prove a point, allow every worker in even as small a centre as Camrose to drop from the work force, without replacement?

Can they not modify the policy to meet situations of growth in burgeoning communities? The Post Office in recent years has established some pretty demanding workload standards, and if these are being exceeded because of increased volumes, it shouldn't be too hard to make the case for additional workers.

Mismanagement under the Trudeau government has seen once high postal standards fall in nearly every direction. Delivery of business mail is so uncertain that important "mail" is now carried more often than not by special courier. Household delivery is being cut back, in relative terms, with the expansion of cities to new areas, which are served only by district lock boxes. Which means that instead of going forward, we're going backward to the days of the Post Office box . . . only now the box is a good deal closer than it used to be.

Unhappily, most of the criticism so far has centered on the various postal workers, on their threatened strikes and their unreasonable demands. And probably much of this criticism has been reasonably Buty at the same time, when the government is itself a good deal of the problem, this shouldn't go overlooked, nor uncriticized. The people have a right to expect their government can devise programs which are flexible enough to meet situations as they arise, and still maintain what have come to be looked on as essential services.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — The country could be heading for one of the closest federal elections in history — even as close as the near deadlock in 1972. Strangely enough, the leadership of both the Liberals and the Tories is part of the reason things are so uncertain.

Scratch a Canadian in almost any province except Quebec and you'll hear complaints about Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's performance. He's not exactly revered. Bring up the subject of elections and you'll hear, Tory leader Joe Clark downgraded at almost every turn. Common comment from those who say they plan to vote for Trudeau, in fact, is that they will do so because of the terrible alternative. Even Finance Minister Jean Chretien has said publicly that he knows the present government isn't much, but

I wonder. Have we had enough of strong leadership, guidance of the country into directions not desired by the majority of Canadians? To me the big plus of Joe Clark and the Tories is that they offer collective leadership, assured by the obvious disagreement of the Tories on some issues. It sure would be a more democratic government, because there would be a better balance of strengths amongst those who would form the cabinet.

In any election campaign the contest too often boils down to comparisons between the two top men, with the public making its choice on the ballot come election day on that basis. That's lazy democracy, and generally, people got what they deserve when they vote that way - bad government. The issues in this coming election are far too important for emotions to govern the choices. There must be effort and input from the voters for any election to be meaningful; more than a carnival shill game.

More and more pundits here in Ottawa have taken to checking the figures offered by the Prime Minister to prove Canada's economic health isn't as bad as reported. Strangely, there's quite a difference between what Mr. Trudeau offers for public consumption and the sources he quotes for the figures. The goal of the government in inflation in the third year of controls, for example, was four percent, not the eight percent he has been using. Tax cut figures? Well, to make the $2 billion tax cut Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Chretien have been citing, you have to count the tax revenue lost through indexing, and that, after all, is only inflation.

The message - check the figures dished out by politicians carefully, because facts matter more than

K. Glen Johnson. The presentation of certificates was then made by the President as well as Mr. Geoffrey Saxton, chairman of the CLC Board of Regents. The next item on the agenda was the presentation of awards by different members of the staff Combined Academic and Service Awards for which an average of 8 0 grade points or higher is required as well as outstanding service to the College, were presented by Janna Neff to Brian Rude and Rhonda Ost The Academic awards, involving an 8.6 grade point average for University students and an 80 percent average for high school students, were presented by Murray Lauber to the following: Barbara Baker; Floyd Bjorgan; John Currah; Shelly Curve; Trevor Erga; Brenda Geertzer; Margaret Graves; Kody Henry; Jari Anne Horner; Thomas Hunt; Denise Hussby; Charlotte Iwanetzkaki; Irene Jacobs; Mary Kooyman; Candise Koppel; Doreen Lee; Lona Leitren, Kent Letourneau, Daurel Minion, Brian Mirtle, Brian Nelson, Duane Norton, Susan Pooler, David Rishe, Edith Schulze, Ken Shimeh, Laura Stevens; Frank Verhagen, Helen Wan Service Awards were then presented by Dr. Marvin Lee to the following: Brent Allen, Tim Coates, Ann Faulk, Ed Jacobson; Karen Johnson; Cliff Knutson, Marilyn Lemeberg; Al Lewrie; Harry Maier; Tom Norris; Judy Pearson, Rolland Sarasin; Jeff Smith; David Ove, Wendy Thomas, Cheryl Vance.

Walker Woods lives on

Walker Woods is unlike any other woods you may have seen, a habitat for wild orchids, and other rare flowers, trees of 150 years; a remnant of the primeval wilderness.

Walker Woods once formed part of a boundless natural landscape that covered a whole region, miles and miles of it. Today that landscape has all but disappeared, the only remnant being Walker Woods. How Walker Woods was saved from the bulldozer and ravage development needs like action

Thanks to The Nature Conservancy of Canada, Walker Woods lives on, as an natural area with its birds, flowers, and other wildlife. It remains as a magnificent example of the once unlimited forest. It can be called a sanctuary, an oasis, a living museum, a nature preserve, an outdoors study area. Whatever we may choose to call it, Walker Woods is a priceless asset for field study and outdoor activities

As urban populations increase so does the need for preserving more areas like Walker Woods before they are irretrievably lost. Such a task is impossible to achieve without individual and corporate assistance, and we invite your support in the form of a tax deductible donation.

What we save now will be all we'll have a generation from now - or ever! Our address is:

Rapeseed production to increase for '78

Positive proof that summer is coming arrived last week with the first crop reports of a new season arrived at The Canadian.

Although no seed has been planted to date, field work is well underway and some seeding is expected to get underway within the next week.

Most areas are reporting increased acreages to be farmed during the coming summer with the biggest increase coming in the area of rapeseed.

Camrose farmers will double their rapeseed acreage while growers of about twenty percent more oats and barley with a slight increase intended in wheat, and the same acreage is intended for flax.

Farmers in the Hay Lakes region will increase rapeseed by about forty percent and plant a few more acres of barley while holding the line on oats and showing a slight drop in wheat production.

A jump of three hundred (300) percent in rapeseed acreage is expected from Tofield farmers who also intend to increase their wheat production by about ten percent, while showing a drop of ten percent in oats and a twenty percent decrease in barley production.

Farmers in the Dayland area expect to increase rapeseed production by fifty percent and will show a slight increase in wheat acreage. Oats, flax and rye crops will be about the same as last year while a twenty percent reduction is expected in the barley crop.

Reports on intended crop acreages were received from local agents of the Alberta Wheat Pool

Garbage Pick-Up

Introduction.

Immigration is one of the most important influences in Canadian life. It always has been.

Immigration affects us culturally, socially and economically. It is basically and internationally.

To ensure that immigration continues to work for the good of Canada, our immigration law has undergone some significant changes. And whether you're a fifth generation citizen or just a visitor, you ought to know what's new.

The changes.

For the last four years, individuals and organizations have made suggestions for change to Canada's immigration law and policy.

Many of the responses received have become part of the new immigration law, designed to serve everyone's best interests for years to come.

For the first time, the basic purposes and principles of our immigration law are clearly stated in the law itself. All other provisions of the law, and the way it is interpreted and by immigration officers, now flow from these purposes and principles.

Now the immediate Reunion of families. Humanitarian concern for refugees. And the promotion of Canada's economic and social advantages.

Just as objectives have been broadened, the means of achieving them have been carefully written to make it possible for Canada to live up to its moral and international obligations.

Provisions for appeals against deportation have been made more effective.

Provisions for the detention of persons who may be inadmissible to Canada have been made more humane.

Provisions for the sponsorship of close relatives by Canadian citizens and permanent residents have been made more flexible.

Provisions for the admission of refugees have been made more realistic.

Provisions for the admission of visitors, students and temporary workers have been made more workable.

Provisions for the admission of a wide range of close relatives, with the new family class, Canadian citizens can now sponsor parents of any age.

Canada has always protected refugees within her borders according to Convention of the United Nations. This protection is now given the force of Canadian law. In addition, a new refugee class defines the when, how and who of accepting refugees for resettlement in Canada.

Civil rights of those involved in immigration proceedings receive greater protection under the new law. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law. Immigration will not be easier, but it will be more predictable. Immigrants and visitors should also talk to their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane.

How it affects Canadians.

The new immigration law is a blueprint for the future. A flexible plan that allows for unexpected changes. Influences on the fabric of Canadian society will be safeguarded for many years.

Under the new law, the federal government will share many responsibilities. To this end, formal agreements on immigration planning and management will be made with the Provinces.

Each year, after federal-provincial discussions, a target figure for immigration volume will be announced. This projection is now given the force of Canadian law. In addition, a new refugee class defines the when, how and who of accepting refugees for resettlement in Canada.

Civil rights of those involved in immigration proceedings receive greater protection under the new law. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law. Immigration will not be easier, but it will be more predictable. Immigrants and visitors should also talk to their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane.

The future.

The future of immigration in Canada cannot be controlled by an ironclad set of rules. Canada's new immigration law combines humanity, justice, international responsibility and adaptability in a way that no other country's immigration law ever has.

We're proud of it. And we invite you to learn more by asking for detailed pamphlets at your nearby Canada Immigration Centre.

Nootka Corps cadets enjoy Edmonton trip

Another action-packed weekend was shared by twenty-seven sea cadets from the Nootka Corps in Holden.

The young people, aged thirteen to eighteen, took part in a citizenship tour visiting various places of interest in Edmonton, as well as joining in several fun activities, from April 21 to April 23.

Leaving Holden at 8 a.m. on Friday, the cadets travelled by bus to Edmonton, accompanied by Capt. D. Cooper of Holden and Lt. Wm. Taylor of Viking. Accomodation and meals were provided at Griesbach Barracks.

Friday was taken up by visits to the Northwestern Utilities Gate Station, the C.F.B. Supply Depot, and the Edmonton Journal, with a tour through the Mutart Conservatory during the evening.

After a 6:30 a.m. awakening Saturday, the cadets were taken to HMCS Nonsuch (Naval Reserve) where they spent the morning practicing parade drill, signals, jackstays, and whaler operations.

Following a lunch break, the cadets were taken to Namao Air Base where, in groups of about ten, they were taken on board a Twin Otter plane piloted by Capt Kelly of the 440 Search and Rescue Squadron.

Each group was taken on a flight from Namao east to Ryley, Holden and Viking and then back to Namao, with cadets being allowed to take over the controls at times.

Back on the ground and after a supper break, a visit to Vista 33 in the A.G.T. tower was enjoyed. The day ended with a swim in the Namao pool and a stop at a pizza outlet.

Sunday started with another early wake-up call, followed by a one and one half mile run along the highway, and then back to the gym for a volleyball game. In keeping with the vigorous pace of the morning, the cadets then were bused to the Rollerdrome for two hours of roller skating.

To complete the weekend's activities, an afternoon at the Citadel Theatre was enjoyed, where the cadets watched the performance of the musical comedy "Damsels At Sea".

Twenty-seven tired but happy young people [illegible] at Ryley, Holden and Viking after a very educational and fun-filled weekend itinerary.

Ditch weed control

A Saskatchewan firm recently designed and built a ditch seeder that is expected to help keep irrigation ditches free of choking weeds.

The design was promoted by an Agriculture Canada Swift Current, Sask., Research Station irrigation specialist who found low-growing grasses to plant in the ditches to keep the weeds down. All he needed was a practical method of sowing the grass seed.

It was decided to mail prize lists only to those previous exhibitors who live outside the Tofield area, in order to save on postage.

Penning facilities for the livestock displays were discussed. This year, the fair committee will look after the setting up of pens for the livestock display.

The members spent many hours during the past week working on tables - 25 new tables were built, stained, and varnished and will be in use at the Fair this year.

The next meeting of the Tofield fair committee will be held on Monday evening, July 24th.

Olsen on hog board

Les Olsen of Camrose continues on the executive of the Alberta Hog Producers Marketing Board, following elections held just over a week ago, in his capacity as past chairman.

Stan Price, director for District 3, was re-elected chairman of the board for a second one year term prior to the annual meeting, leaving Mr. Olsen, who is also director for District 3, continuing in the role of past chairman.

Other members of the executive committee comprise Dan Giebelhaus of Vegreville, as vice chairman and Ed Schultz, who is general manager.

The meeting voiced enthusiastic support for the modified selling system for hogs, introduced on March 17 of this year.

Continuing as delegates from district 3, until elections are held next year are Osborne Clarke, Erskine; Harry Little, Strome; Ray Olstad, New Norway; Jack Perkins, Wainwright; and Joe Vendenberg, Camrose.

Primrose Energy Project

Once again the government has slighted the private sector of Alberta's economy with the announcement that the Primrose Artillery area north of Cold Lake will be tested for oil and gas in a project to be conducted by the Alberta Energy Company. Private independent Alberta oil companies should have been invited to bid on the leases.

These independent companies should have been invited to form a consortium first to conduct this exploration. A.E.C. is owned 50 percent by the provincial government. By giving the leasing program to A.E.C., the government has again failed to demonstrate concern for the small business sector of our economy.

The government has chosen to give preferential treatment to its own agency, and has missed an opportunity to promote private industry. This is not really surprising when one considers the record of this government. It's one in a long series of steps toward centralization made by this government in recent years.

Provincial Services to Treaty Indians

The Minister responsible for Native Affairs, Bob Bogle, has done nothing more than raise false expectations for treaty Indians in his statement on provision of provincial services to treaty Indians.

The delivery of these services by the province as outlined by the Minister are totally dependent on federal agreement, and that agreement has not been achieved. Before any final policy statement was made, the province and the federal government should have completed the necessary consultations and agreement.

The Minister has had three years to get these agreements settled, but hasn't done it. The Official Opposition supports offering of services to treaty Indians, particularly in the fields of social services and provision of services for youthful offenders.

ULTRABAC
A RADICALLY NEW CONCEPT IN CARPET BACKINGS
Unlike conventional foam-backed carpets, the ULTRABAC sponge mixture actually penetrates the carpets' fibres themselves. Which means that, once the ULTRABAC has cured, the carpet tufts are virtually locked in place.
But with ULTRABAC the really big news is the unique, cream-coloured backing material itself.
A specially developed urethane sponge, rather than a foam, ULTRABAC goes far beyond conventional carpet backings, and offers you the features you've been looking for.
And while there are other cream-coloured backings in the marketplace, it takes more than just colour to make a backing ULTRABAC.
Look for the ultrabac name by Peerless and you can be assured you're investing in the best.

Confronting Your Faith

With Rev. John Unrau, Pastor of Tofield Mennonite Church

The art of effective communication is an important factor in keeping the machinery of our society moving harmoniously. A paradox lies in the fact that in spite of elaborate technical communication media at our disposal — systems ranging from the simple inter-com to the tel-star-people have difficulty relating to one another. Our advanced communication media does not seem to be the answer. During the month of April the United States sent Cy Vance in person on missions that were delicate and crucial. Person to person interaction is of great importance.

Unfortunately many people today do not know how to communicate on a person to person basis. Our high divorce figures, unresolved tensions between parents and children, incessant clashes between unions and political parties bear this out daily. What is the cause for our inability to communicate with one another? Could it be our schedules do not give us time to spend time with one another? We get so wrapped up trying to establish ourselves as successful people that we have no time to build relationships. When is the last time you sat as your priority just being available to your family? When is the last time you sat around the table with your children and played a game? What about T.V.? In many homes the television [illegible] what [illegible] on, when they go to bed and when they get up. T.V. tends to monopolize our time, life style, philosophy of life, [illegible].

Also prevalent in our society is an egotistical philosophy - "I'm the only one who matters and I couldn't care less about others. I'm going to live my life the way I want and if others don't like it they can jump it." We seem to have lost the art of listening. What can we do about it? Most of us want to be able to communicate but we need some handles to grasp on to get started.

To begin with let us consider the [illegible] that prevent effective communication. Time. Maybe we need to revamp our priorities and put our families first. The Bible says that if we do not take care of our own house we are worse than an infidel. Let us make ourselves available [illegible].

Next make certain that you control the T.V. and do not allow the T.V. to control you. Monitor programs by your presence. If you want to watch T.V., do so as a family and then discuss the program. Finally, learn to be an attentive listener. Too often we jump to conclusions and disrupt what could be a meaningful communication process. We tend to respond on the basis of what we have predetermined rather than on the basis of what the person has really said. A good policy to follow when entering a discussion of a tense subject is to repeat to the other person what you have heard him say, and to work at clarifying the speaking and the hearing until you are really hearing what the other person is saying.

During Jesus' earthly ministry he portrayed some excellent ways of in effective communication. He personally became involved with people by identifying with their need. This recovered its ultimate focus when He gave his life in order to communicate God's love to you and me.

Let us attempt to follow the advice found in James 1:19 "Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak and slow to wrath."

Guilty by mail

RCMP across Alberta are now issuing new tickets which enable accused persons to voluntarily plead guilty by mail.

The new method, instigated Monday, May 1, is hoped to "keep a few more trials out of court", according to Corporal Don Wolke of the Camrose RCMP detachment.

Several acts are covered for voluntary payment. As before, all charges under the Hwy. Traffic Act can be voluntarily paid by mail while now, in addition, charges under the Livestock Brand Inspection Act, the Liquor Control Act, the Litter Act, the Wildlife Act, the Motor Vehicle Administration Act, the Motor Transport Act and the Off Highway Vehicles Act can be submitted by mail, indicating guilt on the part of the accused. New regulations under the Clean Air Act, details of which could not be released by Corporal Wolke, are also among those for which an offender can plead guilty and make payment by mail.

The new ticket, according to Corporal Wolke, "looks almost identical" to that previously used. For the present, RCMP in Alberta are among only a few of the provincial divisions which have instigated this new method of payment, which hastitions to "streamline" the judicial system. Accused persons still have the option to appear in court and plead not guilty to the charge.

The Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club has a shoot scheduled for Sunday.

The club will hold its second annual spring "registered" skeet shoot at the outdoor range on Sunday, starting at nine o'clock in the morning.

Enid Thacker-Ice

The Bruce Busy Bees 4-H Club held a meeting on April 17 in the Community Centre. The second annual highway clean-up was planned and the girls will be cleaning up the six miles east of the Bruce corner. It won't be all work and no play, however, for a weiner roast will be held at the Morris Erickson farm after the job is done.

Service has been cancelled at Immanuel Lutheran Church on Sunday. On Sunday, May 14 there will be communion service at 9 a.m. Beginning on May 21 and for four months thereafter, service will be held at 11 a.m. Confirmation Sunday will be May 28.

It must be the pleasant weather that gets people on the move. Former Bruce residents visiting in the area this past week were Lillian and Bill Dorin from Westlock and Sam Miciak from Camrose.

Put a big circle around June 17 on your calendar! That's when the Agricultural Society is having its annual Mid-Summer Social in the Recreation Centre. Blue Steele Country will be supplying the music.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

It's hard to believe that this week marks my first year as Program Supervisor for our Regional Recreation Department. I've been thinking about the many activities I've been involved with and the many experiences I've had. It has been fun but also a little discouraging at times.

I have to remember the disgust I felt when watching our childrens' softball baseball leagues and finding very few parents there watching. Too busy? Not interested? I still feel a bit per turbed and feel somewhat sorry for the children when parents can't be bothered to come and watch. I also remember with a smile the senior citizen's June trip to Calgary, Banff and Rocky Mountain House. The picnic lunches, the springs at Banff, the appearance of the Sasquatch and other ex periences which were great fun.

The summer brought camps and playgrounds, fun for the kids but not always for their leaders. The main thing I remember about this is the encouraging I had to do of leaders not to become discouraged about their jobs. Also I can remember several amusing anecdots about kids at camp as told to me by the camp director and leaders.

Fall time was the start of programs I enjoyed meeting the people and the friendliness that was extended towards me. The only thing I didn't enjoy were the many telephone calls made to me at home. It's funny, but you'll find me a lot easier to talk with during the day than at 8:30 a m at home or at 9:30 p m at home.

All in all, it's been a good year and I hope to serve another year promoting recreation in your com munity.

Last month on the T.V program Marketplace, the Consumers Association released some information on their life insurance study. Comparing different companies, they found that there was quite a variation in rates for the same policy. In some cases, the cost of buying from one company can be 100 percent higher than that of another company. Un fortunately we, as consumers are unaware of this because we don't shop around for the best buy.

To help the insurance buyer save time and money, a "Shoppers Guide to Life Insurance" has been compiled. It lists the prices of policies from different companies for ages 25-55 years. If you understand life insurance and know which policy and ap lies best suit your needs, this booklet can be very helpful. It can be obtained by writing to Guide to Life Insurance, Box 2101 Station A, Sudbury, On tario P1A 4R8. Cost - $1.00.

Breakfast Blend

Tired of having the same old thing for breakfast? Try waking up to something new, an egg burger. It's an egg breaking the yolk and cooking gently on both sides until firm. Place cooked egg on a bun or muffin. Top with one or all of the following: tomato slice, grilled cheese, bacon, ham relish, ketchup, chopped salami, mushrooms or green pepper sauce. For an extra help for busy people, egg burgers are a finger food so dishes are kept to a minimum. Canadian Egg Marketing Agency.

Mrs Clara (Lysle) Solberg, formerly of Ryley, passed away in Berwyn at the age of 81. Clara and Alfred have made their home at Autumn Lodge for a number of years.

Predeceased by a son, Delmer, and daughter Adeline. Clara leaves to mourn her passing, her husband Alfred, daughter, Beulah, brothers, Peder Lysle of Killam, Ludwig Lysle of Ryley, and Albert Lysle of B.C.; a sister Julia Anderson of Ryley, and many nieces, nephews and grandchildren. The funeral was held in Berwyn on Tuesday.

The Ryley Curling Club held their annual meeting April 26 to end the curling season. The Board for the coming year was elected, as follows: Don Wagner, Gary Manderson, Kevin Bugge, Charles Magnuson, Darryl Lyons, Dale Winness, Gertie Misura, Lil Gudmundson, Ona Strichuk and Bill Wood.

Elida, Leanne and Karen Hessler of Viking were other recent visitors.

Visitors from Tofield and Shonts at the Ezra Reil home last week were Mrs Milbe Yoder, her daughter, Gladys and Mrs Ruth Yoder.

I dropped into the Drop-In Centre on Saturday afternoon to see how the Sunshine Club's tea and ceramic and bake sale was going. It was the first time I had ever been inside their building, and I was really impressed when I saw how nicely it was fixed up. Everybody seemed to be enjoying themselves as they sipped coffee and ate buns and squares. The baking cleared out quickly and the hand-made ceramics drew many looks of admiration. A black vase was offered as a door prize and won by Denise Wood.

Friends and relatives gathered at the Melvin Campbell home to help Melvin and Marilyn celebrate their 10th anniversary last Saturday evening.

A baby girl was born to Blaine and Carol Lysle on Saturday. She is a sister for Korri, Candice and Allen.

As the town grows so the Bethel Lutheran Church does likewise. Darrell Magnuson, Byron Baranuk and Dwight Alliott were received into membership as a result of the Confirmation service held Sunday morning.

Friends from Edmonton, Camrose, Tofield, Galahad and Ft Saskatchewan attended the program and lunch, and they as well as everyone else who attended, reportedly had a good time. Leslie is now working in the furniture factory at the Canadian Union College.

Chris Rimell returned home last Sunday from Nipawin, Sask. She was visiting her daughter, Geraldine and family.

Holden discusses the general plan

General planning and teen dances occupied the time of Holden Village Council at a special meeting recently.

Marjorie Holder, a planner with the Department of Municipal Affairs, was in attendance at the meeting to discuss the village's proposed general plan with members of council Policies of the general plan were discussed in detail and it was generally agreed, by councillors, that the village's priority should be to maintain an attractive residential community and to establish protection in regards to the ex[illegible].

Councillors agreed that the present land available for residential development should be adequate, at the present rate of growth within the village limits

A further meeting was scheduled for May 18th, with Ms Holder in attendance, at which time the development of objectives and policies for implementing goals relating to parks, open spaces, community facilities, roads and streets would be discussed in [illegible]

[illegible]

Constables Moffat and Christenson of the Tofield Detachment along with Terry Lehr, Cathy Lesko, Karen Chupka and Russ Lehr then met with council to discuss possible problems with the holding of teen dances in the village.

Discussions were carried on after council moved into a "committee of whole council". After presentations by Teen Club members and the RCMP, councillors discussed the situation among themselves and then reconvened the special meeting.

During the reconvened portion of the meeting, it was moved that, based on recommendations of the RCMP and in consultation with the Teen Club, council requested that Teen Club dances be held between the hours of 9 p.m and 1 a.m.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a special [illegible] held on April 28th

Around the town

Contributions from the Tofield area to the Easter Seals campaign, conducted by the Vegreville Lions Club, amounted to $290

Mr. and Mrs Thor Mahlum celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, April 9th at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Cornie and Palma Penner Palma entertained approximately 30 relatives and friends at an afternoon luncheon. Mr Mahlum, who came to Ryley from Norway in 1912, and Mrs Mahlum, who arrived with her family from North Dakota in 1904, farmed northeast of Ryley for many years. Their son, Clarence and his wife, Alice now operate the family farm. Sunday was also an occasion for picture taking as they posed with their daughter, Palma, grandson, Bob and great-grandson, Cameron for four-generation pictures

Mrs. Doris Bailey of Chilliwack, B.C., has been visiting with her father, Mr Odiorne and friends, this past week.

"This year investigate tank mixing

"Why not use a weed killer you mix yourself? The formulations can vary.

- Banvel with Pool 2,4-D
- Banvel with Pool MCPA Amine
- Banvel with Pool MCPA K-64

but the result is a highly satisfactory tank mix you can adjust to suit your own weed control and cropping program. It costs less per acre than pre-mixed combinations

I can help you make your own tank mix: I'll sell you the basic chemicals for it, and I'll give you a brochure that tells you how to do it."

FOOD OUTLOOK

The following food outlook was compiled by Alberta agriculture's market analysis branch and published by the food marketing branch

Beef

Beef prices at the producer level have moved up considerably in the last few weeks with the full impact of price increases only beginning to become evident at the retail counter. Expectations are that beef prices for the spring and into the summer will be high

A major contributing factor to increased beef prices, apart from the devalued Canadian dollar, has been the surprising shortfall from anticipated levels of pork production

Currently, it is uncertain whether the anticipated level of pork production in North America will be reached. If it is not, the result will be increasing pork prices. This situation could change very quickly if the anticipated level of pork supplies is, in fact, attained

Poultry

With the price of red meats rising in 1977, approximately 14 percent of Alberta's chicken producers were able to increase sales by 10 per cent while Canadian commercial sales increased by 3.5 per cent. The price of chicken at the producer level rose only 1 cent per pound live-weight between 1977 and 1978, and the retail price of chicken increased by approximately 3 cents per pound. Another factor contributing to improved markets for chicken was the downward movement in the Canadian dollar relative to the U.S. dollar. Thus the movement of chicken into Canada in the first three months of 1978 dropped by 8 per cent and the proportion of chicken of Canadian origin being consumed rose

Eggs

Retail egg prices have not increased significantly in the past three months despite the fact that the producer price rose by 3 cents due to the upward shift in the cost of production formula which reflected a seasonal increase in feed prices. These feed [illegible] expected to hold or possibly moderate downwards in the third and fourth quarter of 1978, depending upon crop [illegible]

Milk

Albertans are drinking more milk per capita than people anywhere else in Canada. Until 1977, Ontario was the leader in per capita consumption of fluid milk with Alberta following close behind. In 1977, the per capita consumption of milk in Alberta increased from 85.7 quarts per capita to an estimate 100 quarts. This combined with a population increase has raised fluid milk sales in the province by 6 per cent

Vegetables

Fresh vegetable supplies and prices were erratic at times last winter as weather and transportation problems had a major effect on what is normally a fairly smooth flow of products to market. Overall though, local and imported produce moved more smoothly than a year ago, and at prices, for the most part near last year's levels, even though the Canadian dollar will buy significantly fewer imports this year. As winter production regions give way to spring producing regions supplies of most imported fresh produce will probably stabilize and prices will be reasonable, though higher than last year owing to both slightly higher prices for U.S. and Mexican produce and the weaker Canadian dollar. The outlook for 1978 production is vastly improved over a year ago because of improved water availability in major U.S. production areas. The outlook for local produce is good as well, and plantings are expected to be above the last year's levels

Honey

Honey supplies are ample at steady prices and are expected to remain stable throughout the spring

Sugar

Sugar supplies are more than ample, and prices are expected to remain reasonable and steady throughout the [illegible]

Brix-Haeberle vows exchanged in Ryley

Calvin United Church in Ryley was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday, April 29th with Rev. David Meddle officiating.

Louise Haeberle, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haeberle, was united in marriage to Lee Bailey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brix of Ryley.

Allan and Ardis Haeberle were bridal attendants and Lyle Haeberle, brother of the bride, was organist.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Haeberle, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Nadfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Anderson of Viking, Mrs. Ann Mack, Lisa and Allan, Ken Haeberle, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Haeberle, all of Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Haeberle of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Patterson, Tina and Tammy of Spruce Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Bailey, Deanna and Dale of Red Deer, and Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey and Leah of Drayton Valley.

Supper followed at the Ryley Hotel. The wedding party and guests then all went to the bride's home in Viking where the newly married couple opened their wedding gifts. Shortly after midnight, the bride's parents served lunch.

The newlyweds returned to Edmonton on Sunday where the groom is employed by Northwestern Utilities and the bride is presently at the University of Alberta, in [illegible] Ed.

4-H'ers join photo contest

4-H members are being invited to share ideas on farm safety by entering a photography contest. Conducted on a province-wide basis, the competition is part of the farm safety program jointly sponsored by Alberta Agriculture and Alberta Labor.

Since farm safety involves avoiding many hazards, entries should reflect this wide range of hazards, and should place special emphasis on the human side, of farm and farm home accidents. They should also show the factors that contribute to an accident and any actual mishap that may occur.

4-H members may enter single photographs in either color or black and white. Clubs may enter group competitions by entering both color and black and white photograph collection. All photographs will be evaluated at the club level, and the best in each class will be sent to the Farm Safety Program for final judging. Judging will be based on the contributor's age and photographic experience.

Above average entries will be used to promote farm safety throughout the province. Those that are outstanding may appear on posters, brochures and in reports and manuals. The winners will be given a prize and a memento of the contest.

Contest details are available in poster form in district agriculturist and 4-H regional offices. All entries must reach the Farm Safety Program office by October 31, 1978.

The address of the Farm Safety Program is Alberta Agriculture, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T5K 2C8.

CLC expands music program

The music program at Camrose Lutheran College is being expanded and will include two choirs, starting in the fall term.

Traditionally, CLC has always had the Concert Choir although the program was enlarged last fall for a period of time to include a women's chorus.

Auditions held last fall proved that there are more female students interested in choir than are their male counterparts

The result was that a temporary women's chorus was formed Their success in performing Benjamin Britten's demanding Christmas suite, Ceremony of Carols, was indirectly responsible for the plan to make a women s chorus a regular musical feature at the college.

During the coming term (fall), the women's chorus will rehearse regularly and will perform during the Christmas program, and will accompany the Concert Choir on its annual spring tour

Mr. Brown paid tribute to the cadet leaders, Dennis Cooper of Holden, Bill Taylor of Viking, Doug Woods of Ryley, and Mrs. Greta Keith of Holden.

Navy League president, Mrs Carol Stefura, welcomed the parents and cadets, and made a plea for new members to the Navy League of Canada.

Guest speaker for the evening was Ron Estay of the Edmonton Eskimos, who is a member of Athletes in Action, an affiliation of Campus of [redacted]

His message, spiced with several humerous anecdotes was entitled "Mental Attitudes" and contained sound advice for everyone present, young or old.

A great contribution to the local sea cadet movement this year was made by the cadet liason officer, Lt. Brian McIntosh of C.F.B. Namao, who volunteered many hours to be with the cadets on their weekly parades and on several weekend camps. As well, he coordinated two citizenship tours, including flights over the local areas. The cadets were sad to learn about his pending transfer to Yellowknife in August.

RON ESTAY

In recognition of Lt. McIntosh's contribution, a large framed print of sailboats competing in the America's Cup Race was presented by Cadets Brenda Haas and Kevin Stefura, on behalf of the corps.

Mrs McIntosh accepted the gift in the absence of her husband, who was on search and rescue duty at the time.

A gift was also presented to Mrs McIntosh who had accompanied her husband on all of the sea cadet exercises and was well known and well liked by all.

Capt. Cooper reminded everyone that the annual cadet inspection will be held on May 18th at the Holden Community Hall.

There will also be a Family-Cadet Camp the weekend of June 17th and 18th, featuring sailing, boating, swimming and many other fun activities, and it is hoped that as many cadets and their families as possible will attend.

The Spoiler!

Colored glasses

It's often claimed that some of us are looking at the world through rose-colored glasses, and the suggestion is implicit that others are using glasses which are clear. But then again, there may be some of us using glasses with other colors still, and the way we see the world may depend on the color used in the glasses we happen to be looking through.

Which reminds us that not all western agricultural producers support the concept of the Crow's Nest Pass freight rates, agreed to by Dominion Statute something more than fifty years ago, after the West fought a strenuous and sometimes bitter battle to gain them.

Years later, it turns out, the Rates work to the detriment of the western cattle breeder, all the while they offer favourable rates for the shipping of some grains . . .those grains included in the statute at the time it was written.

For years the argument has waxed and waned, and always the railways seemed to be in the lead of those arguing abolition of the rates, though they rarely acknowledged the land grants and other bonuses which formed a part of the low rate philosophy in the first place.

More recently the cattle breeders are suggesting there must be an alternate which will give grain growers the same benefits, yet open eastern meat counters to their western beef without penalty. And last week Unifarm, under the presidency of Camrose farmer Howard Falkenberg, agreed to initiate restrained, low key, and dispassionate discussion of the features and foibles of the special Rates, with a long-range view of what may be best in the long run for the farming industry overall.

Those of us who know Mr. Falkenberg will be reassured by his insistence on moderate discussion, and analytical assessment of the overall impact both of the rates and of any modification, in the face of sustained pressure for amendments to the rates hallowed for more than half a century of farm tradition.

For our own part, we would be highly distressed over suggestions for change, even while we recognize the dismaying picture facing the beef or hog producer. When they were conceded to the Western producer away back in the Twenties, the Crow's Nest Pass rates were felt to be a solid victory, recognizing in part the enormous land grants made to the Canadian Pacific Railway for their enterprise in crossing the Prairies and knitting the country together. The problem is that when economists today figure the cost of transport, they tend to overlook entirely the contribution made to railway welfares through those land grants, now long since transferred into other holding companies.

(It must be acknowledged, of course, that the Canadian National Railway did not benefit in the same way by these generous land grants, and their accounting must, perforce, be different.)

To the best of our recollection, every Alberta government in the past half century has developed its own experts in defence of the Crow rates, the latest government developing in the passing of this expertise from Fred Peacock, former Minister of Transport in the Lougheed government, to the present Deputy Premier, and Minister of Transport, the Hon. Dr. Hugh Horner, both of whom are recognized as learned and enlightened in the field

It might be highly instructive for those of us on the sidelines to hear the case for and against the Crow rates argued between the Hon. Dr Hugh Horner, wearing the orange and blue colors of the Alberta Conservatives, and the Hon. Jack Horner, wearing the red, blue and white of the federal Liberals.

On the trail of the 65th

Dear Sir:

It is hoped a detective story without murder, fraud or other crime may be sufficiently novel as to win space in your paper.

There is such a story of a Canadian Army unit that served throughout Europe WW2. This unit, the 65 Tank Transport Coy RCASC was disbanded in Holland in 1946.

Twenty eight years later, two former members met in Flin Flon, Man and speculated on what had happened to their wartime friends. It was decided to try for some answers. It should be noted that a 28 year old trail is a cold trail and difficult to follow. The first answer was a shock, a man remembered as a happy joking youth and unit favorite was found dying in an Edmonton hospital. A notice in the Legion Magazine produced eight replies, all from the area between Sydney, N.S and Powell River, B.C. (a truly generous hunting preserve). The search became a chain reaction as the members when found joined in the endeavour. After some progress had been made, the undertaking was organized by province with exchange of information. Leads were dredged up from memory, unit daily orders (source Ottawa Records), from old address books, phone books, old photos, etc.

Four and a half years of detective work has located 210 living ex-members and about 35 deceased out of a possible of about 700. The search continues.

Will anyone reading this, please check with your WW2 army acquaintances if a 65th man be found, please advise him of a company reunion to be held at North Bay, Ontario, July 7-8-9, 1978. For reunion details and other important information, he should contact Maurice Rainsforth, P.O. Box 1071, Stirling Ontario, 613-395-2062 (or the writer).

Sincerely,

BEWARE OF TRAVELLING LUMBER DEALERS

This is the time of year when lumber dealers that travel from place to place set up their stalls in Alberta. If you buy from them, you may get a good deal, but chances are you will not.

According to the Better Business Bureau of Edmonton and Northern Alberta, you may find that the lumber is not graded, or that it is not suitable for the purpose you have in mind. It may even contain dry rot.

If you are not an expert on lumber, and if you are not sure of the difference between a "board-foot" and a "linear-foot", the bureau suggests that you deal with an established lumber dealer who has a permanent location in your area. He will be available for advice and after-sale service.

No gas swap

Following the visit of United States Vice-President Mondale to Ottawa and Edmonton, both the Canadian and Alberta governments seem increasingly willing to agree to a "swap" of Alberta natural gas to the U.S.

I completely oppose the swap proposal, and I believe the Lougheed government would be making a serious error if it agreed to such an arrangement.

In my view, this is nothing more than a plan to increase exports of Alberta natural gas to the U.S.—a deal which has little of value for Albertans but which will be of great benefit to the foreign corporations and to the U.S

I see no justification for selling off a depleting natural resource which is bound to increase substantially in value and which will undoubtedly be needed by Albertans in future years.

Although the government calls this proposal a swap, there is absolutely no assurance that Alberta would gain back the same amount of gas from the Americans at a later date. Indeed, Energy Minister Don Getty has made it clear that the swap arrangement relates only to the Crown share of production. The producers' share—more than half the total production—would be sold outright to the Americans for cash. Such an arrangement makes no economic sense at all from Alberta's point of view.

It is clear that pressure for a swap is coming not only from the U.S but also from producers who would like immediate sales of surpluses of gas currently stored in capped wells.

While I can understand the producers' desire to sell the gas, it seems to me it would make far more sense for the Alberta government to buy it and hold it in a "gas bank" for future use than to allow it to be exported at bargain basement prices.

The gas won't rot in the ground, and it won't lose its value. It will be increasingly valuable to Albertans as the years go by.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA – (SF) — We've been hearing an awful lot about constitutional change recently. There's no question it's a major issue in the coming election, although not nearly of the same urgency as economic policies, but there are dangers of being led down the garden path on the constitution

The focal points of changes suggested are the reform of the Senate, and the enshrining of language rights - French and English - into the constitution.

I don't see how anyone could argue against reform of the Senate but I find it rather significant that on the eve of an election once again the vacant seats were filled - mostly with party hacks It makes you question the sincerity of the government's ideas about Senate reform.

I'm suspicious, too, about proposals to further streamline Parliament When the last batch of reforms took place we were told they were necessary to speed the growing amount of business in its passage through Parliament There would be new powers vested in the committees of Parliament, was the promise.

That hasn't happened. The not unreasonable fear is that further streamlining of Parliament will further de-democratize our federal institution, leaving still more power in the hands of cabinet and the bureaucracy. That would be bad news for national unity; bad news for democracy in Canada.

The checks and balances of our system of government haven't been working too well recently - except during those times when an election is on the horizon, or when there's minority government in power Further dismantling to curb cabinet power in Parliament would be bad news, no matter which party formed the next government

Canada is a country so diverse that we need an open forum for the public resolution of differences, so that all regions of the country will perceive that solutions are compromises, not unilateral measures forced down our throats

We've also heard a great deal about proposed language rights entrenched in a new constitution, with possible provisions for Quebec to "opt out" until the safety of the French language is assured. That's one to consider with extreme care. It could prove destructively divisive.

During election campaigns it's difficult to sort out the baffle-gab from the facts, but it is incumbent on all of us to do some serious thinking about the proposals being out forward for constitutional change in this election. We're going to have to live with the results for a long time.

In 1977, intensive Carbyne yield trials were made on farms, and managed by farmers. Carbyne-treated and untreated plots were planted side-by-side at the same time, and harvested with field combines. No special treatment.

Check out the yield results in the chart above. Multiply the extra bushels in Carbyne-treated plots by current crop prices. You see that Carbyne made money for these 20 growers.

Money maker, and money saver.

Carbyne's low product cost produced yield increases at minimum cost. And Carbyne doesn't need incorporation. That can save about $2 per acre, or more.

You know Carbyne is going to work because you spray the wild oats, not the soil.

Rain won't wash away your investment. Fifteen minutes after application, it can pour rain without washing Carbyne off the wild oats. Yet Carbyne doesn't need moisture to activate it.

Easy to apply.

Carbyne is not only easy to apply, but what you save on Carbyne's price could pay for custom application. Check this out with your farm chemicals dealer and your nearby custom applicator.

See your farm chemicals dealer for your supply of Carbyne. See him early.

Bombs in the Home

Have you ever thought of your home as a bomb storage area? It can be, if you have any pressurized cans or bottles. These dispensers of many personal and household products can be as lethal as a hand grenade or a miniature flame thrower if used carelessly.

"Packed to generate about 40 pounds per square inch pressure at 70 degree F., they can safely withstand temperatures up to 180 degree F. But, hair-spray cans negligently placed on a heater, and pressurized containers kept in glove compartments of closed cars parked in the hot sun have been known to explode, take lives and cause extensive damage. Empty containers thrown on an open fire rupture almost instantly, sending fragments through the air for hundreds of feet. The use of hair spray near an open flame, or while smoking can produce flames up to seven feet in length. Warnings against all of these dangers appear on the labels of pressurized cans, but the users failure to read and heed them is causing an increasing number of fires, injuries and deaths. The Consumer Spring 78."

A Sticky Problem

Use paint remover to strip off old bumper or window stickers from your car. It works by dissolving the vell sticking adhesive. Apply the remover in an open area in the shade . . . the sun causes streaking and quick drying. And beware of the remover touching the paint on the car."

AOC helps Alberta business

More than $4 million was loaned to Alberta businesses during the month of March, when the Alberta Opportunity Company recorded its highest number of loans since it opened nearly six years ago.

The March loan total was nearly double that of the figure just a year ago, reported the company's managing director, Ed Clarke.

With headquarters in Ponoka, the firm distributed loans over the entire province, ranging from Milk River in the south to Fort Vermilion in the north, among 34 communities.

Only ten of the loans exceeded the average ranch of just over $87,000, the smallest being for $2,700 to publish a book in Seebe, while $5,000 was advanced to assist an optical appliance firm in Grand Centre. Our loan was to provide equipment for aerial crop spraying and seeding, while another was to assist a fiberglass product business in Meeting Creek.

While only five loans were made to businesses in Edmonton, and four in Calgary, by far the largest single loan, $450,000 went to an Edmonton

Bruce seeks water, sewer

by Bea Fredericks

George Knudsen, Reeve of Beaver County Council, chaired a special meeting at the Bruce Community Centre on Monday, to discuss the possibility of water and sewage disposal for the Hamlet of Bruce.

Vince Malley explained the set-up essentially the same as that drawn up in 1974 when the last attempt was made to gain these facilities.

A representative from the Department of Environment was on hand to explain the grant program which is much more favorable now than it was in 1974.

There were 45 hamlet residents in attendance and they voted unanimously to have the Department further pursue water supply information. Before any definite plans can be made it is necessary to have facts and figures.

Which is the third time the residents of Bruce have attempted to get water and sewer. Perhaps this time it won't all go "down the drain".

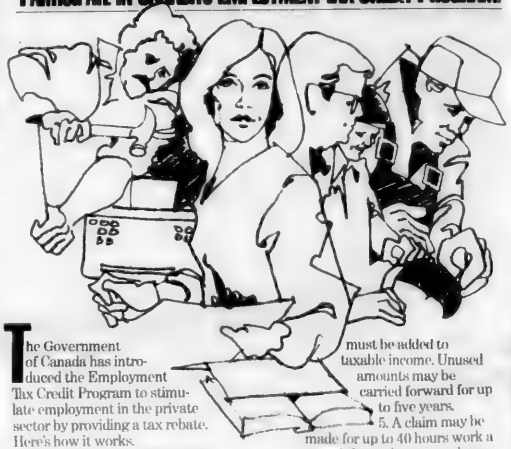
PARTICIPATE IN CANADA'S EMPLOYMENT TAX CREDIT PROGRAM.



HOW TO DO MORE BUSINESS AND PAY LESS TAX.

The Government of Canada has introduced the Employment Tax Credit Program to stimulate employment in the private sector by providing a tax rebate. Here's how it works.

1. If an employer expands his normal work force by hiring an unemployed person through a Canada Manpower Centre/Canada Employment Centre and the job has been created as a direct result of the Employment Tax Credit Program, the business is eligible to claim the tax rebate.

2. Almost any business that's been in operation for more than one year is eligible.

3. The rebate is calculated at $1.50, $1.75 or $2.00 per hour. This rate is determined by the geographic area of Canada in which the new employee will be working.

4. The rebate is deductible from federal income taxes payable but must be added to taxable income. Unused amounts may be carried forward for up to five years.

5. A claim may be made for up to 40 hours work a week for each new employee for a period of up to nine months.

6. Each new job must be full-time. Normally no less than 35 hours a week.

And that's it, essentially. The program has been designed to work with a minimum of red tape. All employers should by now have received a booklet that gives all the details of the program. If it has not been received, employers should contact a local Canada Manpower Centre/Canada Employment Centre. The Employment Tax Credit Program. It's ready to go to work for Canada. And for you.

RAPESEED PRODUCTION RECOMMENDATIONS

In case you missed Alberta Agriculture's home study rapeseed course, held earlier this year, here is a summary of recommended practices by Andy Birch, district agricultural al Stettler

A GOOD SEEDBED

A good seedbed is one that is uniform well packed, weed free and moist within 1 inch of the surface. It should be so firm that when you stand on it, your shoes sink just enough to cover the soles. A firmly packed seedbed is a prerequisite for good germination.

Shallow tillage (two to three inches) with a cultivator, rod weeder and harrows will help to attain a firm seedbed and to control weed growth Since most rapeseed is grown on summerfallow, one tillage operation prior to seeding may be sufficient However, more tillage operations are necessary if rape is stubbled in.

SEEDING DEPTH

Shallow seeding is necessary for good emergence for the relatively small seed of rape The seed should be seeded to a depth of one-half to one inch in a firm, moist, well packed soil Seeding at deeper levels weakens the seedlings, and greatly increases the possibility of seedling blight

RATE OF SEEDING

High rates of seeding are not necessary and can even reduce yields Yields obtained from seeding rates varying from two to 10 pounds per acre were not significantly different in field tests When the plant population density is low, individual plants tend to branch and spread out more, and generally tend to produce more seed pods lower down on their stalks

The recommended seeding rate for Polish and Argentine rape varieties are four to six pounds per acre and five to seven pounds per acre respectively These rates will have to be increased if the seed has a low germination or if soil crusting is likely to impair seedling emergence.

SEEDING DATE

[illegible] the federal research station at Beaverlodge indicate that the optimum planting date for Torch (similar for Candle) is during the last two weeks in May When seeding was done then, it was found that it took less time for the plants to emerge, there was a greater chance of establishing a uniform stand and a greater chance of a higher average yield.

The optimum planting date for Tower is during the first two weeks in May. Seed yields have been found to be higher and the risk of a chilling frost in the fall is reduced when planting is done during this period.

FERTILIZER USE

Rapeseed has a high requirement for nitrogen. It is estimated that an average 30 bushel per acre crop will require as much as 60 pounds of nitrogen and 26 pounds of phosphorus per acre from the soil Since the greatest response to fertilizer occurs when both nitrogen and phosphorus are in the proper balance, it is a good idea to have a soil test done

Because rapeseed crops cannot tolerate a high level of nitrogen with the seed, the general recommendation is that no more than 10 pounds of nitrogen per acre be applied with the seed When high rates are required, as indicated by a soil test, the nitrogen should be [illegible] or broadcast in fall to avoid germination injury.

Since phosphate fertilizers such as 11-48-0 and 11-55-0 are usually drilled in with the seed, application rates of phosphorus should not exceed 35 pounds per acre.

WEED CONTROL

Successful weed control in rape required good tillage practices combined with chemicals There are a number of herbicides on the market today to control various weeds in rapeseed. Some of these are Treflan, Avadex BW, Carbyne, TOK/RM, Cobex, TCA, Endaven and Hoe-grass Label instructions regarding rate and time of application, method of application and incorporation and care when handling the chemical should be carefully followed

RAPSEED DISEASES

A common disease of rape is damping off or seedling blight. It is more of a problem in cool, wet weather and in low lying areas The seeds either fail to germinate or the seedlings will or rot off at ground level shortly after emerging. Control involves shallow seeding (half to one inch), proper fertilizing and seeding when the soil is sufficiently warm. The use of a combination insecticide-fungicide seed treatment will provide some protection against seedling blight, seed decay and flea beetles.

Damage from staghead (white rust) is most apparent as a malformation of pods or entire flower stalks White blisters also appear on the underside of the leaves. The loss in yield from staghead is directly related to the amount of infection. If for example 5 percent of the rape branches are infected, yields will be reduced by 5 per cent.

There is no seed treatment that will control this disease. The use of clean seed from disease-free fields, control of susceptible weeds and a crop rotation of at least 5 years with noncrucifers is recommended. Argentine rape varieties are resistant to this disease.

In view of the outbreak of blackleg disease in Medfort, Sask. last summer, it is a good idea to treat rapeseed with a systemic containing the fungicide benomyl (Benlate).

There are several other diseases common to rape, but in most cases disease control recommendations are the use of good, clean seed, control of cruciferous weeds and crop rotations lasting at least three to four years.

INSECT CONTROL

Flea Beetles (black beetles) can do severe damage to rape seedlings if the infestation is heavy Damage appears as small round holes in the leaves. The greatest damage occurs when rape is planted near a field where the previous year's crop was infested. The beetles overwinter as adults under the grass along the borders of fields Damage is first noticed and usually most severe in areas bordering headlands and treed areas

The use of a seed treatment is particularly advisable if you have had a previous flea beetle infestation Two types of treatments are available: a granular insecticide and a dust. To provide protection against blackleg disease, use a product that contains the fungicide benomyl

Since there is expected to be a significant increase in Alberta's rapeseed acreage this year, there is a good chance of encountering more problems with diseases and pests than usual. For this reason, good crop rotation practices, the use of good seed, the application of recommended pesticides and careful and continuous checking of rape crops will be even more important than ever.

As I see it

by Dr. Walt Buck, MLA
Clover Bar

Last week in the Legislature my colleague from Bow Valley, Fred Mandeville, introduced a motion urging the government to introduce policies to ensure that young farmers in Alberta receive reasonable assistance in purchasing and maintaining viable and economic family farms

Mr Mandeville pointed out that the future of agriculture in this province, and the provincial economy as a whole, lies in the viability of the operations of youthful farm operators and the family farm After our oil and natural gas is depleted, agriculture will again be the mainstay of our economy Because of this fact, the government must strive to its utmost to assist Alberta's young farmers to maintain viable family farms.

Mr Mandeville supplied information which shows that costs have been continually climbing while produce-prices have been declining For example, in 1975-76, the value of meat production went down 3 4 percent, even though the numbers of cattle shipped increased by 16 percent. This trend has been common throughout the agricultural sector

What is required is a long-term assistance program from the provincial government to stabilize production. The present practice of subsidizing agriculture on a commodity-by-commodity basis is a miserable failure

Ways in which the government can show a commitment to agriculture would be to reduce interest rates by 50 per cent on loans extended to farmers for the purchase of agricultural land, equipment or buildings At present, the interest rate is 9 percent on direct loans and 1 percent above the prime rate for guaranteed loans Elimination of royalties paid on the fossil fuels used in agricultural production and processing will further decrease farm input costs A consumer education program to eliminate resistance among consumers to food prices which are more equitable to the agricultural producer would be useful as well

If you have concerns or suggestions, please phone my office in Fort Saskatchewan at 998-3276, or in Edmonton at 427-2251.

MacAndrews addresses Holden Chamber meet

At the May 1st meeting of the Holden and District Chamber of Commerce, the membership was honoured to have as their guest speaker, Cy MacAndrews, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agricultural for the Province of Alberta

Mr MacAndrews spoke on the world food production and showed slides taken in Malaysia, where he was part of a team of advisors for a two-year period, to prepare a master plan to improve that country's food production

Following Mr. MacAndrews address, the regular business meeting was called to order

At this time, Deputy Mayor Mackay reported that while the Village has approval for an 8-unit individual housing complex for senior citizens, they are still working on having a lodge approved as the council feels that Holden can afford both.

President Hallett extended the Chambers vote of thanks to the village council for the efforts put forth to rejuvenate Holden

Ryley farmers expect to increase the rapeseed crop by 150 percent over last year while growing the same amount of wheat. Oats and barley crops are expected to show a drop of twenty percent.

Farmers in the Camrose area have seeded four percent of the wheat crop and three percent of the rapeseed acreage. Seeding of other crops has not started

Two percent of rapeseed acreage has been seeded around Holden with a start having made on wheat acreage

Holden farmers expect to increase rapeseed production by eighty percent while growing the same amount of barley and rye. Wheat production is expected to drop ten percent while oats will decrease by twenty percent

Round Hill farmers made a start on planting of spring wheat with no other crops being seeded last week

Rapeseed production will increase ninety percent while rye crops are expected to be the same as last year. Oats and barley will drop ten percent while wheat acreage will decline by twenty percent

There was no seeding done, last week, in the Rosalind, Daysland and Hay Lakes areas although seeding was expected in those regions this week

Did you forget money in the bank?

Thousands of Canadians put money away in various banks in the country, and then seemingly proceed to forget about it

This has been the experience of banks over a period of many years, and years ago the Dominion Government, moved to acquire the money in trust, until a legitimate claimant turns up, if ever

The banks, which operate under dominion government charter, are required to list accounts in Canada which have not moved in nine years or more, where the amount is ten dollars and more. If not claimed prior to December 31 of this year, the monies listed will revert to the dominion government, in trust

The record, published recently in the Canada Gazette, runs to a booklet fully an inch thick, with some 606 pages of listings. Most, naturally, centre on the larger communities

In some cases, they represent funds accruing to estates which have not known of the account, in others they represent people who have moved away, in others, they represent community organizations which have folded, or where a change of officers lost track of funds.

A search of the records reveals the following list of funds for people or banks in this region, and friends or relatives might instigate contact between the depositor or his family and the banks

Toronto Dominion, Charlie Champion, $16.41 and The Candlelighters (under Irene Eby) $13.87 in the Camrose Branch of the Toronto-Dominion.

Bank of Commerce, Norman Grinde of Wetaskiwin, $31.05 in the Banff Branch of the Bank of Commerce, Susie Iverson, Tofield, $371 85 in the Jasper Avenue Branch of the Bank of Commerce, Kenneth M McPherson, Wetaskiwin, $128 75, John V Arvidson, Wetaskiwin, $85.90, and Stanley H. Hendrickson, Wetaskiwin, $16.01, all in the Wetaskiwin Branch of the Bank of Commerce, George Gorman (payee the Royal Trust), $18, and Domenico Moretto, $420 75, both in the Camrose Branch of the Bank of Commerce; Wilfred Van, Tofield, $17 13, Mundare Bank of Commerce

Bank of Montreal: Alvin Golka, Viking, $91 18, 85th and 82nd Branch, Edmonton, Nadean Sandmaier, Heisler, $11.27, Jasper Ave., Edmonton, William Erick Allen, Forestburg, $170.34, Forestburg, David Larry Dorward, Viking, $19.66, and Maureen Kelly, Viking, $19.08, both in Viking branch, Arnold Leib, Wetaskiwin, $66.54, Wetaskiwin

Royal Bank, Camrose Lodge BPOE $26 07, and Irene L Kron, Connecticut, $17.80 both in Camrose branch

Farming is farmers' business

Reacting to a suggestion from the Retail Council of Canada, calling for the establishment of a new Federal Food Policy Agency and a Private Sector Consultative Committee to coordinate and develop a Canadian Food Policy, Dobson Lee of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture was adamant that farming is the farmers' business. "We will not accept a decision-making, consultative, advisory or representational system where non-farm representatives are invited to be the vehicle through which the government is advised on the farmers' business."

He also said the bedrock on which Canadian agricultural and food policy must be built is the development and protection of the farming industry — regarding it as "a vital national resource, economic and social, of unique and fundamental value and importance."

Garden Club gives seeds to children

by Doris Brown

Members of the Tofield Garden Club met at the home of Audrey Brown last Tuesday evening.

Twenty-two children have applied for and received seeds and bulbs for their gardens from the club

On Tuesday evening, May 23rd, the Garden Club is hosting James Edgar of Edmonton who will show slides on plant life and scenery of Canada and Hawaii

This showing of slides will be held in the Arts and Crafts room at the arena and will be open to the public

The "Flea Market" which is to be held on May 28th was discussed

Many tables have already been rented and once again pie and coffee will be served all afternoon

The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, June 6th at the arena with Iewan R. Evans, a plant pathologist from Edmonton, as guest speaker for the evening. His topic will be the control of diseases and pests in garden and greenhouse crops, trees and shrubs and houseplants

This meeting will also be open to the public and all interested persons are invited to attend

Moore Memorial to be completed

Plans for the Terri Moore Memorial Adventure Playground in Irma are well underway

The three main forts in the playground are expected to be constructed this month (May) and a twenty-foot wave slide bed and a fourteen-foot tube are already on their way to the Irma School for inclusion in the playground

It is expected that the playground will be completed and ready for use by the coming summer

At the present time, the Terri Moore Memorial Fund has $777 in its account and is registered by a recreation grant

The playground was the brainchild of Miss Moore when she was a popular teacher at the Irma School She was killed in a traffic accident a short while back and the students and staff decided to complete her project, with the aid of contributors, in her memory

The History of Mother's Day

The tradition of wearing a carnation on Mother's Day was started seventy years ago by Anna Jarvis. Anna devoted her life to working for nationwide observance of this important holiday. A colored carnation means your mother is living while a white carnation indicates that she is deceased.

Anna Jarvis is also responsible for setting aside the second Sunday in May for Mother's Day. On May 8, 1914, just seven years after Anna had started her work, both houses of Congress passed a bill making Mother's Day a yearly observance.

"Charm deceives and beauty vanishes, but a woman who fears the Lord, she is to be praised. – Proverbs 31:30.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

As the spring season is here, it is time to organize kids for softball-hardball. There are some people in every community that are working very hard to see that these sports are promoted and organized. It's a difficult job, I know, but keep at it, you're doing a good job.

One thing I'd like to encourage this year during the softball and baseball season, is more parent participation. Help the coaches with the children, drive out-of-town games, or umpire a game. These jobs all help make the coaches' duties a lot easier. I'd also like to encourage you to make the effort to get out and watch some games. So, participate with your children

INTRODUCES
A RADICALLY NEW CONCEPT IN CARPET BACKINGS

Unlike conventional foam-backed carpets, the ULTRABAC sponge mixture actually penetrates the carpets' fibres themselves. Which means that, once the ULTRABAC has cured, the carpet tufts are virtually locked in place.

But with ULTRABAC the really big news is the unique, cream-coloured backing material itself.

A specially developed urethane sponge, rather than a foam, ULTRABAC goes far beyond conventional carpet backings, and offers you the features you've been looking for.

And while there are other cream-coloured backings in the marketplace, it takes more than just colour to make a backing ULTRABAC.

Look for the ultrabac name by Peerless and you can be assured you're investing in the best.

Wheat Pool organizing Prince Rupert terminal

Alberta Wheat Pool has begun to organize a consortium of grain handling companies with the objective of building and operating a modern grain terminal at Prince Rupert The consortium will be responsible to analyze feasibility studies dealing with economics, size, site and environmental restraints. It will also be responsible for negotiating with governments and financial institutions in order to arrange financing for the new terminal

A special meeting Tuesday of Albert Pool delegates unanimously endorsed a motion calling for a consortium with potential equity related to present grain handling positions in Canada The terminal is expected to export more than 100 million bushels of grain annually With 69 of 70 delegates present, the special meeting studied several West Coast proposals including a presentation by Transportation Minister Hugh Horner Tuesday morning

Most grain now moving to Prince Rupert originates with Alberta Wheat Pool and Saskatchwan Wheat Pool Delegates decided that a viable terminal operation will need participation of both these cooperatives. The delegates resolution specifies that equity in the terminal should jointly be not less than 51 percent in the hands of the three western Pools, the other one being Manitoba Pool [illegible]

It is anticipated that construction would require about two years. President Allan Macpherson expects that Alberta Pool will begin negotiations for a suitable consortium immediately. Financing will be sought as soon as the consortium completes study of the several reports available and feasibility is [illegible]

Traffic signs don't guarantee safety

"No driver should assume that because the traffic signal or sign is in his favor, he's safe," said Dr. Hugh M Horner, Deputy Premier and Minister of Transportation in commenting today on the theme of Traffic Safety Month - "Traffic safety begins with me."

"Drivers," he said, "have to be just as defensive, and just as alert when they have the right of way at intersections controlled by traffic signals, stop or yield signs, as if they did not

To back up his point, Dr Horner referred to accidents in the past few weeks which had involved drivers "running" red lights and stop signs.

"Three deaths resulted from these incidents," he said

Skeet shoot gets eighteen entrants

Eighteen shooters were on hand on Sunday for a skeet shoot sponsored by the [illegible] Club.

The shoot was held at the club's outdoor range which will be the site to two regularly weekly [illegible] the rest of the summer season.

Both skeet and trap shooting will take place every Sunday afternoon at two o'clock and every Tuesday evening starting at seven o'clock.

One of the top skeet shooters in the Province of Alberta, Doug Meeking of Calgary, was on hand to compete in Sunday's shoot

Mr Meeking had a good day winning in his own classification and emerging in a tie for the overall high score [illegible].

The Calgary shooter hit ninety-nine targets out of one hundred to win in the 'A' Class.

Tied for the best shooting of the day was Jim Mah of Camrose who won in the Class 'C', also hitting ninety-nine out of one hundred targets.

Chris Lizotte of Camrose was the winner in Class 'D' when he hit ninety-six out of one hundred targets

Two Camrose shooters won in other classes. Bob Adamson hit 98 targets to win in Class 'B' while Jim MacKay destroyed 93 targets to win in Class 'E'.

[illegible] FOR DAIRY CATTLE

A new concept catching on with dairy farmers should ensure the last cow to the feed bunk gets the same nutritious feed as the cow that gets there first.

Dr. J.W.G Nicholson, an animal nutritionist at Agriculture Canada's Fredricton, N.B., Research Station says a mixture of grain and forage - - called a 'total mixed ration' - - ensures all cows receive the proper feed mix.

With the use of a total mixed ration, most of the grain is fed in the barn. Cows can then be put through the parlor at the speed suited to good milking practice rather than to the rate of eating.

Tofield Lodge News

by Grace Phillips

Two recent musical events have been much enjoyed by the residents of the Lodge. The Community Choir composed of members from Holden, Ryley and Hastings Lake and conducted by Vic Dawson of Holden presented a much enjoyed concert on Sunday of last week. On Thursday evening, the Young People of the Tofield Mennonite Church under the leadership of Barry Regehr presented a series of favorite selections.

Jack Lowe has [illegible] returned to the Lodge [illegible] tion of slides of his trip which he intends to show to interested parties later.

Chapel service last Thursday was held by the Young People of the Tofield Mennonite Church with Miss Myrna Baergen as pianist. Attendance, as always was very good.

Craft days, under the capable direction of Mrs. Marg Lammerts, are busy times at the Lodge. Recently, basketry has been holding the interest of the residents. The finished products will be displayed at the annual fall bazaar, at which time they will be for sale.

An eagerly-anticipated event is to occur on the afternoon of May 24 when the Lions Senior [illegible] of Edmonton will visit the Tofield Lodge and present a concert

Each month, Ionic Chapter, No. 72, O.E.S. holds a birthday party for the residents of the Lodge, complete with birthday cake These honored in the May party on May 9 are: Mr. A. Schneider, Mr. H. Lawson, Mrs. Jessie Weir.

The April birthday people were: Miss Margaret McClymont, Mrs. Grace Lawson, Mrs Anne Anderson, Mr. Willard, Mr. Heffey, Mr John Harrison, Mrs. Pearl Thompson. Mrs. Mary Kope, member of the staff, was also honored.

Those with birthdays in March were: Mrs. Lillian Hays, Mrs. Mabel Bailey, Miss Margaret Petersen, Mrs. Annie Sirdar, Mrs. Florence Savage.

February birthdays were those of Mrs. Anna Maurer and Mrs. Janet McCowan. In January, the honored guests were Mr. Milo Stutzman and Mrs. Edith Bailey.

Mrs. Blanche Hauler of the Lodge is a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

On Fridays, at the Lodge, quilting is an engrossing occupation for many of the ladies. A quilt has just been completed and is on display in the craft room. Visitors are invited to view this result of many busy hours.

On April 18, Pete Korbie conducted his regular third-Tuesday bingo in the Lodge. As usual, this event was well attended and much enjoyed.

Each Wednesday, Mrs. Margaret Klose spends the day at the Lodge where she cares for the grooming needs of the residents.

Several residents of the Lodge regularly attend the meetings of the Tofield Golden Club held each Wednesday in the Legion Hall.

The Lodge is running at its full capacity of forty-four.

The warm sunny weather is of benefit to Lodge residents as it enables them to get outside for fresh air, sunshine and exercise. In spite of the opportunity for increased activity the residents welcome and appreciate visitors.

IF YOU DON'T HAVE 10 INCHES* OF INSULATION IN YOUR ATTIC, YOU'RE LOSING HEAT AND WASTING MONEY.
If your home is like 90% of Canadian homes, it's not properly insulated. This chart gives you an idea of how much you could save by bringing your home from the average level of insulation up to today's recommended standards. Of course, as energy costs go up, so will these savings.

	Oil Heat	Gas Heat	Electric Heat
ST JOHN'S	$209	N/A	$296
FREDERICTON	$204	N/A	$215
MONTREAL	$195	$178	$202
TORONTO	$159	$115	$242
WINNIPEG	$237	$162	$320
REGINA	N/A	$130	$390
EDMONTON	[illegible]	$140	N/A
VANCOUVER	$130	$120	$199

These savings are based on a typical 2-storey pre-war home of 1,100 square feet.
*Based on insulation material with R-3 value per inch (2.54 cm)

NOW HOMES BUILT BEFORE 1946 ARE ELIGIBLE FOR A HOME INSULATION GRANT OF UP TO $350.
If your home was built before 1946, is your principal residence, and is three storeys or less, you're eligible for a taxable grant of ⅔ of the cost of your insulation materials, up to a maximum of $350 (retroactive to materials purchased on or after September 1, 1977).
For FREE and complete information about how to insulate your home and how to apply for a grant, send in the coupon below.

The regular schedule ends on June 27th and will be followed by playoffs.

Ryley School grads draw overflow crowd

Highlight of the past week in Ryley was the senior high graduation, held on Saturday evening.

This is the first time in a number of years that Ryley has had a spring grad, could it be that this novelty is what caused so many people to attend?

The United Church ladies catered to a banquet of 240 plates, and later on at the exercises in the school auditorium, many guests were not able to find seats, as the overflow crowds were forced to find a place in the [illegible] walls.

The gym was traditionally decorated with a canopy of streamers which completely hid the usual sights of overhead lights and basketball nets.

The 23 graduates entered the gym to the processional march played by veteran grad music maker, Harold Parsons (Mr Parsons has played the piano at graduation for 38 years).

Andre Nimchuk, as the Master of Ceremonies opened the program, he was quickly followed by Donna Yoder, who related some funny stories about the graduates in their early years.

The theme for the graduation, "Do You Know Where You're Going To?" was sung by Vanesa Maaren, accompanied by pianist Esther Weins.

Susan Stumbo, as valedictorian presented a message which closed in the apt encouragement, "believe in yourself".

Fred Reinholt, superintedant of schools, also made many fitting remarks in his comments to the graduates. More encouragement came from Mr Clarke the school principal who reminded the graduates that they could learn a lesson from each and every teacher, whether good or bad, and that it was up to them as the future leaders of [illegible] their best to [illegible].

Diplomas were presented by the incomparable duo of Mr. Clarke and Doris Van Tettenborn.

Various members of the class were honored at the presentation of awards, included in the program.

Shirley Reist won the J.D. MacDonald trophy, presented by the staff of Ryley School for a combination of good marks, involvement in school activities, and the respect and friendship of the students.

Academic awards for the highest standings in grade 12 went to Katy Wilde and Susan Stumbo.

Fay Strilchuk won the girls athletic trophy, while Gerry Anderson won the boys. Both of these trophies are awarded to the two people most deserving in school sponsored sports.

Man injured in accident

A Ryley man suffered minor injuries in a single vehicle mishap which occurred on Sunday.

Mark Phillips received minor scratches and bruises when his vehicle went out of control and overturned. The accident occurred about six and one-half miles east of Tofield.

RCMP in Tofield are investigating five thefts, or attempted thefts, which occurred during the past week.

Allen Hellekson of South Poe reported the loss of a gas driven water pump which was valued at $250 while a quantity of money was missing when Oren Automotive was entered.

Mrs Rudy Mizera reported the theft of her son's 10-speed bicycle from their property in Ryley while Donna Mills of Tofield indicated that her car was entered and a flashlight and cheque book are missing.

Apparently nothing was taken when the Alberta Wheat Pool in Tofield was entered sometime on Saturday.

School architect named

William Hnidan Architects Ltd. have been commissioned for the building of the new elementary core school at Tofield.

The Building Committee of the Board of Education toured several core schools and interviewed the three architectural firms, Wood and Gardner, Sinclair and Naito, and William Hnidan, before making the selection.

The Building Committee, consisting of Board of Education members, Armitage, Sears, Moddle and Central Office staff, have met with Tofield Town Council re the choice of school sites.

The site has been chosen, and the new school will be built on the south east portion of the present school grounds.

The teaching staff of Tofield School, together with the building committee have provided the architect with many ideas on the instructional design of the new [illegible]

Ideas are welcomed from the community as well. The architect is presently doing sketch plans which will attempt to incorporate these in the design of the new school.

The building is scheduled for completion during the [illegible]

Alberta Education has approved financial support for sufficient instructional space to accommodate 225 students, including a one-station gymnasium.

Since the school will eventually expand to hold 375 students an appeal has been made to Alberta Education School Building Board for consideration of support for a larger gymnasium at this time.

Pool grant is received

The Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society last week received from the office of John Batiuk M.L.A a cheque [illegible]

The money represents a grant applied for and received under a program announced by the Minister of Agriculture, Marvin Moore, on March 2, 1978.

At that time, it was announced that because of increased costs in building, the capital grant to agricultural societies would be increased to $75,000, from the previous level of $50,000.

The money received will be [illegible]

The capital debt on the indoor swimming pool complex will now be reduced to $7,817, quite a low figure considering that the facility is only three years old and is valued at approximately $350,000. People in Ryley and surrounding area have shown good support for the project, one that provides recreation for the whole family.

Holden plans spring 'grad'

"The Road Not Taken" is the theme chosen for the first Holden School spring graduation in the Holden Community Hall on May 27th.

The Graduation will begin with a 6 30 p m banquet for the graduands and their invited guests, to be followed by exercises at 8.00 p.m. The exercises are open to the public.

This year, four awards will be presented - two will go to students with the first and second highest averages in the matriculation program. These awards will be given by the Beaver Local A.T.A. and Royal Purple respectively.

The student with the highest average in the general program will receive the Bruce Agricultural Society award and the BPO Elks will be making a presentation to the student who has contributed most to school spirit.

Guest speaker at the exercises will be Arthur Micklich, Holden Junior High teacher.

Civic holiday set by Holden council

Friday, June 9th, has been declared a civic holiday in the Village of Holden.

Action to declare the day as a civic holiday was taken at a regular meeting of village [illegible]

Three - readings were given to a by-law which set the mill rate for the village for 1978.

Regular meeting days of council have been changed for the future. Meetings will be held on the third Wednesday of each month in the future, instead of the second Thursday.

It was agreed that four members of council and the Chamber of Commerce would attend the breakfast for Cabinet Ministers, scheduled for May 29th.

Accounts for payment, amounting to $16,[illegible].54 were approved.

Minutes of a regular meeting on April 13, and special meetings on April 20 and May 9, were approved.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a regular meeting held on May 11th.

Tofielder appointed

A Tofield man has been reappointed to sit on the Alberta Apprenticeship and Trade Certification Board.

John Hutchinson of Tofield was named to sit on the Board as a full member, with his term of office set to expire at the end of 1980. Mr Hutchinson had been an alternate member for one year, as an employee representative.

Mr Hutchinson is a power electrician by trade and is a district manager in Tofield for Calgary Power. He is also an executive of the Calgary Power Employees' Association.

Announcement of Mr Hutchinson's appointment was made late last week by Dr A E Hohol, Minister of Alberta Advanced Education and Manpower.

WATCH OUT FOR THESE BIRDS

Election scotched

All sorts of plans and hopes were dashed last week when the prime minister announced he would not immediately call an election, although an examination of his further statements indicate he is still playing games with words. He indicated his own feeling that the House of Commons should continue to sit until next spring, but then went on to qualify these remarks with several possibilities that the test might come sooner. But that, naturally, is the art of the politician.

It's no understatement to say that Liberal members and candidates were just as surprised as Opposition forces were. Many of the Liberal committees had gone to considerable expense in gearing up for the struggle they were almost certain was imminent, just as many Conservative and NDP committees had done.

Even the Chief Returning Officer had spent huge sums of money in gearing his operations, and constituency returning officers had been led to do the sort of thing, though obviously on a much lesser scale.

Now Mr. Hamel, the Chief Returning Officer, is being forced to get racing towards several bye-elections on the old constituency boundaries, boundaries which were thought to have become obsolete with the introduction of the new, and the "certainty" that a general election would preclude any further use of the older boundaries.

Especially when it's considered that the candidates will sit for such a short period of time, it all seems so pointless, and such an extravagant waste of money. Instead of being elected for a possible five year term, they'll barely have five months before being sent back to the hustings.

Rarely do we feel that money is wasted when it is spent in maintaining any facet of responsible democracy as we know it, and that would include the maintenance of the ballot box to ensure that every constituency, every group of citizens, is represented as fairly and as completely as possible.

But we do feel when the process of constituency representation has been abandoned, when the constituency is allowed to go without a representative for a longer period of time than the newly elected member will sit, that the exercise tends to become a wasteful political ploy which can only disenchant the voters, as well as many members of Mr. Trudeau's own party.

Survey indicates rain can be added

At the request of the Minister of Agriculture, the Honorable Marvin Moore, the Alberta Weather Modification Board appointed a committee to study all aspects of precipitation enhancement programs. The committee's summary report is available upon request.

The report reviews the basic concept of precipitation theory and some history on weather modification.

On the basis of the information gathered, the committee concluded that it is reasonable to expect that snow pack could be increased by 10 to 30 percent and summer rainfall by approximately 10 percent. There is a question as to whether results from projects in other parts of the world can be duplicated in Alberta. Some further work will be necessary to study our particular topography, temperatures and air currents created by our mountain valleys.

A survey of 53 projects involving the seeding of 361,000 square miles in Canada, the U.S.A and South Africa was also conducted. The seeding methods used were ground generators, aircraft, or a combination of both. The survey included evaluations of the projects.

Several individuals associated with the U.S.A projects were personally interviewed.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — The family doctor provoked an interesting conversation not too long ago. He claimed that nearly 90 percent of the patients he was seeing didn't really need the services of a doctor. He told of one man who came in with a scraped knee, and when he was told that a simple washing and bandaiding would have solve his problem, the man winked slyly and said: "Yes, but this way I didn't have to buy the band aid."

Medicare costs are going out of sight and the prime reason is because the system is being abused. That means the doctors are being abused, too, and we're losing them to the lucrative, shorter work week climes of the U.S.

It's not only medicare which is being abused. So is unemployment insurance. So is welfare. The result is that people who really need help, meet with hostile attitudes and there's not as much help available.

Surely is a reasonable society there are ways out of such misuse of the systems which have been in the same time such a force for good and for bad.

How about a personal accounting system for every Canadian?

It might work something like this. Your Social Insurance Number becomes the number used for everything connected with governments at both levels - including medicare. Everybody in the country starts with the same number of credits. When you use medicare facilities, unemployment payments or welfare, there's a debit registered in your account. When you pay taxes, a record is kept of how much, and the same for unemployment insurance payments.

I'm not suggesting that this bookkeeping system would govern how much aid any individual is entitled to receive when benefits are needed, but I am thinking that perhaps it has relevance. Time passes, citizens should receive differing pensions, depending on how much they have taken from society, or contributed to society.

It wouldn't mean that someone who has had the misfortune to be sick a lot and on unemployment insurance a good deal would get no pension, because there would be a floor set for pension payments, and those who had drawn the most from society during their lives would get that.

On the other hand, those who had played the game with morality as well as according to the rules - and had been fortunate in their health - would be entitled to higher pensions with a reasonable ceiling imposed.

It might just make a difference in the claims people made on society if they knew it would cost them in the long run, and it would provide some incentive for those who don't use the expensive social service structure of Canada, yet pay for it in taxes.

Trees and history

Trees can be a living link with the past. Think of the number of times a tree has been used to commemorate an important event in our history.

The evergreen tree has been almost universally accepted as a symbol of Christ bringing light to the world. Records show that as far back as 1531, the evergreen was used in Alsace, now part of Germany, to celebrate Christmas. The custom of decorating Christmas trees spread throughout Germany during the next century and was adopted by Finland about 1800. By 1830 the custom had spread to Norway and Denmark.

Christmas trees were first introduced to France from Germany in 1840 and were brought to England by Queen Victoria's German born husband, Prince Albert, in 1841. In that year he set up a Christmas tree at Windsor Castle. By the middle of the nineteenth century, the Christmas tree had found its way to all British homes and hearts. Although the traditions that surround trees are as varied as the people who make up the North American culture, almost all of them closely associate Christmas with an evergreen tree.

However the evergreen is not the only tree that has been used to record past events. The cedars of Lebanon are associated with the building of the Temple of Solomon in biblical days, and the bread leaved conifer, maidenhair or ginkgo, has been used since time immemorial in China to commemorate the building of temples.

Almost every community in Canada has trees which were planted on special occasions or to record the visits of distinguished people. A sugar maple and a red oak for example planted side by side in the grounds of the governor general's official residence in Ottawa, record the visit of the Queen Mother and the late King George VI in 1939.

Probably one of the best examples of the close association that trees have had, and still have with our heritage, was the use of the maple leaf in Canada's official flag.

Alberta also has its commemorative trees (one of the oldest of these was a Manitoba maple that stood on the site of the present Highways Building in the legislative grounds in Edmonton. It was said to have been planted by a Hudson's Bay Company factor who lived in Fort Edmonton in the nineteenth century. When the Highways Building was built around 1960, the tree, known as the Hardisty maple, was carefully dug up and moved to another location in the grounds. Unfortunately, the upheaval was too much for the old tree. It died shortly after the move. Nevertheless, it was so revered, even when dead, that its trunk was cut into pieces and distributed as mementos to many Albertans.

Last year the Alberta government sent a shipment of trees to Japan, which was followed this year by a shipment to Korea. Both shipments were sent as symbols of the ties of friendship that have been established between these countries and the province of Alberta.

Probably the person who has done most to link our history with trees is our former lieutenant governor, the late Hon. Grant MacEwan. In 1973 he planted a black ash on the legislative grounds commemorating the late Hon. Percy Page's term as lieutenant governor of Alberta (1959 - 1965).

While in office, Dr MacEwan travelled the length and breadth of the province with trees in the trunk of his car. When a commemorative occasion presented itself, out would come a tree. On one of these occasions, Dr MacEwan was very worried about his tree's chances of survival. It was fall, and the young tree was long past its time for planting. However, it was planted, and the Roman Catholic priest, in charge of the ceremony, promised to give it tender loving care. A few weeks later, Dr MacEwan ran into the priest and asked after his tree. "The tree", said the priest, "is flourishing! I sprinkled it with holy water."

I'm sure on occasion the tree planting ceremony generated great excitement. The man digging the hole hit a metal object. Everybody present was sure he had digged up a rare artifact. However, when the object was finally brought to the surface, it turned out to be a beer bottle of very recent vintage - part of modern society's litter problem.

While in office, Dr. MacEwan founded a unique organization called the Young Alberta Tree Planting Club. Each lume he was invited to participate in a school tree planting ceremony, he enrolled as many of the children as he could in his club. The only qualification for membership is that the applicant must promise to plant one tree a year for the rest of his life.

Today the Young Alberta Tree Planting Club boasts 12,000 members, 300 of which were added this year.

THERMIZATION OF MILK

New techniques developed in milk storing may help dairy processors operate on a five-day rather than a seven-day work week.

Dr J.A. Elliott of Agriculture Canada's Food Research Institute in Ottawa says one recent development is the pre-storage heat treatment of bulk milk, known as "thermization". This process enables milk processors in store bulk quantities of milk with no deterioration. Milk can be safely stored over a weekend.

For the system to be effective, processors must take care that all tanks and lines are regularly cleansed and sanitized.

Gladys L. Balog

How quickly time passes!

I can't believe I've been in Ryley for a month. During this time, I've had the opportunity to meet many of you. A question frequently asked of me is, "What does a Home Economist do?" Progressive Farming

Do you have a farm dugout? Did the water turn black and develop an offensive odor last winter?

If you have encountered this problem, or wish to avoid it, you should treat your dugout water three times a year to control the algae and once a year to control the acquatic [illegible]

Ron Johnston, water and sewage engineer with Alberta Agriculture, says the water turns black in a dugout and develops an unpleasant odor when it contains a high concentration of organic matter. When the ice prevents oxygen from coming in contact with the water, the oxygen already in the water is soon used up, and the organic material starts to break down. During its decomposition, it produces hydrogen sulphide gas which, in addition to smelling like rotten eggs, reacts with the organic matter and causes the water to turn black. The problem does not occur in the summer because the water is exposed to unlimited oxygen in the air, and any hydrogen suphide gas that is produced soon dissipates.

You should do the first treatment for algae as early in the spring as possible, and follow it by a treament in midsummer and again in the fall. "Do not wait to do the first treatment in the spring until you can see the algae," says Mr Johnston. "By that time there may already be enough organic matter in the water to cause a problem next winter."

He recommends using copper sulphate (bluestone) at a rate of one pound per 100,000 gallons of dugout capacity. The average sized-dugout would need five to 10 pounds of copper sulphate.

The time to treat for aquatic weed growth is in late June or early July. A chemical such as diquat (Region A) is recommended for this treatment. It should be mixed with water and applied as a spray to aquatic weeds along the banks of the dugout, both above and below the water level. Water that has been treated with diquat should not be used for [illegible] [illegible] clude removing any trees growing around the dugout, to prevent their leaves from falling into the water, and diverting drainage water from a barnyard or feedlot away from the dugout. Apart from causing bacterial contamination of the dugout, the water that drains from either of these areas contains nutrients which promote the growth of algae and aquatic plants. Mr. Johnston stresses that anyone who is planning to make a dugout should be very careful to choose a location that will not be affected by drainage from a barnyard or a feedlot.

Information on building a farm dugout and on the use of chemicals to control weed growth in an existing dugout can be obtained from your regional agricultural engineering technologist. He can be contacted through your district agriculturist.

Weather slows seeding

Varied weather conditions throughout the area has prevented some farmers from planting any seed while others have neared the half-way mark with some crops.

Tofield farmers already have one-half of the spring wheat crop planted while at the other extreme, farmers in the Rosalind region are still waiting to commence seeding operations.

In addition to being half done with wheat seeding, Tofield farmers have completed eight percent of the oat crop, along with five percent of rapeseed and barley [illegible]

Farmers around Camrose have seeded eighteen percent of the wheat crop, ten percent of rapeseed, five percent of barley, and have made a start to seeding oats.

Round Hill farmers have seeded fifteen percent of wheat and ten percent of the rape crop, although they have not made a start on either oats and barley.

Ten percent of the proposed wheat crop in Hay Lakes has been seeded. Seeding of oats, barley and rapeseed stands at five percent.

Farmers around Daysland have completed seeding ten percent of the rape crop and two percent of wheat. Other crops have not been started.

Five percent of the wheat has been seeded in Holden and a start has been made with rapeseed. Other crops have yet to be started.

Farmers in the Rosalind region are waiting for good weather to begin seeding operations.

"A general purpose weed killer? A work-horse herbicide? I recommend one of these:

The 2,4-D and MCPA liquid weed killers have been in use for some years now they aren't new, but they sure are effective. Effective in the many places you need them against broadleaf weeds in cereal crops, hay fields and pastures. In sensitive crops like oats and flax, against Canada thistle against many of the annual weeds as well as the perennials, and as a component of the tank mixes that control the hard-to-kill groups of weeds

I carry the full line, and I'd like to see you pick up the one you need now so that you can spray early and get the best results

Mel Warren - pushing for rural development

by Eileen Fairbrother

"I'm just a resource person," said Mel Warren, coordinator of Rural Development Project No. 4. "It's the towns themselves who do the work"

Mr. Warren works with 11 communities between Chauvin and Lamont. He described his job as "encouraging industry to be area and finding someone to do it." The towns are given a provincial grant and then together hire their project co-ordinator.

He attends monthly meeting with a representative from each town but he declines to take credit for any improvements. "Nobody in this world likes to give credit to other people!" He said the towns learn the most from each other. "This way one town makes one mistake instead of 11 towns making the same mistake 11 times."

Mr. Warren said he notices a big difference between Canadian and American investors. Americans jump at an investment opportunity, he said, whereas a Canadian has to be shown all the plans and convinced he'll make a profit before he'll invest.

"Something all towns have that they can sell is livability," he said, pointing to Lamont which has taken advantage of its closeness to Elk Island Park to encourage residential development. He said Lamont now has 17 new [illegible] and 13 new lots.

He described Tofield as "the best growing town in Alberta" with the commercial area [illegible] up with residential development thus eliminating the need for high residential taxes.

Mr. Warren said industries can look for cheaper rent in rural areas. Presently he is working on spring advertisements to run in the Edmonton Journal. He said they are designed to show people in metropolitan areas that there are opportunities in rural regions. The advertising cost is divided among the towns with all of them featured in one ad.

Two industries recently underway in the area are ready-mix cement plants and a trailer factory.

Mr. Warren has designed and built models of a Micro-mini motor home and a Pickup-and-Pickup Camper.

He is looking for someone to invest in the construction of them. He said he will sell the Picnic - and - Pickup camper and truck for $5000 and give away the right to make them provided the industry is set up in this area. He said they are a good investment as smaller and lighter motor homes and campers are becoming more popular with the increase in gasoline cost. They are made with a tubular steel frame and aluminum sheeting.

Mr. Warren said his job as project co-ordinator is a full time one with long hours. Much of his time is taken up travelling to and from communities for evening meetings. Right now he is doing a survey of 11 communities to see if a group plan would be cheaper.

Mr. Warren has lived in Holden for 16 years and has worked with the Rural Development Project since it started three years ago.

As I see it

by Dr Walt Buck, MLA
Clover Bar

Last week in the Legislature, the Official Opposition moved a motion of non-confidence in the Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care, Gordon Miniely Led by M L A for Little Bow, Ray Speaker, the Official Opposition zeroed in on Mr Miniely's lack of concern for Albertans dependent on health care and his lack of competence in dealing generally with his responsibilities The potential for deterioration in the quality of health care resulting from lack of sound policies and government inaction is not acceptable to the Social Credit caucus

We are convinced that the Minister has shown bad judgement in budgeting 2 6 million dollars for budget appeals when by his own calculation, total budget deficits will be over 13 million

Centralizing control of health care, which suggests that local authorities are incapable of running their own show is absolutely a ridiculous stand for the Minister to take Hospital boards can neither plan new programs or upgrade facilities without departmental approval

The Minister has given no assistance or direction to hospitals as to what areas should be cut back to meet inadequate budgets and Miniely has stated on several occasions that "hospital construction has been excessive in its costs due to frills in building and designs of a Cadillac nature on a Chevrolet budget However he did not in the Legislature give one indication as to any specific examples

Finally, the expectations of various hospital boards including Grande Prairie, Vermilion Drayton Valley and Wetaskiwin have been built up by the Minister only to be followed by delays and non decisions by the Minister

It is significant that the Minister did not rise to defend himself against these legitimate concerns and accusations

Needless to say the non confidence motion was easily defeated by the government's overwhelming majority but that doesn't eliminate or minimize the problems faced by Hospital Boards and administrators in Alberta It will simply alert them to the fact that they face additional problems in the future

If you have concerns or suggestions please phone my offices in Fort Saskatchewan at 998 3376 or in Edmonton at 427 2241

Believe me once you see the Adja Silver Marker in action you'll be pleased This remarkable marker is self-contained 12-volt powered electronically timed, but with a manual override tool. It mounts on any sprayer or fertilizer spreader and it lays down a series of silver colored marks — marks that stay visible for several days regardless of weather conditions

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

This last week I found what I thought, a very entertaining short reading. It made me think of my own grandmothers and how they are changing.

The poem is entitled "Today's Grandma".

"The old rocking chair will be empty today
For Grandma no longer is in it.
She's off in her car in her office or shop.
And bonnets around every minute.
No one can put Grandma up on a shelf
She's versatile, forceful, dynamic,
That isn't pie in the oven, you know
Her baking today is ceramics
You won't see her trundling off early to bed
From her place by a warm chimney nook.
Her typewriter clickety clocks through the night
For Grandma is writing a book.
She isn't content with any old thought
With meagre and second hand knowledge.
So don't bring your mending to Grandma to do
For Grandma's gone back to college."

Ellen Johnstone, Airdrie

Because more and more people are retiring at an earlier age and are more physically fit than ever before, recreation must be made visibly available We need greater opportunities in areas of voluntary service, recreation, and citizen participation for seniors. The first Brownie Pack held a very successful tea and bake sale Saturday afternoon in the Lutheran Church kitchen They served strawberry shortcake to the many who attended, while the table of baking cleared out quickly

Mrs. Krepielnicki and members of her Ryley Home Ec. sewing classes presented a fashion show of the clothing they had made, last Monday night In a varied and interesting program, the girls modelled their garments while Mrs. Valerie Shipka acted as commentator A hanch was served afterwards The show was attended by a lot of people and enjoyed by all.

May 8-13 was anti-litter week at the school Familiar green and white stickers have been springing up all over the school and these students who participated in sbcool ground clean-up received a "pitch in" sticker.

Confronting Your Faith

Harold Boettger
Pastor of Salem Mennonite Church

With Pastor Harold Boettger of the Salem Mennonite Church.

"And the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch" Acts 11 26b. Bible students will identify the first usage of the term 'Christian' as a derogatory name given to those early disciples or followers of Jesus who had been so attracted to Him because of His self-giving life style, and accompanying teaching that they were willing to suffer ridicule in deference to His Way To be called Christian was tantamount to being counted a heretic or a traitor - a mark for insult, injury and often death

How different from our time when it is sometimes considered almost a breach of human rights if found in North America not to be thought of as Christian People are insulted if it is intimated that they are not Christian, even though they make no profession of faith in, and no commitment to, the Person and Way of Jesus Christ

What does being Christian really mean in light of New Testament teaching?

First, a Christian is someone who has come into a personal relationship of fellowship and trust in God through reconciliation, an experienced through God's redemptive plan, offered freely to the human family through faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour John 3 16, 17 with Titus 3 11-14 Though man was originally without sin and enjoyed fellowship with God, that relationship was broken through disobedience which left its blighting effect on the whole human family, to the extent that all stand guilty before God, as various scriptures indicate. "For all have sinned and come short of the Glory of God" - Romans 3:23 "All we like sheep have gone astray, we have turned everyone to his own way" - Isaiah 53 6a "But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" - Isaiah 64 6 Consequently, man in his natural and sinful state is separated from fellowship with his Creator, keeping him from experiencing all the good which God has planned for him, until he comes into a reconciling experience with God on the basis of the provision of faith in the atoning work of Christ accomplished through His death at Calvary, and repentance from sin and dead works Ephesians 2 1-13

Secondly, a Christian is someone who recognizes God's claim on his life by creation and redemption - I Cor 6 19, 20 Of his own volition, he surrenders the throne of his life to the rule and authority of 'King Jesus' who by the indwelling Holy Spirit assumes lordship over every area of life, transforming, guiding, enabling and empowering it in the service of Christ for His glory. Romans 8 1-17

In the third place, a Christian is someone who sees in the life and teaching of Jesus the Christian life or model of life, and with the help of the Spirit seeks to make His teaching and example practical in everyday living and relationships. There are many and varying lifestyles to seek, copy, or uphold, such as; the current regional culture, the past traditional or the ethnical, etc

Recently, much emphasis has been placed on the importance of rediscovery of our 'roots' as a way to establish personal identity, worth, values and objectivity Good as this may appear, it offers little to build bridges over the chasms that divide and pit people and nations against each other, unless those roots take us far enough back to find our origin and purpose in the Creator, God, as declared in Acts 17 24-28

It is my belief that in the life and teaching of Jesus Christ we have God's model of a visible way of living, which if taken seriously, will transform life and rewrite history The time is late, the need acute, and a place to begin for those of us who claim the name 'Christian' is to invite Christ by His Spirit to make it real in us

The grounds around the Lodge will soon be beautified The Tofield Garden Club has kindly given of their specialized knowldege in planning the flower beds

There is a large patio on the east side of the Lodge which would be an excellent place for the residents to sit during summer afternoons

Unfortunately, there is no patio furniture at the Lodge Perhaps some organization would like to make furnishing the patio a project

Delegations attend Tofield Council meet

Three delegations attended the last regular meeting of Tofield Town Council to discuss a variety of topics.

Residents of Beaverhill Drive were in attendance to object to a proposal which would make Beaverhill Drive a through street for traffic heading east. Objections included the increase in traffic, danger to children, reckless drivers and an increase in noise.

Council agreed to refer the delegation's protests to Provincial Planning.

Councillors agreed to supply garbage bags to the Social Studies 10 Class from Tofield School and agreed to have the parks committee supervise a clean-up promotion conducted by the class.

Bill Chin attended the meeting to request additional parking for his new commercial building. The request was referred to the by-law committee.

A review of the outline plan for development in the west area of the town was discussed by councillors and then tabled for a report from the town's engineer.

A G Clark was appointed as a weed inspector with said appointment to continue until the motion is repealed.

Councillors agreed that the black dirt from the excavation for the new reservoir would not be sold for the present time.

First reading was given to a rezoning by-law for a development planned by Belvedere Developments and the final two readings for a by-law regarding a mobile home subdivision were given.

Stabilization payments

Many farmers in Western Canada received cheques in the last few weeks representing payments under the Western Grain Stabilization Act, the total amounting to some $60 million in the initial payment.

It reminds us that additional emphasis should be placed on the fact that this is not a government hand-out to the already wealthy farmers of Western Canada, but simply payment of an insurance claim. The fact the farmers have already paid substantial sums into these coffers in the first place needs to be given great stress.

Far too many people see these large sums going out, but never see them being paid in. This was brought home very forcibly a short time ago when talking with one western agricultural expert who was interviewed by a farm broadcaster in Ontario. Th~ discussion centered on payments being made to farmers, and a chat before going on the air made it painfully obvious the farm broadcaster hadn't the slightest conception that this was farmer's money, paid in by them, now being paid back, and costing the government nothing.

Our friend practically wrote the script, set up leading questions to bring the fact out, and the interview was excellent. But how often do we get that sort of chance?

Well run

We were impressed recently with a comment made by the Chancellor of the University of Alberta, Ron Dalby, and feel his statement should gain wider circulation than the February issue of Folio, a university paper.

"Before I became Chancellor, I heard about how inefficient the University was" said Mr. Dalby. After four years of close contact, however, he is now able to say the University administration compares very favorably with administrations in business government. "I have dealt with large companies, and I feel the administration . . . has many fewer people . . . than I would have expected to run such a large institution, fewer than in business or government departments of comparable size."

Mr. Dalby is well qualified to make the comparison. He has served both in Canada and the United States as president and chief executive officer of several companies involved in the petroleum industry, industrial manufacturing, transportation and mining and for a time was executive vice president of three major Alberta utility companies. He is well known and highly respected in energy circles in Alberta.

Another hard hitting snippet from Mr. Dalby's comments follows. "I am pleased that the University has been able to manage so well under restrictions and limited finances. It is unfortunate that our government, which has insisted on tighter controls in University spending, has not given better leadership by showing that it is equally committed to tight controls in government growth and government spending."

Centering on his conviction that the nature and work of the university inevitably hinges on excellence and the pursuit of truth, Mr. Dalby is convinced of the need to think in terms of enrolment quotas if the institution is not to compromise itself by reducing standards.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (GP) — He isn't even running in the election, but Quebec's new Liberal leader, Claude Ryan, is going to have what could be a decisive effect on which party forms the next federal government.

There is now an alternate voice for federalism in the province of Quebec, and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is going to have a difficult time convincing voters that he alone can save confederation. Mr. Trudeau also wants to make his proposals for changing the Canadian constitution the centre piece of this campaign for re-election.

That will be impossible without bringing both Levesque and Ryan into the debate, to the detriment of focussing attention on Trudeau and the federal Liberals. Ryan isn't likely to make much difference on how the voters of Quebec cast their ballots federally, but he'll have tremendous effect on how voters in Ontario see things. They are much more likely to express concern over Canada's terrible economic state, submerging their concerns about national unity because of their faith in Ryan as the strongman for conciliation.

Claude Ryan, in fact, may lead the Trudeau Liberals like Mackenzie.

Mr. Trudeau is seen by Canadians as a strong leader, committed to holding Canada together, but not as a man who listens to others. Joe Clark has suffered because of the Trudeau image - even Trudeau's own ministers have been admitting that they haven't done that great a job; warning Canadians at the same time about the alternatives.

That's not a scenario which will play very well any more. It's difficult if not impossible to imagine any government making a worse ball-up over the Canadian economy than the Trudeau government, and there's no question the Conservative team is better equipped to create consensus. Canada is a country in which problems must be solved in the open through compromise, not through confrontation in the Trudeau style. The Liberal cabinet is a weak one, with one or two notable exceptions, and the responsibility for its weakness rests with the man who surrounded himself with Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

A Clark cabinet, on the other hand, would be more balanced in both strength and geographic representation. In addition Clark is much better fitted to bargain with Claude Ryan, and make no mistake about it, Claude Ryan will be premier in the province of Quebec after the next election.

Will the government ever get the message?

by Dan Mazankowski, M P

Do not embarrass the government. Do not pressure the politicians. Do not organize public rallies, demonstrations, or letter-writing campaigns.

This odiant message was put recently to Canada's 36,000 registered charitable groups by Revenue Canada, the taxation people in the now infamous Circular 70-3, the government attempted to set down narrow limits to permissable public activity by a charitable organization. Failure to comply, these organizations were told, would mean loss of their tax-exempt status - and an almost certain end to most of their activities in the public interest.

No matter how grave the injustice nor how serves the suffering, the circular sought to muzzle charitable groups such as the churches, Red Cross and Greenpeace and prevent them from urging government action. Coming from an administration which has repeatedly tried to stifle democratic dissent from its policies, as in Cabinet directives regarding the uranium cartel or the security services, it was difficult to believe the weak explanations offered that this latest move to intimidate Canadian citizens was only a "clarification" of the existing law.

Under heavy Progressive Conservative attack in the House of Commons, the government finally withdrew the circular. The victory was an uncertain one unfortunately, because government spokesmen insist they will continue to enforce the law according to their interpretation of it, circular or no circular. As a result, Canada's charitable organizations are left with the threat to curtail their public activities or face punitive action by Revenue Canada.

The government admits that the income tax law itself is silent on the definition of what constitutes a "charitable" versus a "political" activity. The basis of their interpretation rests on judicial decisions over the years which have appempted to flush out the meaning of the law. In every instance, these judicial interpretations are based on an English court case of 1891 - eighty-seven years ago!

Despite the vast changes since then in society, in government and in the role of charitable organizations, the government persists in its claim that its intimidation of charitable organizations is proper even if the only evidence it can muster is a court decision from another place in time.

The government is fooling no one but themselves. At best the guidelines represent an insensitive and harmfully misdirected interference with the right of citizens to change their society for the better. At worst, the Revenue Canada circular borders on sinister suppression of those who do not agree with each and every government policy. Charitable organizations all across Canada quite rightly condemned the circular and the motives behind its release.

Seven years ago the budget speech by Edgar Benson promised a review of the tax laws as they affect charitable organizations. Last year the government's own advisory council on volunteerism recommended a series of measures to safeguard citizens groups from political pressure. The government has had plenty of time to find a workable solution to a vague and outdated law. Yet they did not even take the trouble to consult with charitable organizations before issuing the circular.

Canadians have repeatedly sent strong reminders to the government in Ottawa that they will not tolerate intimidation or interference with their democratic rights.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

Did you notice the increased amount of families getting away for the weekend this past long weekend" Campung has become such a popular recreational activity that now even once-desolate campung sites are overcrowded. It seems everyone feels the desperate need to "get away" for the weekend.

I'm also a victim of that Friday night fever to pack a tent, some food and a case of beer to "get away" for the weekend. But, have you ever thought that you could participate in the same activities at home?

Sure, instead of driving 200 miles you could become an expert at home, lay-in the sun in your backyard and generally do nothing while staying at home. All the activities that you so eagerly rush away to do can be accomplished right here.

Think about recreation at home such as walking, bicycling, golfing in Tofield, swimming in Ryley, fishing at Black Nugget, barbequing or visiting with friends. Recreational activities can be found at home if you take a close enough look.

So, perhaps we can start looking to our own community for ways in which we can utilize our leisure time. Remember, you have a recreation department if you need assistance!

It is up to you, the community, to let these people know your ideas. Without your comment, how do they know what you want?

TENNIS LESSONS

Are you interested in taking tennis lessons? Tennis lessons will be held Monday and Wednesday evenings, commencing June 19, from 7:00-8:30 p.m. for four consecutive weeks. They will be held at the Tofield Arena with the instructor being from Viking.

SPRING GARDENING TIPS

In spring, even high-rise apartment dwellers sometimes get the urge to grow a garden.

Agriculture Canada's public services section offers the following gardening tips to apartment dwellers.

If you live in a south facing apartment with a balcony, all you need to grow your own vegetables are a few 20 kilogram bags of sterilized soil, a watering can and some seeds or young plants.

Punch some holes in the bags and plant the seeds or seedlings through the holes. Drainage is provided by perforating the bottom of the bags.

When the weather is warm enough, place the bags on the balcony and water as required.

CLC gains approval for ROTP

Following extensive negotiations over the past year with National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa, Kurt Hartviksen, Director of Admissions at Camrose Lutheran College, announced recently that the College has gained approval under the Regular Officer Training Plan of the Canadian Forces. Under the ROTP plan, a student receives training in aspects of military life with the Canadian Forces, while completing university studies. Upon graduation, the student receives not only the designated university degree, but also an officer's commission as a Lieutenant in the Forces.

During university studies, the student receives a monthly wage, free uniforms, dental and medical care, and university tuition, as well as an annual text book allowance. Summers are spent training in various military centres in Canada and abroad.

Mr. Hartviksen indicated that he is most pleased to see this opportunity open to students at Camrose Lutheran College.

Seeding operations are nearly finished

Seeding operations could be completed in most areas by the end of this week if weather conditions remain favourable.

About thirty percent of the proposed crop has already been planted, according to reports issued late last week by the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Some areas are well advanced with Ryley just about finished the seeding of wheat while other regions are having difficulty with rainy weather, such as Rosalind, and have just a bare start.

Farmers in the Ryley region report that 90 percent of the wheat crop has been seeded. One-half of the rapeseed crop has been planted while oats is 40 percent sown and 30 percent of the barley has been planted.

Daysland indicates that 70 percent of rapeseed has been sown while wheat and barley are 40 percent completed and oats is ten percent sown. A start is still to be made with flax and rye.

Sixty percent of rapeseed has been seeded in the Round Hill region with wheat only five percent behind. Oats and barley stand at 15 percent seeded.

Hay Lakes reports that sixty percent of the wheat crop has been planted while oats, barley and rapeseed are all thirty percent completed.

Holden area farmers also report that sixty percent of the proposed wheat crop has been sown. Twenty percent of the rapeseed has been sown while barley is ten percent done and five percent of the oats has been planted.

Seeding operations in the Camrose area slowed up last week with wheat being 35 percent completed while rapeseed is 30 percent sown. Twenty percent of the barley crop is planted and oats is fifteen percent planted.

Rain has hampered farmers in the Rosalind area with only ten percent of the expected wheat crop in the ground and only five percent of the rapeseed has been sown. A start is still to be made with other crops.

STORING THE STAPLES

We usually associate food economy with saving dollars at the checkout counter. Bargain hunting may bring a 10 per cent saving on the weekly food bill.

But all those savings may be lost if the food is improperly kept and spoils. Especially with staple products, food care is so easy.

Following is a list of storage times for most staple foods. This time will be shorter if the temperature is warmer than 21 degree C. (70 degree F) for room temperature. For 2 years: salt and pepper, sugar - store in a moisture proof container to prevent hardening; cornstarch - requires a dry area where household odors won't premeate; molasses will thicken & form crystals if storage area is too warm.

For one-and-one-half years: canned meat, poultry and vegetables; canned fruit (except citrus fruit, juices and berries).

For one year: canned fish, flour - store in cool, dry place; ready to eat or uncooked cereals, canned nuts, soda, baking powder, and ground spices; instant puddings bouillon products.

For six months: evaporated milk, condensed meat soups; dried fruit in containers; canned citrus fruit and juices; canned berries.

Checking your food staples periodically will ensure they retain high quality during their shelf life. Why not check your staples today? (Source: Joy of Cooking)

STORING EGGS

Egg whites can be stored in a tightly - covered container for a week in the refridgerator. They may be frozen in a tightly - covered container and may be stored up to one year at 0 degree F. To use, thaw overnight in the refridgerator and use at once.

Egg yolks should be covered with water, tightly sealed and used within 2-3 days. Yolks may also be frozen, but sugar or salt should be added to prevent rubberiness. Place yolks in a container and mix. Stir in about 1 teaspoon sugar or ¼ tsp. salt, for each half-cup of yolks (6-7 yolks). Frozen yolks may be stored up to one year at 0 degrees F.

Ukrainian dancers to appear locally

At present, we have 72 dancers, ranging in age from 7 to 18 years. Our club has been in existence for 12 years

During these 12 years, the members of the club have done a great deal of travelling. Some of the places they have performed at are: in Spokane at the World Fair, at the Provincial Museum and Archives, Ukrainian Days at Dauphin, Manitoba, Ukrainian Days at Vegreville where they have always won many prizes for their efforts, Elk Island Park as well at Ukrainian Heritage Park, Alberta Folk Arts Council as guest performers during the opening of the Edmonton Coliseum Dominion Day celebrations at the Legislative grounds, Jubilee Auditorium at the Shumka Presents Concerts, at Lloydminster as guests at the Dancing Concert, one half hour taping for CFRN—TV for Kiddes on Kamera, at Viking at their Ice Show, Mundare at their Agriculture Fair, at Vermilion for a Rotary Club annual party, at the St. Paul Music Festival where the two groups both took firsts, plus many more local performances.

The anouel concert is usually held at the end of May.

We have always had very competent instructors. At present, both of our instructors are members of the Shumka Dancers.

George Chrunik, the boys' instructor is a grade 12 student at Two Hills High. Annette Bidniak, from Ed monton, instructs the girls. Both these young people do all the coreography for our group.

The club is very active with good participation of parents in both transportation and in providing costuming.

Possibilities for performances in near future. 2 performances with Tofield Ryley School Band at both Tofield and Ryley early in June. Provincial Museum and Archives, the north eastern Alberta Intercultural Days on the Saddle Lake Reserve, Vegreville Ukrainian Days and at Lethbridge at the Heritage Day Program on Aug. 7.

We have really great community support as well as receiving Provincial grants to help defray cost.

Our aims and objections of our club are to promote encourage and enhance the culture of Ukrainian dancing at a local and regional level and to participate in programs at area levels feasible (from our constitution). At the same time we do not limit the dancers to Ukrainian people only. Any child of any ethnic group or nationality at least six years of age, may join our club.

FLEA BEETLES BECOMING PROBLEM

With the crop season barely underway; we have started receiving inquiries regarding flea beetle damage in emerging rapeseed crops.

LIFE HISTORY AND APPEARANCE

Flea beetles is the common name of a variety of small beetles which jump quickly when disturbed. They vary in length from 2 mm to 6 mm and come in a variety of colors and color combinations - shiny black, black with a bluish or bronzy sheen, or black with yellow markings. Life histories vary according to the species, but generally the adults emerge from winter hibernation in April and early May. They feed on suitable weeds until cultivated food plants emerge from the soil. Eggs are laid either just below the soil surface or around, on, or in selected food plants. Mature flea beetle larvae are whitish, slender, delicate, cylindrical worms about 3 to 4 mm long, with tiny legs and brownish heads. Larvae of most species feed on roots, underground stems, or tubers or plants for 2 to 4 weeks before pupating. Total development time from egg to adult is 5 to 10 weeks. As fall approaches, adult flea beetles seek sheltered places in which to overwinter, usually in soil, trash cover, grassy headlands, fence rows or waste places.

FOOD HOSTS AND DAMAGE

Some species of flea beetles are fairly general feeders, however others confine their attacks to closely related plants, often those in a single plant family. In Alberta, rape is the major crop affected by flea beetles. The most common species is the crucifer flea beetle. Most damage to rape is done by the overwintered adult beetles just before or soon after the seedlings have emerged from the soil. The beetles generally move into a crop from the margins. Flea beetle feeding damage is characterized by the shot hole appearance of seedling rape leaves. Heavy infestations can destroy a seedling rape crop. Full-grown rape is usually not seriously affected by high numbers of flea beetles but once in a while in the fall, late maturing rape may be attacked by newly emerged adults. Cool, wet weather reduces damage whereas hot, dry conditions promote crop damage.

Flea beetles will readily attack many garden vegetables and a variety of weeds.

CONTROL

If an in-furrow or direct seed treatment has not been used and if sufficient numbers of flea beetles are present there are several insecticides available to combat damage. Before the pods form Guthion, Furadan, and Malathion are effective controls. After pod formation Malathion can be applied to control flea beetles.

Keep a close watch on emerging rape crops. As I mentioned in a previous column flea beetles could be a major problem this year for rapeseed producers.

Four 4H-ers earn national awards trip

Four 4-H members from this region have been named to attend national or international trips to 4-H functions during the coming yea

The selections were made during a 4-H selections program in Olds last week with 129 delegates from 4-H clubs from all across the province in attendance.

Heather Radacki of Tofield, Valerie Waldorf of Daysland and Brenda Rauser of Viking were named to attend the Western Canadian Provinces seminar which will be held during the early part of August.

Selected to attend the three-day Western Canada Stock Growers' convention was Allen Henderson of Forestburg. The convention will be held in late January or early February of next year.

Three 4-H members from this region were named as alternate delegates to attend if any of those first-named were unable to attend.

Selected as alternates were Frances Davidson of Alliance, Carol Stalleker of Rosalind and Meriel Lorenz of Daysland.

In all, sixty-three award trips were offered to the 4-H members to allow members to compare lifestyles, travel, and compare 4-H programming with other centers.

Members were selected to attend the program in Olds on the basis of achievements in their home community.

Others from the area attending the selections program in Olds included Margaret Davidson of Alliance, Shelley Erickson of Daysland, Rhonda Haesloop of Ohaton, Jane Martz of Hesaler and Frances Wilson of Elnora.

Confronting Your Faith

With Pastor Leonard O Sogge, of the Kingman Lutheran Parish

Have you heard someone say, "I'll get it by hook or by crook"? That is an old expression that goes back to the Middle Ages when many of the forests belonged to the feudal landlords. The peasants were not permitted to cut down the trees, but they were free to take for heating and cooking all the underbrush and twigs they could reach "by hook or by crook" This meant that whatever could be trimmed with a pruning hook or pulled down with a shepherd's crook was theirs

Thus appeared to be a very benevolent act on the part of the landlords, but it actually served their own ends because it kept their wooded areas clear of underbrush that needed to be removed anyway

Some of us tend to live that way. We gladly part with things we don't need, and we even bestow favors on others, but in so doing we manage to soothe our consciences and cater to our pride

It is interesting to note that in the Old Testament the Lord instructed Israel not only to bring him tithes and offerings, but also to be generous to the needy, even to strangers God instructed them not to cut the grain in the corners of their fields and to leave many good grapes on the vines, so that the poor could help themselves God honored this kind of generosity which was to be done cheerfully as a willing response to His command

There are repeated messages and illustrations in the Bible which show how greed and selfishness are condemned, and how God's love and grace have in them the power to free us from this kind of bondage and its control The Christian faith is essentially granting Jesus Christ access into Him and all areas of our lives for His gracious redemptive work

Happiness belongs to the heart that is free to let go of that earthbound grasping, not only of the hand but of the heart Happiness belongs to the individual who is free to give, and to give generously, not only of what he has but of his love and concern

Listen, did you ever try to give yourself away? God gave all that He had that we might live

We too shall live as we learn to give!

Due to illness, Mrs. Barbara Hayes, Chief Commissioner of the Girl Guides of Canada, will not be able to make her tour of Alberta as was announced last week

Under doctor's orders, she had to cancel her visit to 14 centres in the province, but hopes to possibly make the tour some time in the fall.

Tofield has 31 grads

by Grace Phillips

The theme "A Time for Us" was spelled out on the wall of the Tofield Community Centre on Friday when the thirty-one graduates of the Tofield High School were honored at the annual graduation banquet which preceded the graduation exercises and the Spring Prom held at the school.

Master of ceremonies, J C Lamgitt vice-principal of the Tofield School introduced the guests at the head table, Dr and Mrs Prosbury, Mr and Mrs Charlie Sears, Mr and Mrs Fred Reuholt, Rev and Mrs David Moddle, Mr and Mrs Floyd Taylor, Mr and Mrs. Al Pollock. The blessing was given by Rev Moddle.

After thanking the ladies of the Catholic Women's League of St Francis of Assissi Church for the delicious banquet they had served, Mr Lamgitt called on Mrs Marie Worton for the toast to the graduands.

Mrs Worton said she was honored to have this pleasant task as the graduands had now reached a milestone long anticipated, that of entering the adult world, the best wishes of parents and friends were theirs Parents are happy with and proud of the graduands and will always be available for any necessary guidance as their promise of today results in the successes of tomorrow for these young people

On behalf of the graduands, Kailey Blakey thanked Mrs. Worton saying that the graduands would make every effort to repay their parent's kindness or love.

Betty Anne Shewchuk, proposing the toast to the parents, said that parents did many wonderful things such as providing guidance and encouragement as well as a secure environment

On behalf of the parents, Bill Siemens accepted Betty Anne's toast saying that the parents are happy that their children are now young adults at the point of decision in their lives.

Alvin Nachtigal proposed the toast to the Tofield School He said that the graduands would try to live up to the expectations of the school

Robert Garneau in reply, brought congratulations on behalf of the Tofield School staff who are proud of the graduands now and expect to be even more so in the future.

A R Pollock, principal of the Tofield School announced that Jack Lamgitt who has been vice-principal for many years is retiring June 30, so he is in effect graduating with this class

A spontaneous standing ovation was given Mr Lamgitt in honor of his long term of service to the Tofield School as Mr. Pollock gave recognition to Mr Lamgitt's services and wished him happiness in his retirement.

Dr. Prosbury, Mayor of Tofield, said it was a privilege to bring greetings from the town to the graduands and was one of the more pleasant tasks of the mayor. He complimented the grads on their festive appearance as well as

If your income is in the low-to-average range you may be able to obtain a mortgage loan of up to 95% of the value of a modern new home, with payments scaled at 29% to 35% of your monthly income.

Families building their first homes pay only 9% interest and may also be eligible for a monthly subsidy on payments under the STARTER HOME OWNERSHIP PROGRAM. The DIRECT LENDING PROGRAM assists families to build or purchase new homes, or to buy existing homes, at interest rates of 7¾% to 9%, depending on income.

The Treasury Branch people, our agents in your town, have all the information. You can count on them for advice in preparing your mortgage loan application. Very convenient, isn't it, to deal with people you know in your own home town?

Tofield grads

on their accomplishments which have given satisfaction to their parents and teachers.

Fred Reinholt, Superintendent of Schools for the County of Beaver, said that the local Board of Education had a vested interest in the careers of the grads. Up to now, their successes had outnumbered their failures and Mr Reinholt hoped that the trend would continue so that the grads would represent this area as well in the future as they do now.

The graduation exercises in the appropriately decorated school gym began with the procession of the graduands filing onto the stage to music played by Esther Wiens who also played for O'Canada. The invocation was given by Rev [illegible]

Ron K Taylor of the Tofield School staff welcomed the guests and reminisced about the school activities of the graduands.

Lynn Warner in her message from the graduands thanked those who had attending this important occasion and expressed the gratitude of the graduands for the advantages given them by their parents, teachers, and the local Board of Education.

This occasion, said Lynn, was not a final graduation from the education scene but rather the point of sudden entrance into the adult world

Referring to the poem, "The Road Not Taken" by Robert Frost, Lynn that the graduands could take the well-worn road of life or they could accept the challenge of "the one less travelled by". Whatever the choice, it should be that of the graduand, not that of parents or friends Only the individual can decide how best to make a personal contribution to the world Whatever careers the graduands choose, they were urged to pursue them with energy and enthusiasm

Joanne Pedersen's poem "To the Graduands" was read by Robert Garneau

Rev Hinkins, accompanied by Esther Wiens sang the graduation theme song, "A Time for Us" which expressed a wish for "a world of shining hope" for the graduands

Charlie Sears on behalf of the Board of Education of the County of Beaver presented the class with a picture painted by Canadian artist, Emily Carr. This picture was accepted by Heather Allan on behalf of the graduands and Mr Pollock on behalf of the [illegible]

An interlude of comedy was presented by Richard Pillet and Francis Dambergis

Mrs Anne Taylor who has been on leave of absence from Tofield School for this last semester, was guest speaker for the evening. She thanked the grads for the honor accorded her, and commented on the appropriateness of the theme "A Time For Us", using slides relevant to the theme. Mrs Taylor illustrated her hopes for the future of her former students She reminded them that as they become history, even this important moment of their lives However, though the grads must say goodbye to their pasts which have now become history their futures are opening to them

Mr Pollock thanked all who had helped in any way to make this evening a success, especially the grade 10 and 11 students who, with Melody Henriksen and Brenda Williams in charge, had decorated the gym. Mr. Pollock said that each year the graduating class seems to be the best one ever and this year's class followed that pattern. He quoted "A Teacher's Farewell to Graduates" saying, "I would not care so much if I had known you less" He said this class would be greatly missed in the High School, so this night was a sad night as well a happy one

High School graduation diplomas were given out by Mr. Pollock as Mr. Lamgitt called the names of the graduands and stated their plans for their futures

The Spring Prom followed with the music supplied by Spectrum. The Grand March, led by Heather Allan and Lawrence Warkentin, took place at 11 p.m. The traditional steps of the Grand March were varied by interludes of waltzing to the strains of the theme song "A Time for Us " At this time Mr. Lamgitt announced the winners of the "students-of-the-year" award The two students chosen by their classmates as having contributed the most to the class were Teresa Laarhuis and Larry Hallonquist Plaques were presented to the two winners by Mr. Lamgitt with congratulations on their contributions to school life of the class of '78

The graduands of 1978 in the Tofield High School with their plans for their futures are Heather Allan - plans to attend the U of A in the faculty of Education, Stuart Allan - will be going to Vermilion College ie become an Environmentalist, Myrna Saerger - plans to go to Bible School, then attend University in the faculty of Education.

Population growth handled by Tofield

A new water reservoir and sewage lagoon would enable the Town of Tofield to almost double its present population.

According to town officials, the new additions to the town's water and sewage systems would allow the town to easily handle a population of 2,500 people, considerably more than the present 1,500.

The new water reservoir will hold 90,000,000 gallons of water. It is just about completed and holds almost that amount at the present time.

The old reservoir has a capacity of 30,000,000 gallons of water, giving the town an overall capacity of 120,000,000 gallons of water.

The new sewage lagoon will cover an area of forty acres of land when it is completed.

Construction of the new lagoon is well underway and is expected to be finished in about ninety days, or by the end of the summer.

The big machinery being used to build the new lagoon is working hard, gulping down about 1,000 gallons of fuel every two days.

Providing water and sewage can be an expensive proposition.

The new water reservoir will cost the town approximately $400,000 while the new lagoon is expected to cost about $340,000 for an overall total bill, for just these two portions of the system, of $830,000.

In 1977, intensive Carbyne yield trials were made on farms, and managed by farmers. Carbyne-treated and untreated plots were planted side-by-side at the same time, and harvested with field combines. No special treatment.

Check out the yield results in the chart above. Multiply the extra bushels in Carbyne-treated plots by current crop prices. You see that Carbyne made money for these growers.

Money maker, and money saver.

Carbyne's low product cost produced yield increases at minimum cost. And Carbyne doesn't need an agitator. That can save about $2 per acre per trip.

You know Carbyne is going to work, because you spray the wild oats, not the soil.

Rain won't wash away your investment. Fifteen minutes after application, it can pour rain without washing Carbyne off the wild oats. Yet Carbyne doesn't need moisture to activate it.

Easy to apply.

Carbyne is not only easy to apply, but what you save on Carbyne's price could pay for custom application. Check this out with your farm chemicals dealer and your nearby custom applicator.

See your farm chemicals dealer for your supply of Carbyne. See him early.

Please read label instructions carefully and use only as directed.

Do Not Disturb!

Pelicans and Cormorants - Endangered Species

These birds include much of Alberta as part of their breeding range. They nest in groups, almost always on an island, returning year after year to the home nesting site, as long as they are not disturbed.

But they are sensitive birds, especially at breeding time, and are vulnerable to human disturbance. During egg laying, even minimal disturbance such as a boat passing near by the island can cause nest abandonment. The adults are less likely to desert hatched young but disturbance causing them to vacate the nest leaves the chicks unprotected from the elements. Severe harassment, such as repeated landings on the nesting island, may provoke the birds to discontinue using the traditional nesting site.

In the past few decades, at least 12 pelican colonies and four cormorant colonies have been abandoned in Alberta. Most of these abandonments are believed to have been the result of people disturbing the birds during their sensitive breeding time.

That's why the Government of Alberta has designated white pelicans and double-crested cormorants as endangered species. Six nesting sites have been established as "Prohibited Access Wildlife Areas". The new regulations prohibit anyone from entering upon or approaching within one-half mile of the designated islands on these lakes from April 15 to September 15, the basic nesting and rearing period.

Designated islands are on:

Lake Newell,

Beaverhill Lake,

Lower Therien Lake, Birch Lake, Namur Lake and Wadlin Lake. Everyone is required to stay outside a half-mile limit of these islands on these lakes.

Help protect these endangered species and keep Alberta's Wildlife Wild.

Cadets are inspected

Proud parents and interested spectators gathered at the Community Hall in Holden on the evening of May 18th to watch the annual inspection of the Nootka Sea Cadet Corps.

Inspecting officer for the event was Major J.M.R. Prefontaine of Edmonton.

The ship's company assembled in front of the Community Hall where the performance began with the parading of the colors, boasting of the Canadian flag, and prayers.

The color party and the accompanying brass band were from the R.C.S.C.C Cayuga of Wainwright, and their music contributed greatly to the success of the evenings performance.

Along with Major Prefontaine, the inspecting party also included Capt. R.G. Stewart and P.O.I.D. McKee of the Area Cadet (Sea) Office, Cadet Lanson Officer Lt. B McIntosh, G Wilder and G Peterson of the Northern Alberta Division of the Navy League of Canada, and Mrs Carol Stefura of the Ryley Navy League Committee.

Following the general inspection and march past, the spectators were invited inside the hall to view the displays set up by the cadets. Displays included bends and hitches (ropework), rifle range, compass and orienteering, seamanship, survival, first aid, and the new Tumbleweed sailboat which was set up outside. Each display was attended by a group of cadets who eagerly answered all questions asked, showing a good general knowledge of their training.

The corps reassembled in the hall for the evening quarters lowering of the colors, and the presentation of awards.

Awards presented were as follows: Perfect attendance (34 parades) - Kevin Stefura of Ryley. Attendance of 31 to 33 parades: Jack Ducharme, Pat Ducharme, Eric Schasing, Gayleen Keith, Yvonne Scherger, Yvonne Macabenc all of Holden, and Morley Knudshen and Doug Stefura of Ryley.

Best new entry cadet, Doug Brower of Viking.

Most enthusiastic cadet, Eric Schasing of Holden. Best all round cadet, Jack Ducharme of Holden. Northern Alberta Div Navy League Award for senior cadet, Doug Stefura of Ryley.

Major Prefontaine in his remarks congratulated the cadets on their evening's performance, and stated that the Nootka Corps showed a great improvement this year. He praised the officers for their efforts, and thanked Lt. and Mrs McIntosh for their contribution to the cadet movement.

Both Mr. Peterson, representing the Navy League of Canada, and Capt. Stewart of the Area Cadet Office gave words of praise to the cadets for the progress they had made during the year, and encouraged the cadets to attend the summer camps for further training and experience.

In his closing remarks, Capt. Cooper stated that sailing exercises will be held some weekends during the summer, and that the family-cadet camp will be held on June 30th and 25th.

Capt. Cooper has been commanding officer of the Nootka corps for the past nine years, and is assisted in his work by Lt. William Taylor of Viking (who has contributed over twenty years of service with the corps) and OCDT Doug Wood of Ryley. Mrs Greta Keith and Gary Schasing are both civilian instructors for the cadets.

Besides the training represented in the displays, the cadets are also taught self discipline, team work, a pride in their country and other qualities that help them become worthwhile citizens of the community.

Any boy or girl who is 13 in September is invited to join the cadet corps in the coming fall season.

BRTA urges marking of Henday's route

For the fifth year, Battle River Tourist Association has urged better marking of the historic route of Anthony Henday across the Alberta Parkland area. This year the location of the tourist booths September 11, 1754, just north of the town of Chauvin, and is thought to have been the first white man to visit Alberta.

His route has already been marked where it crosses Highway 2, but the BRTA is suggesting that the province similarly mark Highways 17, 41, 14, 13, 36, 53, 56, 12, 21 and 16, where he traversed these areas.

Further study was given and location of the tourist booths the association has purchased over recent years, especially since the unit in Wetaskiwin is being vacated in favor of their handsome new building combined with the Chamber of Commerce.

It was agreed the A-frame unit now located in Wetaskiwin should be moved to Sherwood Park, on completion of suitable arrangements with the Community League Association at that point.

It was also noted that the Town of Stettler and the Chamber of Commerce there are proposing to construct permanent washrooms at the Tourist Information booth, at an estimated cost of $8,945. The proposal was joined by the executive in highly commending the Stettler community.

The group's annual meeting is being slated for October 18, at the Crystal Springs in Camrose. Ralf Mathison, a radio commentator with CJCA of Edmonton will be the guest speaker.

The meeting commented very favorably on the improvements being made to Highway 13 between Camrose and Wetaskiwin, noting that this is an important link in the highway system in Zone 5. Observing that an additional portion of Highway 36, east from Camrose to the intersection with Highway 36, has been taken into the provincial highway system, it was urged that the route continue still further, to Highway 14.

Next major event will be the Annual Cavalcade to take place on May 27 and 28. This year, participants will travel from Camrose through Rosalind, Donalda, Big Knife Park, Forestburg and Czar. Highlights will include tours of a "mud plant", lamp display, strip mine operation, power plant, spectacular "badlands" and a Sulphur Plant. Fee to participate is $10.00 per family, and those interested do not have to be members of B.R.T.A. Registration forms are available from the B.R.T.A. office in Camrose.

On June 17, all people intending to work in the thirteen information centres that function throughout the zone during July and August will be brought into Camrose for a one-day training program.

High average

Holden's sports day plans are finalized

The Holden and District Agricultural Society has finalized plans for the annual Sports Day which will be held on June 9th.

The day's activities will kick off with a breakfast of bacon and eggs which will be served from 7-9:30 p.m.

Sports' activities will begin at 10 a.m. at the Sports Grounds.

Baseball action will feature teams from Bawlf, Daysland, Loughead, Sedgewick, Viking and Holden while men's fastball action will involve teams from Bruce, Kingman, Mundare, Viking and two teams from Holden.

Women's fastball will be between teams from Ryley and Holden, and exhibition games are planned at the Senior ball level.

A gymkhana will be held at the Complex starting at two o'clock while a horseshoe tournament and tractor rodeo will be staged on the Sports Grounds.

The giant parade will get underway at 10:30 a.m.

Cr Knudsen requested a vote by the residents as to whether or not they wanted the County Council to proceed with up to date cost estimates.

A show of hands indicated the residents were unanimously in favor of obtaining the required information.

Cr Knudsen advised that this request would be considered by the County council at their meeting on May 11.

Holden holds graduation

by Carman MacGregor

"The Road Not Taken" by Robert Frost, was the theme poem and "Do You Know Where You're Going To" was the theme song for the Holden High School graduation held Saturday in the Community Hall which was decorated in two shades of blue and white (Holden's colors).

Leanne Rurka, vice-president of the Students' Union, welcomed the graduands, their parents and special guests.

After the toast to the Queen and greetings from the Village of Holden by Oleh Shytora the 135 guests enjoyed a delicious banquet catered to by the ladies of the Holden United Church.

After the meal, the head table guests were introduced and Leanne turned the mike over to the Board of Education, the parents, teachers, and the grads were made and replied to.

Each was well presented and well received but the highlight of this part of the program was a poem written and read by Beatrice Fredericks in which she mentioned each of the graduands in a special way, suggesting that teachers remember students as individuals and each is noteworthy.

Many additional guests arrived to watch the exercises and the hall was filled to capacity.

The graduates, wearing cap and gown, entered the hall and proceeded to the stage to the tune of "Do You Know Where You're Going To" played by Barbara Kendall.

Rev. David Moddle entertained with a song called "Lady Bug", and later he sang the theme song.

Kathy Stecyk presented an inspiring valedictorian address, encouraging her fellow students to make the most of their talents.

Guest speaker for the evening was Art Michlick, a former high teacher at Holden. He is a young man who has completed his schooling at Holden and then returned to teach in the same school after completing his university education.

He spoke on "Happiness", leaving the graduands not only with his own ideas but also with ideas that have been passed on for many generations, and have served to inspire him.

The County of Beaver presented an etching to be kept at the school and to represent this years graduating class. Leanne Rurka accepted this gift on behalf of the classmates.

Awards, always an important part of the graduation exercises, were expanded this year so that a few more people could be officially recognized.

The award for the student in the matriculation program with the highest grade twelve average was presented to Kathy Stecyk. This award was presented by the Alberta Teachers Association.

The second highest matriculation student, Rodney Semotiuk, received an award from the Order of Royal Purple.

Sharon Bruce received the Bruce Agricultural Society award for having the highest average of all students in the general program. Dorothy Mothoski was a very close second.

An additional award was presented to the grade twelve student who had contributed most to school sports, school activities, and student organizations by B.P.O. Elks Lodge. Kathy Stecyk was the proud winner of this award.

Keith Robson brought a brief message from the superintendents office and then Leanne Rurka presented plaques to all the graduands. Each of these young people mentioned what they were presently doing and what their future plans were. Because some have not completed their courses yet, the scrolls will be mailed in the fall.

The evenings ceremonies were closed with the singing of "God Save The Queen."

Buys book

Mrs. Elizabeth Davison (right) of Tofield submitted the highest bid, $176.78, and purchased the first copy of "Beaver Tales", the history of the Ryley area which was published by the Ryley Legion Ladies Auxiliary, with Mrs. Harriet Brown (left) as editor.

Bruce residents favour getting utilities' costs

Reports of a public meeting held in the Bruce School on May 8, in regard to water and sewer for the Hamlet of Bruce.

Present were: Crs. Armitage, Brinsard, Ewasiuk, Knudsen and Maxwell.

Also present were: Vince Malloy and Vic Istace of Torchinsky Consulting Ltd., John Gallagher of the Department of Environment; Robert Cross, Secretary Treasurer; Ronald Pepper, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer; and about 45 residents of the Hamlet of Bruce.

The meeting was called to order by the Reeve Cr Knudsen.

Vince Mulloy outlined the cost and engineering work that had been done. He mentioned that no detailed work had been done recently but had used figures which had been obtained in 1974. On instructions by the County Council they would proceed to do the current estimates.

John Gallagher explained the financial contributions that would be available from C.M.H.C. and the Provincial Government. Using the figures supplied by Mr. Malloy for sewage works of $182,360.00, the final cost payable by the residents of the hamlet would be $885.67 per year per person.

For a water system based on a total cost of $180,000.00 the cost per resident would be $119.90 per year per person.

It was pointed out that these costs were for debenture repayment only. Additional costs for operation of the systems plus the cost of the installations on private property would be at the expense of the residents.

There were questions regarding the use of the Duck's Unlimited dam southwest of Bruce, the method of calculating the cost of debenture charges (whether per hook up or by frontage) and whether the lines would be put in the street or the alleys.

These questions would be considered by the County Council in consultation with the engineers and the Department of Environment.

Teresa Loarnuis (left) and Larry Hallonquist proudly hold the plaques they received after they had been named "Student of the Year" for 1978 at Tofield High School. Teresa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Loarnuis while Larry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hallonquist.

Powerline has start

Only three games have been played to date in the Powerline Baseball League because of the bad weather that has prevailed.

Games scheduled for last Tuesday (May 23) evening were played while games planned for Thursday of last week and Tuesday of this week were rained out.

This evening's (Thursday) games will see Bardo host Tofield while Camrose is in Ryley and Holden plays in Round Hill.

Three games are scheduled for Tuesday evening. Bardo plays in Ryley while Holden pays a visit to Tofield, and Round Hill travels to Camrose.

There are no games scheduled for next Thursday night since most of the teams in the league will be involved in play during the Sports Days on June 9th in Holden and Bardo.

Home teams won two out of the three games played on opening day.

Ryley, the defending league champions, stopped Tofield 11-2 while Camrose eked out a close 6-4 win over Holden. Bardo was the only visiting team to come away with a win when they whipped Round Hill by a 7-1 score.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (BF) — Despite the fact that both major political parties would like to see the Royal Canadian Mounted Police left out of the election campaign as an issue, the disclosures made during the past year or so are of major importance to Canadians, and the RCMP should be an issue.

Liberals and Tories aren't too keen on stating their differing cases on the RCMP, for different reasons. Both parties have read the mood of the country as supportive of the RCMP, with no significant faction condeming RCMP actions which have been illegal, no matter how well intentioned.

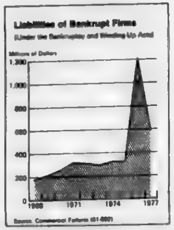
The Tories would love to tie the RCMP's questionable actions to government by demonstrating that somebody in the cabinet or the Prime Minister's office knew that illegal police acts were taking place. Considerable efforts to that end have been unsuccessful, where by contrast, the Liberals have been very successful in brushing the issue under the carpet of the federal commission inquiring into RCMP actions. That commission isn't going to report until sometime in 1981, long after any federal election. While the commission sits, the government can duck questions on RCMP behavior, claiming that the proper place for any embarrassing questions to be asked is before the commission.

The Tories are certainly deeply interested in the political potential of a situation in which the government has failed to control the national police force, but they are also concerned about the fact that the much respected RCMP did in fact break the law of the land. They are astounded at the government attitude which seems to be aimed at justifiying past illegalities by the RCMP and changing the law to make some such illegal acts okay in the future.

The issues which are being bandied about are, after all, basic to a democracy, and it's alarming in the extreme that more Canadians don't see it that way. Sure the RCMP are the good guys, but good guys or not, the force must act within the law.

The question of the duty of police and government to stay within the law of the land doesn't really seem to concern the Trudeau government, and it should. The Tories, too, should demonstrate more concern over principle than politics.

When the postmaster general says, in effect, that raising the postage rate without Parliament's approval may be questionable legally, but it was the right thing to do, that's a frightening measure of government respect for the law. It's frightening, too, when government condones illegal police actions.



Mismatch!

Familiar tale, updated

Once upon a time there was a little red hen who scratched about the barnyard until she uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her neighbors and said, "If we plant this wheat, we shall have bread to eat. Who will help me plant it?"

"Not I," said the pig.

"Not I," said the cow.

"Not I," said the duck.

"Not I," said the goose.

"Then I will," said the little red hen.

And she did. The wheat grew tall and ripened into golden grain.

"Who will help me reap my wheat?" asked the little red hen.

"Not I," said the duck.

"That's not my responsibility," said the pig.

"I'd lose my seniority," said the cow.

"I'd lose my unemployment compensation," said the goose.

"Then I will," said the little red hen, and she did.

At last it came time to bake the bread.

"Who will help me make the bread?" she asked.

"That would be overtime for me," said the duck.

"I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the cow.

"I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the pig.

"If I'm to be the only helper, that's discrimination," said the goose.

"Then I will," said the little red hen.

She baked five loaves and her neighbors wanted some.

In fact they demanded a share. But the little red hen said, "No, these loaves are the result of my hard work. Each of you had the opportunity to earn a share and you turned it down."

"Excess profits!" cried the goose.

"Capitalist leech!" screamed the duck.

"I demand equal rights!" yelled the cow.

And the pig said, "I'll report you."

They painted picket signs and marched round and round the little red hen, shouting obscenities.

When the government agent arrived, he said to the little red hen, "You must not be greedy."

"But I earned the bread," said the little red hen.

"Exactly," said the agent. "That is the wonderful free enterprise system. Anyone in the farmyard can earn as much as he wants. But under our modern government regulations, the productive workers must divide their product with the idle."

And they lived happily ever after, including the little red hen who smiled and clucked, "I am grateful. I am grateful."

Brazil buys

On May 15 the Canadian Wheat Board announced the sale of 800,000 tonnes (approximately 29 million bushels) of wheat to Brazil, involving quantities of No. 3 Canada Western Red Spring Wheat, No 2 Canada Western Red Spring Wheat, 11.5 percent protein, and No. 1 Canada Utility Wheat.

Shipments against the sale will be made through St. Lawrence ports from July through October 1978. Of the 800,000 tonne total, 300,000 tonnes complete the long-term agreement signed with Brazil in October, 1975.

FARM DEBT IN CANADA

Total farm debt in Canada doubled between 1970 and 1976, but the capital value of farm investments was also higher than ever before.

Figures prepared by Statistics Canada economist A.S. Brunst an published in the February issue of Canadian Farm Economics, show the average value of agricultural debt in 1976 was $8.5 billion compared to $4.2 billion at the beginning of the decade.

However, farm real estate values have risen more rapidly than farmer borrowings. Farm debt as a percentage of the market value of farm assets has declined from about 19 per cent in 1971 to about 15 per cent in 1976.

Are we like them?

Recent controversy over the television series dealing with the Holocaust in Germany during World War II brings up an editorial written a short time earlier by a student at Grant McEwan College in Edmonton, named Mike Cooper.

There was a good deal of criticism over the program, and some praise, though probably not as much. In this light, Mr. Cooper's comments which follow, seem even more timely than before the program.

He is an Edmonton lawyer of Polish-Jewish descent. He has a series of numerals tattooed on one of his wrists.

He keeps these numerals on his wrist in memory of the time he spent in Auschwitz.

When people ask him about them he explains, they represent an identity number given him by the Nazi wardens of the Auschwitz concentration camp.

To the lawyer's dismay, most people interpret his answer to mean that he was once a criminal and had spent some time in jail.

They may have even wondered why a criminal chose to be a lawyer.

On hearing this true story, a perceptive listener may be appalled at the ignorance exhibited.

The New York City school board is introducing a course on the Nazi genocide plan. In books, filmstrips and actual film footage of the horrors of the death camps, the school board is presenting 11 and 12 year-olds with the story.

A textbook, called The Holocaust was written for the course. The two authors say it is an attempt to bring the lesson of the extermination camps to bear on contemporary problems. Specifically, it is designed to expose the irrational roots of racial prejudice.

Some of the children who previewed the course went home and told their parents what they saw. Many of the parents did not believe their children until the story had been checked in an encyclopedia.

The people who mistook the Polish lawyer for a criminal might benefit from such a course. And maybe such words as "nigger," "paki" and "frog" may lose the popularity they now enjoy. American historian Santayana said people who are ignorant of history are condemned to repeat it.

We can ask ourselves: are we like those people?

Sudden bankruptcies

Bankruptcies in business are taken as a part of the normal order of things, no matter how sad they may be, or how much concern they cause other firms. Indeed, the effect is often like a chain reaction, a bankruptcy in one firm causing successive waves of difficulties in other firms which are barely managing to get by.

However, a recent review by Statistics Canada produced a good deal of amazement and wonder, as it reported the liabilities reported by firms which had gone bankrupt in recent years.

As shown by the chart on this page, something seems to have happened to the business climate in Canada midway through 1974, which lasted more than a year, causing liabilities to skyrocket to almost four times the levels of the previous six years.

Obviously inflation had some bearing, but then it seems not to have made much difference in the four or five years beforehand. Was it sudden dramatic increase in unemployment, which caused a ripple effect through industry? Was it a sudden market correction, after years of missing such an effect? Was it the result of government action? Or inaction?

Whatever produced it, the picture is startling. Despite the fact the trend dropped almost as sharply in 1976, the damage will have been done, the hopes dashed, the opportunities shot full of holes.

Mrs. G.H Taylor

Several people from Holden attended the breakfast at Ryley, meeting with two of the Cabinet ministers from the Alberta Legislature.

Briefs were presented to the Hon Helen Hunley, Minister of Social Services and Community Health, and the Hon Bob Bogle, Minister without Portfolio, by Mayor Shykora, on behalf of the Village of Holden, and Mrs M.F Hallett, president of the Holden and District Chamber of Commerce.

Nick Laskoski, also attended and presented a brief on behalf of the rural people.

Ms Hunley, on behalf of the Provincial Government then presented a plaque to Mayor Shykora for the Village of Holden.

Also in attendance were Councillor C Mackay and the secretary-treasurer for the Holden and District Chamber of Commerce.

Recent weekend visitors with Mrs Ethel Brekstad were her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs Ralph Brekstad from Vancouver, B C also old friends, Alec and Anne Harris of Edmonton.

The Holden Cemetery Committee held a meeting on Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. Beth Campbell. President Lyle Grosland chaired the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and members discussed business to be brought up at the annual meeting, which is held on clean-up day. Bills were passed for payment and members were advised that the two Shinski boys are looking after cutting the grass. It was decided to hold the annual cemetery clean-up day on Monday, June 19th if the weather is good, and the alternative date in case of bad weather would be June 26th. Ladies are asked to bring lunch and dishes as usual and the men, hoes, clippers etc and coffee will be provided.

The Hopkins family resided in Holden some years ago when the late Bill Hopkins was an agent at one of the elevators.

About 400 to 450 students from the County of Beaver participated in the track meet which was held May 19th in Holden. The winners from each of the shool track meet eliminations competed with each other in 120 events. The Holden School physical education teacher, Mr. Emerson, said there are too many events to have them all in one day, and the relay heats were cancelled with just a final race run, due to lack of time. This year, javelin throwing, triple jump and 800m race for 10-11 year old boys and girls were added to the meet. Much credit was given to Michael Zowtuik for the loan of his truck and sound system which was used in announcing the events and which was the control centre.

The Holden Brownies and Guides troops held their annual Mother and Daughter banquet in the Holden Community Hall on Monday evening with about forty mothers and daughters in attendance.

Commissioner Dorothy Fulgate presented Tawny Owl Sonya Zemlak with her one-year service pin and Brownie Owl Dorothy Emerson received her three-year service pin. An assortment of thirty badges were awarded to the Guides and Brownies for accomplishments during the year. The local Assoc. also presented the Leaders with gifts in appreciation of their service. Leader with the Guides is Aileen Langer and the Brownies' leaders are Dorothy Emerson, Sonya Zemlak, and Anne Scherger. The banquet was catered to by the Ladies of the Royal Purple Lodge who sponsor both troops.

Harry Olson was to Camrose the past week and visited with his brother, Arthur and his mother, Mrs Carrie Olson, who is a hospital patient.

Friends of Mrs. Clara Morland of Viking, formerly of the Holden district, will be pleased to hear that she is now back home from the hospital in Edmonton, after being a patient for some time, and is feeling much improved.

Mr Eberhart of the Holden district was a recent visitor at Vialta lodge, calling on Lars Ritland.

A.L. Gibson of Vialta Lodge spent Sunday with his family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gibson and children.

Mr and Mrs C[illegible]red Huseby and families were in Edmonton on May 21st, attending the silver wedding anniversary of a nephew, a son of Mr and Mrs Percy Owen. The Owen family were residents for many years, in Holden. Percy was the manager of the NADP Creamery and Betty was a member of a pioneer farming family of the area, the late Mr. and Mrs Henderson.

The old garage opposite the creamery is being taken down. The property has been purchased by Lyle Grosland and he will be building a residence.

Oscar Afseth is also busy again taking down the old grist mill and Alvin Chomik will be starting to demolish the old Kashman garage, having bought the property from the Village, and he will be building a residence there this summer.

Karie Suchy stayed several days last week with her grandparents Cecil and Gwen Hooper while her parents, Randy and Wendy Suchy of St Albert, were away on a short camping holiday.

Sunday visitors at the home of Gwen and Cecil Hooper were Grant and Pat Hooper of Edmonton, Randy and Wendy Suchy of St Albert, Tim Hooper of St Albert, and Irvin, Shirley and Tanya Scott.

ALBERTA WOMENS WEEK — "Life is for Living" is the theme of this years Alberta Womens Week at Olds College, scheduled for July 10 to 14. The program will provide a variety of interesting activities and speakers. Morning sessions will feature such topics as Being Alive-Privilege or Princess? Convenience Eating, It's a Textile world, and Optimizing Daily Living, just to mention a few. Afternoon sessions allow participants to follow their own interest area. These topics include: parenting of teens, camping and hiking, English smocking, bazaar and craft ideas, and many others.

Registration forms will be available from this office by June 1st . . . Watch this column for more details.

CHECK BEFORE YOU BUY — Many of us have experienced the frustration of wanting to return a purchase, but having the store refuse to accept it back. Exchange and refund policies vary from store to store. If you think there is a chance that you may want to take something back, ask about the store policy before you buy.

Unless a store advertises a policy of "satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded," it is under no obligation to return your money.

If an item is damaged on delivery, the consumer has the right to ASK that it be repaired or replaced. But, for exchanges or refunds, it is the consumers duty to check the store policy before buying.

CONTRIBUTING TO YOUR LOCAL FAIR — It's now time to start thinking about what to enter in your local fair. Has it been a few years since you contributed? Well, maybe now is a good time to show your creative ability (we all have this you know!) and enter into the competition.

We enter competitions for various reasons - for self - satisfaction in showing our work to others, for educational benefits derived from the judges remarks and viewing the work of others. Equally important, we enter competitions to support and maintain the community.

When entering the fair, do so with an open mind. The judges decision is just one opinion. We can't always win, but great satisfaction can be achieved by entering to show others our work.

Rain delays seeding

Farmers were unable to complete seeding operations last week due to rainfall which fell in various regions.

Rainfall ranged from a minimum of 11 millimeters at Tofield to a maximum of 33 millimeters in Hay Lakes.

Most areas report, according to the Alberta Wheat Pool, that seeding could be completed within a few days, if weather conditions remain favourable.

While the rain halted seeding, it was welcome in some instances, since pastures needed the moisture.

Ryley farmers are the closest to finishing, putting seed in the ground with all of the planned wheat crop planted. Ninety percent of the proposed rapeseed crop has been sown while eighty percent of the barley and oats acreage has been put in the ground.

All of the wheat in the Holden region has been seeded while rapeseed stands at 95 percent completion. Oats and barley are one-half seeded.

Tofield farmers also have all of their wheat seeded. Seventy-eight percent of the barley has been sown while 75 percent of oats has been planted and 70 percent of the rape

WE'LL MISS YOU

We wish to thank Robinson Stores and particularly Kay Olson for her services to Tofield and area. Kay and her staff will be very much missed by us and I am sure by many others.

It is a very sad sign when closing out posters are seen on a business. Kay has been in business for 16 years and it is very unfortunate she is forced to close when all indications are that Tofield is a growing town.

We wish them every success in any other future ventures.

Confronting Your Faith

of the Tofield Gospel Church

"KING HEROIN PSALM"

A tragic and twisted rewording of the famous Twenty-third Psalm was found in a car at Reidsville, N.C. beside the dead body of a heroin addict She was only 23!

Senator Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina inserted the dead girl's message in the congressional record This is what it said:

"King Heroin is my shepherd,
I shall always want
He maketh me to lie down in the gutters,
He leadeth me beside the troubled waters.
He destroyeth my soul.
He leadeth me in the paths of wickedness
Yea, I shall walk through the valley of poverty, and will fear all evil,
For thou, Heroin, art with me
Thy Needle and Capsule comfort me
Thou strippest my table of all groceries,
In the presence of my family
Thou robbest my head of reason
My cup of sorrow runneth over,
Surely heroin addiction shall follow me
All the days of my life,
And I shall dwell in the house of the damned forever"

A second message was found in her purse It read "Jail did not cure me Nor did hospitalization help me for long The doctor told my family that it would have been better, and indeed kinder, if the person who got me hooked on dope had taken a gun and blown my brains out. And I wish to God he had My God, how I wish he had"

Perhaps this Psalm and message from Miss Addict will cause some careless person to think more deeply, to get the straight dope on dope straight Is it worth the risk? What happens after the dope party is over? Where will it take you if you Tune In, Turn On and Drop Out? The dope trip is short, deceptive, and as false as the shiny sheen on a devil's wings It can lead only to a tragic end, not only in this life but in the one to come Avoid the Drug-Tyrant whether it is in the form of pot-grass-acid-footballs-rainbows-red devils - yellow jackets - marijuana-LSD or heroin Their shepherd leads to troubled waiters, poverty, gutters, fear, shame, sorrow and finally hopelessness and destruction Dope and drugs are thieves that rob you of reason, strip you of self-respect and leave you a caslaway Heed Miss Twenty Three's message!

As sure as the Bible says - "The thief comes but to steal, to kill and to destroy", so Christ "has come that you might have Life and that you might have it more abundantly" John 10-10 Choose your shepherd wisely Know where he is taking you May I recommend Jesus Christ, the Good Shepherd, who has given his life for the sheep" Take Him, follow Him Then, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow you all the days of your life, and you will dwell in the house of the Lord forever"

HONEY FOR A CHILD'S HEART
Do you need a guide to good reading for your family?
Who can resist the appeal of a child who asks, "Read to me, Daddy?" Children and books go together in a special way. But children don't stumble onto good books by themselves. They must be introduced to the wonder of words put together in such a way that they spin out pure joy and magic. For a good book is a magic gateway into a wide world of wonder, beauty, delight and adventure.
In "Honey for a Child's Heart" Gladys Hunt shares the great treasures she has found in books and The Book to be used wisely for God's glory in a child's life.
Now in paperback — an indispensable addition to your library.

In 1977, intensive Carbyne yield trials were made on farms, and managed by farmers. Carbyne-treated and untreated plots were planted side-by-side at the same time, and harvested with field combines. No special treatment.

Check out the yield results in the chart above. Multiply the extra bushels in Carbyne-treated plots by current crop prices. You see how Carbyne made money for these growers.

Money maker, and money saver.

Carbyne's low product cost produced yield increases at minimum cost. And Carbyne doesn't need incorporation. That can save about $2 per acre, per trip.

You know Carbyne is going to work, because you spray the wild oats, not the soil.

Rain won't wash away your investment. Fifteen minutes after application, it can pour rain without washing Carbyne off the wild oats. Yet Carbyne doesn't need moisture to activate it.

Easy to apply.

Carbyne is not only easy to apply, but what you save on Carbyne's price could pay for custom application. Check this out with your farm chemicals dealer and your nearby custom applicator.

See your farm chemicals dealer for your supply of Carbyne. See him early.

Tourist group is second in Canada

At the annual meeting of the Travel Industry Association of Canada held in Ottawa on May 14, it was announced that the Battle River Tourist Association had recieeved "Honourable Mention" for its year - round promotion program in areas in Canada with a population under 100,000. An "Award of Merit Certificate" was presented to Marjorie Zingle of Calgary who represented B.R.T.A. at the Awards Night Banquet.

The ten-year-old organization has previously won the top award in this same competition which embraces the entire nation from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island.

"Naturally, we were disappointed at coming in second", said Bob Ruttan of Provost who is the incumbent president of B.R.T.A. "However, it's tough to retain the top position in any contest, and with the increasing interest in tourism right across the nation, the competition is increasing in this one," he added. He went on to point out that B.R.T.A. had placed first in this event in 1976 and again in 1977. Asked if he thought that B.R.T.A. could recapture first place next year, he indicated considerable confidence. "Besides the on-going projects that we already have in place, we have several new ventures that should help us move up," he said. "Our involvement in the Stamp Around Alberta Project, our T-Shirt project and the recent two-day tour that we provided to nine Travel Alberta Information Centre Personnel should get us enough Brownie Points to bring the top award back to East Central Alberta."

At a meeting of the group's executive four days later, Manager Sylvia Clemens reported she had obtained the information requested in connection with hosting the section with hosting the Provincial Convention. After hearing this, the meeting decided to submit a bid for this convention for the year 1981. There are several points in the zone that will be large enough to handle this type of convention by that time. Stettler, Camrose, Wainwright, Wetaskiwin, Leduc and Sherwood Park are all points that could be considered if there is any local interest.

Ryley news items

by Kathy Wilde

This week brought the return of Mr and Mrs Hans Nearson from Jasper where they were attending their granddaughter's graduation, and from a holiday in Vancouver and Washington. They really enjoyed their three weeks out west.

Audrey Knudalten also came home from England on Friday. George reports that he's very happy to have her [illegible].

Susan Marie Erikson, niece to Alma Adams, daughter of Don and Lisa Erikson and a sister to David was baptized along with three other children in Edmonton's Ansgar Luth. Church on Sunday. Alma as well as Ray and Marian Daley with Trevor, Michael and Shon, all of Calgary, Astrid Holte (an aunt), and Mary Erikson (grandmother) were present at the ceremony. In the afternoon the guests visited with each other and took pictures with lunch afterwards.

Two Ryley people hit it lucky this week. Eric Brix won the barbecue offered by the Bigway, while Otis Phillips won the Holden Agricultural Soc. lottery with a prize of $500. Greta says that the money came at a great time since they plan to travel to Finland in a couple of weeks.

Many ladies had an opportunity to stock up their kitchen cupboards when Inez Riel hosted a Tupperware party at her place on Monday.

Graveside services for Renee Denise, daughter to Ray and Irene Korbyl were conducted Friday afternoon. Orlon and Milton, both brothers of Irene's and grandma Hjelter of Camrose were in Ryley on Friday to attend the services and stayed the weekend at Oliver Lehmans.

Welcome to town! Don and Gwen Zook formerly of Edmonton, Gus and Francine Robertson formerly of Edmonton and Jim and Helen Karenko have all made their homes in Ryley.

Astrid Holte and Mary Erikson called last Tuesday at Alma Adam's house. Mary who was not feeling well is now much better.

The strangest things happen to the most unlikely people. Last week Bernice Kozdrowski mother of five broke her arm while skateboarding in front of her house. Better luck on the skateboard next time!

NOW MORE THAN EVER, IT'S IMPORTANT YOU CALL YOUR GAS COMPANY BEFORE YOU BREAK GROUND.

Damage payments in the thousands of dollars! Extensive downtime! A community angry because its gas supply has been cut off! Tragic explosions!

These things happen too often. To contractors, backhoe operators, even to backyard power posthole diggers.

Maybe it's because Alberta is such a busy place. In the past year over 465 miles of underground gas mains were installed in Northwestern Utilities service area. That makes a total of 6,720 miles of them plus over 210,000 individual service lines. How does a person know where to start digging?

Plan to call your gas company's Pipe Locator Team at least 48 hours before you dig. They have radio dispatch trucks. They'll come and stake out the alignment of all gas lines so you can dig safely. The service is free. Your life is worth the effort.

Tofield Stables offer unique service

In the heated pool

Tofield is the site of a rather unique business venture, in that there are only four such operations in North America.

Tofield Stables have officially opened and the new business venture was the scene of plenty of excitement on Tuesday with representatives of both the print and electronic media on hand to record the work being done at the highly unusual business enterprise.

What makes this venture different from other stables, is that accupuncture and a heated indoor swimming pool are available for the horses being treated at the center.

Tofield Stables is considered to be the most progressive training center in Western Canada for standard and thoroughbred [illegible].

Owned by Dave Coleman the business utilizes the services of five full-time employees.

Accupuncture treatment for the horses using the service is supplied by Earl Archer of Northlands Park in Edmonton.

Accupuncture is applied by applying needles to the shoulders. Once the needles are in place, a maximum of nine volts of electrical current are passed through the needles into the animal being [illegible].

The pool itself is rather unique in that the animal is exercised by being forced to pull (swim) against its own weight. The maximum stay in the indoor pool is only thirty seconds. However, because of the animal's activities during that period of time, it is the same as running three miles.

As one of only four such centers in North America, Tofield Stables is expected to keep a busy schedule.

Sheerness may be joint plant

A thermal power development proposed for east central Alberta could be the first joint ownership venture by Alberta's investor-owned electric utilities.

Last week the Energy Resources Conservation Board held public hearings here on an application by Alberta Power Ltd. to develop the Sheerness Generating Station in order to meet the anticipated heavy electrical energy requirements in 1985-86.

As a result of the provincial cabinet's deferral of the proposed 2250 MW Camrose-Ryley (Dodds-Round Hill) project, the utility industry has submitted three separate, smaller projects as alternatives to meet the provincial load forecasts for the same period. The Energy Board has approved the 750 MW Keephills Development for the early 1980s, and will now consider Sheerness, and Edmonton Power's proposed development at Genesee to supply options to what would have been available from Camrose Ryley.

During recent hearings, Alberta Power agreed with the concept of joint ownership as a means of developing the proposed plant for the interconnected utility system. Calgary Power Ltd., Alberta's largest electric utility, proposed the joint ownership concept since a large portion of the long-term energy supply from Sheerness will not be required for Calgary Power [illegible]

W.L. Fraser, vice-president of engineering and planning for Calgary Power, said the Sheerness unit is a logical development for 1985-1986. Mr. Fraser was division manager of [illegible]'s operations in Camrose a few years ago. The Company in its submission before the Energy Board called for an approximate 75 per cent participation by Calgary Power Ltd

"By developing Sheerness early, the utilities will be able to reduce transmission requirements to the major energy consumption centres. A thermal generating facility in southern Alberta will also increase system security, by not forcing the utilities to rely an

OIL GRABS HEATING SALES

An unexpected "blowback" from Ontario, Canada's major gas-using province may provide yet another puff to one Alberta gas bubble. Peter Foster reports: So many consumers are switching to cheap fuel oil that Union Gas Ltd., one of the country's largest utilities, may not be able to take all the gas contracted for this year from the Canada-wide Pipe Lines Ltd. Despite government policy of keeping gas prices at its wells artificially low, and a longer-term strategy of encouraging gas usage at the expense of oil, in Ontario oil is taking on gas and beating it hands down. Because of excess refinery capacity, residual fuel oil now costs 15 percent less than gas. The result: gas utilities are having trouble keeping their present market, let alone finding new customers as the government would like.

heavily on the generating stations located in northern Alberta," said Mr. Fraser. The provincial load centre is near Calgary

"More important for Calgary Power, however, is the need to protect its customers from unnecessary increased energy costs. Without joint ownership, our customers would be facing higher power bills because we would have to purchase significant quantities of power during the early years of the development, and then later build our own replacement plant, at an even higher cost. This imposes further economic penalties on our customers," explained Mr. Fraser

Economic illustrations of such strategies, presented at the ERCB hearing, indicated those consumer costs could be 25 per cent higher.

Early in the hearing, Alberta Power indicated acceptance of the principle in join ownership, but felt the Energy Board should not impose deadline restrictions within which to complete negotiations.

In Calgary Power's submission, Mr. Fraser called on the ERCB to include, as conditions of any approval, that the appropriate arrangements be completed for the disposition of the Sheerness power, as well as for the plant fuel supply.

"We believe these are important considerations essential to the matters before the ERCB," said Mr Fraser, emphasizing the need to protect Calgary Power customers in advance of major financial commitments.

In past developments, Calgary Power has been able to control fuel costs for its generating stations by securing advance issues on fuel deposits, anticipated for thermal power production. This action has been significant in reducing the requirements for higher rates which consumers are experiencing today, largely due to inflation and environmental protection

While Calgary Power will require most of the output of the Sheerness Plant, we do not, without contractual arrangments, have an opportunity to control the cost of fuel, and ultimately the cost of energy, for our customers," said Mr Fraser

A decision on the Sheerness application is not expected until after the ERCB has held public hearings on the Genesee project.

The rapid build up of fly populations during the early summer months requires a method of control being applied. Otherwise populations become so large later in the summer that effective control becomes more difficult and costly. The best control procedure is a combination of proper sanitation and proper chemical application to keep fly numbers at an acceptable level. Without a proper sanitation program, chemical control will prove to be unsatisfactory and will be a waste of time and money.

SANITATION

Houseflies breed in such materials as manure and garbage piles, rotting hay, silage, and moldering, spilled grain. These sites should be removed and disposed of by May so overwintering adults have fewer places to lay eggs. This clean up procedure should be maintained on a weekly basis throughout the summer and early fall. Clean out silage pits thoroughly, remove spilled grain from around grain storage and handling facilities and under feed bunks. Make sure manure is removed from inside pens and outside under fences. Flies do not breed in pure manure, therefore bedding and manure accumulated over the winter provides an excellent breeding site and should be removed and spread on fields as early in the spring as possible.

However, as is often the case, manure accumulated over the winter cannot always be removed as flies [illegible] as wet soil conditions and must be piled for later disposal. It is because of such circumstances that insecticide control should be initiated once the first appearance of flies is noticed in May.

ELECTRIC FLYING INSECT TRAPS

A number of electrical devices have been developed that can assist in reducing fly numbers in confined areas such as offices, homes, milking parlors and rooms, small barns, auction sale rings, etc. These electric fly-insect traps consist of one or two ultra-violet lights surrounded by two screens. The screens are energized by a transformer, and the flies, attracted by the ultra-violet lights, are electrocuted when they attempt to fly between the screens. The moisture of the body of the insect completes the electric circuit.

CHEMICAL CONTROL

Chemicals can be applied by three methods: residual wall sprays, fly baits, and insecticide-impregnated strips.

Residual Sprays Residual sprays are applied as a low pressure spray to areas where flies congregate, i.e. ceilings, light fixtures, windows, doorways, stanchions, and walls. Outdoors flies congregate on walls, fences, and other surfaces, exposed to direct sunlight, especially in the morning and late afternoon.

By limiting the application of residual sprays to areas where flies congregate, less chemical is required and more effective control is achieved.

Depending on the residual life of the insecticide, repeated applications may be necessary as soon as any increase in flies is noticed.

Fly Baits Fly baits or fly strips or boards are especially useful in restaurants, milk rooms, etc. where sprays are not permitted. The flies are either killed by contact as they rest on the boards, or are killed by fumigant released by the bands or strips.

Fly Baits Fly baits are manufactured in various formulations and mixtures, consisting primarily of an attractive bait mixed with an insecticide. Bait[illegible] are not always effective for controlling flies but in combination with residual sprays provide very satisfactory control. Placing bait stations in areas where flies congregate greatly increases their effectiveness. Be sure to read label instructions and keep the baits out of reach of children.

Ministers visit Lodge

by Grace Phillips

Residents and staff of the Tofield Lodge had the pleasure Monday of meeting with, and talking to, two Alberta Cabinet members the Hon. Lou Hyndman and the Hon. Horst Schmidt, accompanied by Jim Dinges.

Mayor W.H. Freebury and Councillor Marie Worton represented the town of Tofield on this occasion.

Manager J.B. Baergen escorted the visitors on a tour of the Lodge and then called on Milo Stutzman, to speak on behalf of the residents of the Lodge.

Mr. Stutzman reminisced about the pioneer era and its hardships which contrasted sharply with present conditions. He said all the residents were grateful by the attractive comfortable Lodge which cares for the spiritual as well as the physical needs of its residents. He thanked all who contributed in any way to the efficient conduct of the Lodge. He felt that everyone from the manager to the cleaning staff did everything possible for the comfort of the residents.

The Hon. Horst Schmidt complimented J.B. Baergen on his management of the Lodge, calling him "house father", Mr. Schmidt felt that, in the Lodge, a much deserved dream had come true for the Senior Citizens. He thanked these pioneers for their service to this community and wished them, on behalf of the Government of Alberta, many years of contentment and happiness.

Mr. Baergen thanked Mr. Schmidt for his remarks and said that the spirit of happiness prevailing in the Lodge was its most important aspect.

The cabinet ministers and Mr. Dinges then left for Vegreville for a similar function.

Thefts plague area

Thefts continue to be a major part of the investigative work of the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP.

James Melesko, south of Ryley, reported the loss of a chain saw, electric motor and bracket, router and radio, from a shed on his property. Value of the lost articles was estimated at over $800.

Another resident of the same area, Stuart Helfrich, reported the theft of a chain saw, worth $240, along with the loss of a pressure gauge, crowbars and other items.

An attempt was made to enter Everitt's Foodland. A person has been charged in this instance and will appear in court on June 13th. The same person will also be charged with wilful damage at the Diamond Cafe when the seat in one of the booths was ripped. The person charged in the two incidents had just made a court appearance last week on another charge.

RCMP are investigating reports that mail boxes in the Lindbrook area have been damaged.

Lynn Gates and Marie McQuat reported that approximately thirteen mail boxes in the district suffered damages.

A Tofield resident reported drivers racing by the residence early in the morning on Saturday. As a result one driver has been charged with dangerous driving while another driver has been charged under Section 114, pertaining to noise in an urban area between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Daryl Ball of Tofield reported that he found a motorcycle in a shed on his property north of Lindbrook. An investigation revealed that the motorcycle had been stolen from Ken Pruss of Edmonton in April. The machine has been returned to its owner.

A motor vehicle accident in the Holden area on Sunday resulted in two females being taken to Tofield Hospital with serious back injuries and assorted other cuts and abrasions.

Holden moves on general plan

The Village of Holden is continuing to formulate planning for the development of a "general plan" for the long range development of the village.

Marjorie Holder attended a special meeting recently of village council to prepare a list of tentative goals for the development of the general plan. Objectives and policies to be incorporated into the plan were discussed at length.

Following the discussion, it was agreed that Ms Holden would attend a meeting with council, to again review the plan, with this meeting set for July 5th.

The Street Improvement Committee was authorized to meet with J Podmore to finalize plans and proceed with the curb, gutter and surfacing of 50th Avenue, from 48 Street west to the village limits.

Council had received a cost estimate of $181,822 from Serveid and Podmore Engineering Ltd., with this estimate including $112,822 for the curb, gutter and preparation of the road, and $80,000 for surfacing the road with hot mix asphalt.

Councillors decided to offer the first four lots in Block F for sale, to the Alberta Housing Corporation, as the site of self-contained senior citizens' units.

Blair Nelson attended the council meeting with a proposal that SW ¼ 23-40-16-W4, or a part thereof, be annexed by the village. Part of the area would be used for the development of a mobile home estate and part would be used for a park.

Councillors requested that a preliminary plan be drafted and presented for their consideration.

Mel Warren attended the meeting and suggested a number of changes in the village's policy which were adopted, and council renewed the coverage with Councillor Mackay abstaining from the vote.

Authorization was given for the purchase of a riding lawn mower at a total cost of $1,150.

A bid amounting to $100 submitted by Russ Lehr, for the village's '54 Ford truck, was accepted.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a special meeting held on May 18th.

Forecast methanol fuel at 50¢ a gallon by '80's

Environment Minister Len Marchand said today a consultants' study concludes that methanol fuel could be produced from a combination of wood and natural gas for about 35 to 50 cents per gallon by the mid 1980's.

Noting that oil prices will probably be in the $25 per barrel range by the middle of the next decade, Mr. Marchand said that methanol production could by then have become a profitable enterprise.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Interior Lumber Manufacturers Association, he referred to a study prepared for the federal government by the Winnipeg firm of InterGroup Consulting Economists, which says that methanol liquid fuel produced from the forests could become competitive with petroleum-based fuels in the next 10 years

He cautioned, however, that the consultants' report is only a study, and does not represent government policy. The study will be released soon.

"The potential role that forest biomass could play is seen by consultant study to be very large. The volumes of residues that are either surplus to or unusable for the fibre needs of conventional forest product plants are sufficient to support a major methanol industry. This would eventually be capable of producing over 11 billion gallons of methanol annually across Canada," he said

Mr. Marchand also noted that British Columbia could produce some 3.5 billion gallons of that annual total, which would be far more than the province could consume.

The surplus would allow a significant new export opportunity in British Columbia.

He said the consultants estimated that the costs of producing methanol from various materials were:

— from forest biomass alone - - 50 to 65 cents per gallon;

— from coal - - 45 to 55 cents per gallon;

— from forest biomass combined with natural gas - - 35 to 50 cents per gallon.

Mr. Marchand noted that there is no one-to-one comparison between gasoline and methanol as automobile fuels. Although methanol is high octane fuel, and cleaner burning than gasoline, it takes about three gallons of methanol to power a car over the same distance as two gallons of gasoline. The most efficient and money-saving use of methanol would probably be in a gasoline-methanol fuel mixture, he said

Methanol is only one of several options being studied by the federal government at present for developing alternative liquid fuels, but the technical properties of methanol "establish it as an interesting and possibly front-running contender."

Mr Marchand warned, however, that there remain a number of technical "knowledge gaps" that need to be closed, and that any development of the forest for energy production would have to be handled in an environmentally acceptable manner that involved sound forest management.

Holden athletes pace Beaver in Zone meet

. . . Schultz leads seniors

Athletes from the County of Beaver, headed by Dave Schultz and his Holden School teammates, made the county's best-ever showing during Central East Alberta high schoos track and field competitions.

The meet was held in Camrose last Thursday afternoon with the top winners in each event advancing to the Regional Meet which was held in Sherwood Park on Saturday.

Schultz picked up twenty-four points during the competition in Camrose to be named as the top competitor in the senior boys' category, for which he received a trophy.

Holden School racked up seventy-seven points in the meet to take second place in the competition, for 'A' classification schools. They finished only three points behind Clensort and six points ahead of Bashaw.

Two individuals from the County, as well as two members of a relay team, will be going to the provincial finals in Edmonton on Saturday as a result of their showing at the regional meet in Sherwood Park.

Dave Schultz of Holden earned 22x37 foot extension to the north side of the present community hall.

Eugene Varsava of Holden appeared for the Kappersick Community Association to present that community's five-year plan.

Hjordis Armitage and Christine Mackay of the management committee reported on a meeting with George Baker and Colleen Walker during which time an inventory of stock was taken.

It was agreed, by the Board, that materials not used during the summer, and not needed by other programs, would be sold.

Reports submitted by Baker and Walker were accepted as presented.

It was agreed that Miss Walker would be responsible for sending all information for Camp Lake programs to the local recreation boards.

Minutes of a Board meeting held on April 26, were approved.

Information for this same story was published from the correspondence from a meeting held in the Holden Complex, on May 31st.

and the right to compete in the 200 and 100 metre races when he won the 200m event and came in second in the 100m race.

Nancy Neufeld of Tofield will be competing in the junior girls' 800 metre race after she took second place in Sherwood Park.

Local associations present capital plans

Three community associations presented their capital planning for the next five years to a recent meeting of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board.

Sports Days planned in Bardo and Holden

Two sports days have been planned for Friday, in conjunction with the annual celebration of Farmers Day.

Bardo and Holden are the two communities which will be holding their annual sports days, with plenty of activities planned in both centers.

Because of the involvement of baseball teams from both centers, as well as other league teams, games in the Powerline Baseball League, normally scheduled for Thursday evenings, have not been scheduled for this evening (Thursday).

BARDO

Baseball will highlight the activities in Bardo's annual Sports Day.

Senior teams competing will all come from the Powerline League. In addition to the host club, the other entries in the tournament will come from Round Hill, Ryley and Tofield.

Little League baseball games are scheduled and there will be races, in different categories, for the children.

A refreshment booth will be operated all day and supper will be served from five and seven o'clock.

HOLDEN

A full schedule has been planned for Holden's annual Sports Day, which is held under the sponsorship of the Holden Agricultural Society.

A bacon and egg breakfast will be served between 7-9.30 a.m. while a giant parade will get underway at 10.30 a.m.

The senior baseball tournament will feature teams from Bawif, Daysland, Longheed, Sedgewick, Viking and Holden.

A men's fastball tournament will involve Bruce, Kingman, Mundare, Viking and two teams from Holden.

Ladies fastball action will be between Holden and Ryley, and exhibition ball will be played at the minor level.

There will be a tractor rodeo, a horseshoe tournament, and a gymkhana.

A beef barbeque will be served at 4.30 p.m. and a dance will be held in the evening.

Police react to emergency

RCMP responded quickly to an emergency in Holden on Sunday when a resident of that community suddenly developed complications from recent surgery.

Members of the Tofield Detachment were in the Holden area when they received word that Stanley Kolodychuk was having problems with stitches placed following a stomach operation, and contact had not been able to be established with the ambulance service.

Mr. Kolodychuk was placed in the police cruiser and radio contact was established with the ambulance service in Tofield.

The ambulance met the police car at Ryley and transformed Mr. Kolodychuk to University Hospital in Edmonton, where he is reported to be recovering.

Rebekahs help out

Covell Rebekah Lodge of Ryley visited Tofield Lodge on Monday to present the senior citizens with outdoor furniture. Standing are Mrs. Dorothy Clark of the Rebekahs and John Boergen, manager of the Lodge. Seated are two residents, Steve Podoborozny, 84, who used to farm north of Ryley, and Jack Lowe, 82, who has just returned from a world cruise.

Secret courts

The country cannot but be grateful to Peace River MP Ged Baldwin for his obdurate insistence that Parliament be enabled to study all the relevant material encompassed in the secret trial of Peter Treu, charged with handling documents which had been declared secret. It didn't even matter that he was the author of the documents. Both the prosecution and the defence agreed the entire trial should be conducted in secret, the only public facet being the need to pronounce sentence in public.

Mr. Baldwin has long urged an end to the indiscriminate power of the government to declare secret anything it wants to, including material it might find embarassing, but which has no other reason for being secret.

The Freedom of Information laws in the United States make such actions impossible in that country, and while they may experience abuses of justice, there is nothing like such a Star Court, where citizens are tried in complete secrecy, convicted in complete secrecy, and ordered to maintain continuing silence on the subject even after the trial is over, as was Mr. Treu. Public utterance, on complaint, could find him in contempt of court.

It's entirely possible that ninety-nine percent of our people couldn't care less, and have more interest in the score of last night's game, or the chances in tomorrow night's contest. But that one per cent, or those few who have seen at first-hand the awesome spectre faced by people, citizens or tourists, in other lands, where there are no guarantees of habeas corpus, no right to trial, no right to be charged after arrest, can appreciate how much we have to lose if this move towards trial in secrecy is allowed to develop in our country.

Red herrings

Surely one of the reasons Canadians are so poorly informed on many matters is the inordinate amount of attention focussed on red herrings. Not to make a pun, the acute contention at this time is the reaction taken by Canada in denying fishing rights to American commercial fishermen, which was immediately countered by a retaliatory move by the U.S., which was only logical and to be expected.

The U.S., however, went one step further, and denied fishing rights to Canadian sport fishermen, and it's almost more attention is being focussed on this minor, and relatively unimportant aspect of the situation, than is being devoted to the underlying problem at the root of the dispute in the first place.

Involved are questions of serious economics, as Canadians finance almost the entire salmon spawning industry, only to lose the return on their investment as major proportions of the harvest are picked off when the salmon return through warmer southern waters to their spawning grounds.

Also involved, according to plausible report, are questions of territorial jurisdiction, undersea oil rights, and other equally important aspects of the economic game in the nation versus nation world [illegible].

To harp on the relatively small number of fish figuring in the sport fishing category is one of the cardinal sins in golfing . . . failing to keep your eye on the ball.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (CP) — Throughout the past decade - the Trudeau years - Canada has been moving ever closer to the brand of socialism rebuilt took 44 years to develop in Sweden.

I visited Sweden earlier this year, primarily to examine the success story, particularly as it pertained to industrial independence. The success story has gone sour, and Sweden is in deep economic trouble.

Last year the gross national product fell two percentage points. Swedes are the highest taxed people in the Western world. There is little labor strife - an average of 4 minutes lost time per worker per year lost through strikes last year - but the record of absenteeism for sickness is staggering. Government pays 90% of the salary of sick workers, and you can stay home sick for up to seven days without a doctor's certificate.

Trouble is, to qualify for sick benefits on the first day of an illness, you have to telephone the special government number the day before you are sick. On Sunday night so many will be dialing that number you'll have trouble reaching it, and Monday sickness absenteeism will run at 20 percent in some plants.

Everybody buys on credit because Swedes can write off the interest they pay on virtually everything from home mortgages to loans for a yacht. It's one of the ways to beat those high taxes. Everybody gets five-week holidays annually, and you can't lose your job - not even by having an affair with the boss's daughter.

In Sweden there's a growing realization that things are coming unstuck, and both unions and government appear to be moving to do something about it. In Canada, we're still hunting for pieces of the Swedish model to graft onto our system, and that's folly of the worst kind.

Critics of the system say taxation is so high there's no incentive left to work for advancement. If you get a raise, you keep it all to the tax man, and the same thing happens to overtime payments.

The theory of combining socialism with free enterprise is predicted on the assumption that people will contribute their best efforts willingly to such a system, when in fact the Swedish example has proved otherwise. To my mind the same demonstration has already been made in Canada, through people who rip off the system when they get a chance. It's not the fashion to take only the benefits you need. The idea is to get as much as possible out, while contributing as little as possible.

You can't launch individual morality, but it's a reawakening of that individual morality that is needed to turn Canada [illegible].

$2.00 per year

It has been a long time since you could subscribe to your local weekly newspaper for $2.00 per year but it was once the standard rate for almost every weekly.

Art Menzies, now retired, wrote a whimsical comment about the real value of the $2.00 investment when he published weekly newspapers in Northern Alberta.

He made a wager with some of his readers that he could write a weekly column on a wide range of topics and end up relating each one to the $2.00 subscription to his paper. He won the wager over a period of several years and a book resulted from a collection of the best columns.

The book is out of print and [illegible] his sense of humor and flair for writing. To prove his style has not diminished he has written an "opener" for 1978 and will include the year in which each of the succeeding columns was written

Enjoy a bit of nostalgia, some philosophy and a bit of fun each week on this page [illegible]

CHANGE - 1978

Change does not necessarily mean improvement - - it was a change when I started writing a column in this newspaper.

that improvement or otherwise, change is always with us. Almost the only unchanging thing in this world is the unrelenting change that is taking place always, everywhere.

People of my generation are well aware that the world is changing, without being reminded by our children and grandchildren that "you must remember that things have changed since you were our age."

Indeed they have. I can remember dancing something called a three-step. I can remember also that in doing so, a slight squeeze from my partner's hand was enough to thrill me for the whole evening. Today, such modest expectations would be called "square" or "gross," I'm not [illegible]

I think it is fair to estimate that there has been more change in the human condition during the present century than in any previous century - - perhaps in all previous centuries combined. Whether all these changes add up to a general improvement is another matter, but at least they have served as a test of our ability to survive.

To survive, one must accept change and roll with the punches. Those who can't or won't do this will not survive for long.

Consider, for example, the sad case of Mr. Dinny, who lived in Alberta long before there was such a place as Alberta. He made his home in, or near, a warm swampy or shallow sea, not far from where the city of Drumheller now stands. He was, of course, a dinosaur, and was very large, very bad-tempered, very ugly, and from the back down, very powerful.

One morning he had a visitor, by name Chicken Little, who addressed him in [illegible]

"Good morning, Your Worship. I have news for you [illegible]

First, the good news. The sky is not falling at all. I just said that to scare the Bejabers out of the king.

"Now the bad news. The climate is changing. Soon it will be very cold. Your Worship must buy some long winter underwear. And a word in your ear. Don't be taken in by political propaganda - - buy the best long winter underwear, from Nova Scotia. I have spoken."

Mr Dinny laughed loud and long after his visitor had gone - - he had not given permission for the sweeping changes she had described, therefore they [illegible]

In the very next mail Mr Dinny got his eviction notice, and soon afterwards the property was disposed of to some fellows who wanted to start a coal mine - - the chilly weather was beginning to [illegible]

So much for those who cannot accept change.

Some desirable changes will never, alas, take place. For example, according to the latest Trot poll, a majority of hockey fans would like to see Howie Meeker changed into a frog, so that he could easily be stepped upon every time he said "Lookit!" A minority said it would be more humane to put him in the Senate, where he would be completely and permanently silenced, and without diluting senatorial quality in the least.

And there are some who wish that the price of the local newspaper could be changed back to two dollars per year. What a hope!

Right to work

We recently received a newsletter from the Independent Contractors and Businessmen Association of British Columbia, in which it notes, among other things, that most people in Canada - a vast majority, in fact - want to see more democracy and responsibility in trade unions, especially among union leaders. The letter makes some other pertinent points, as well, and we therefore feel inclined to reprint the letter, here, verbatim. It follows

The Canadian public has spoken loud and clear in the survey results released today on the subject of labor legislation. There is overwhelming support, not only from the public at large, but also from rank and file trade unionists and particularly their families, for legislation designed to bring about responsible union leadership and the return of democratic membership control to the trade-union movement.

It is time that the politicians took a long, hard look at some facts. It is time that union leadership who, in combination with business and political elements, should come back down to earth and realistically assess what they are doing to the Canadian economy.

Three factors must be closely examined when searching for the root causes on which our economic problems are grounded. Firstly, politicians must accept the largest share of responsibility for our growing inflation. They have lost control of the power to govern. They have permitted an ever-growing civil service bureaucracy to take control. Secondly, powerful national and international labor unions have been the main factor behind our growing unemployment. They have priced their services far beyond fair market value; they restrict union membership in specific trades and then try to keep non-union people from working. Thirdly, a great many normally astute and capable businessmen have stood passively by and watched it happen

The public opinion and attitude survey must completed for the Independent Contractors and Businessmen Association of B.C., by Canadian Facts' monthly survey, deserves serious study and consideration by all sector of the Canadian economy. This survey is confined and relates directly to opinions and viewpoints concerning Right-to-Work. It is obvious that the working people and the public at large are starting to seriously question the whole social structure. They are starting to understand that they are caught in the middle of a power struggle between elements in government, labor leaders and the business community.

ICBA of B.C. is a non-profit [illegible] dependent businessmen and is committed to the development of equitable employer-employee relations. This involves such items as profit-sharing, group insurances and medical benefits, long term disability and retirement security. To accomplish such programmes it is going to be necessary to realistically and accurately re-assess certain basic economic factors, many of which have been carried forward from the past and which are not relevent to the needs of today.

There is an urgent need, for instance, to undertake serious research and evaluation in respect to the actual distribution of dollars derived from the sale of goods and services. Union leaders, and even a great many businessmen, lack study of the actual labor costs involved at a particular work place. They can make a good case to show that their share of the dollars are lower than some other group of workers. However, very few people, including many economists, fail to look at the total labor costs involved in the production of the nation's goods and services

There is a reason to believe that the total labor costs in our overall economic system could be as high as 85 or even 90 per cent of each sales dollar. If such is the case, it should be obvious that a one per cent increase in the total labor costs would put as great a strain on the pricing system as a 10 per cent increase in profits.

It is hoped that the ICBA of B.C. Public Opinion and Attitude Survey, will be considered from a constructive viewpoint, and the information it contains used to produce realistic economic understanding of benefit to all Canadians

A native North American plant once used by Indians and early settlers could be coming back into prominence

The plant is Jerusalem artichoke, a member of the sunflower family which produces tubers high in carbohydrates. It can be eaten as a vegetable, processed into liquid sweeteners or even used to produce ethanol as a substitute for gasoline

Researchers at Agriculture Canada's Morden, Man., Research Station have been studying the Jerusalem artichoke for several years in preparation for the time when commercial production of the crop may be feasible on a large scale

Stolen license plates found on a stolen car

Don Roth of Tofield reported the loss of the license plates from his vehicle, and the report led to the arrest of suspects for car theft

Tofield RCMP alerted other police departments about the license plate theft and RCMP noticed the plates on a car in their area. Investigation proved that the car was stolen.

A check with Kallai Motors in Tofield showed that the vehicle was missing from the Tofield firm's lot. A number of persons have been charged.

Julia Sagnoon of Tofield RR4 reported finding a keg of beer on her property. The beer is in the possession of the Tofield RCMP where it may be claimed by the owner.

Artificial pig rearing

Swine breeders could make their production more efficient if they could cut down on deaths among young piglets More than half of all swine mortality on the farm occurs during the first [illegible] after birth.

Scientists in Agriculture Canada's Animal Research Institute in Ottawa are working with a University of British Columbia researcher and Canada Packers Ltd., towards a solution of the piglet mortality problem. Their research involves weaning the piglets at birth and feeding them a special extract, called immunoglobulin, to replace the antibodies they would normally receive from the sow's milk.

IT'S YOUR BODY. AND YOU CAN DO A LOT WITH IT.

You can make a decision now that may save or greatly enrich someone's life later. That decision is . . . whether or not to donate vital organs or tissues to those who urgently need them.

Consider it carefully . . . discuss it with your family. Organ donorship is a very personal decision and you should consider what it will mean to you . . . and to the life of someone else.

You cannot know the future, so think it over soon. If you wish to make this commitment, fill in the Donor Consent Card that is now available.

It comes with the issuing of your new drivers license, or you can obtain one now, from your nearest motor vehicle outlet, liquor store or your doctor's office.

Once you have filled out the card, carry it with you at all times in your wallet or purse. In any organ transplant, time is crucial. A delay of hours, or perhaps even minutes, could mean the tissues or organs are no longer healthy and useful.

You can help people to see again or give them a new lease on life.

Important things are happening in medicine. Eyes are in great demand for corneal transplants and other treatments for the blind. Kidneys are needed by many people who are now being kept alive by artificial means (dialysis) while waiting for a donor. Pituitary glands can be used to supply vital growth hormones. Middle ear drums, skin grafts for severe burn cases, heart muscle tissue, segments of bone, whole bodies for research . . . these and other organs are all needed now, and others may be needed in the future as new transplant techniques are perfected.

You may qualify.

If you are over eighteen years of age and in good health you may qualify.

If you have questions about the medical acceptance of any or all of your organs or tissues, ask your doctor.

Is there any age limit for donors?

It depends. Kidneys and other vital organs come from people under 60 years of age. Cornea and pituitary donations are usually possible at any age.

There is no guarantee your donation will be used.

Several factors can affect whether or not you will be able to donate . . . the physical condition of your body at the time of your death, the circumstances of death, the timing involved. Contrary to many beliefs, most organs and tissues cannot be preserved or stored indefinitely.

If you have a Donor Consent Card that alerts the police and medical personnel to your wishes, you have greatly increased your chances of being able to contribute to the life of someone living after you.

If you are worried about funeral or burial arrangements, there's little need for concern.

Removal of donated organs will not cause disfigurement of the body or interfere with customary funeral or burial arrangements.

If you donate your body to medical research, particular burial arrangements can be made with the research institution.

A consent to donate organs or tissues is no good in a Will.

Your Donor Consent Card, witnessed by two persons (preferably next-of-kin) is a legal document. By the time a Will is probated, it is too late to carry out the donation of organs and tissues.

You can change your mind.

If for some reason or another you decide to change your mind, just destroy your Donor Consent Card and let your family know that you no longer wish to be a donor.

Is there anything else you can do to help this essential program?

You can let others know about it, but please remember that it is a very personal decision.

Plastic mulches recommended

A plastic mulch can be a tremendous boon to horticulture in many parts of Alberta.

This is the conclusion reached at the Alberta Horticultural Research Center in Brooks after two years of trials in which clear, black, white and aluminum polyethylene plastic (1.5 mil) was used on test plots of cucumbers, melons, tomatoes and corn. The plots were located all the way from Brooks in the south to the Peace River region in the north.

Results to date indicate that vine crops benefit most from a plastic mulch. In the research center's tests, the foliage of these crops was more lush and their yields were greatly improved over those obtained from conventionally grown crops. Plastic mulches also make it possible for crops like watermelons to mature in areas where their maturity would otherwise be marginal. Results with tomatoes were not so encouraging. It appears that the greatly increased vine growth delayed their maturity beyond an acceptable date. Although information on growing corn with a mulch is not complete, the plots in the Peace River region have done well.

Paul Ragan, research horticulturist at the Alberta research center, reports that clear plastic gave results that were far superior to those obtained from the colored plastics. However, clear plastic can only be used on weed-free soil because it promotes rapid weed growth.

Black plastic was found to make the best mulch. There was no problem with weeds because the black plastic does not allow light to pass through, thereby completely eliminating all weed growth.

According to Mr. Ragan, plastic mulches transmit the heat that they absorb directly into the soil, which enhances both vegetative growth and yields. This added heat, which cannot escape into the air, draws up the soil moisture, and enables the plants to enjoy a more uniform soil moisture level than would otherwise be possible. Mr. Ragan points out that this soil moisture retention factor can be disastrous to vine crops if the weather is cloudy, cold and very wet. "Plastic mulches", he says, "work best in the hot, dry regions of Alberta."

A plastic mulch can be laid either before or after the crop has been planted. The soil must be slightly moist or the seeds or transplants may suffer from dehydration early in the season. The soil must also be very smooth (no lumps or ridges) to permit a tight union of plastic and soil. Air spaces between the soil and the plastic will prevent the transfer of heat from the plastic to the soil.

Special mulch applicator machines are available for applying plastic mulches on a commercial scale. However home gardeners can do a good job by hand", says Mr. Ragan, "providing they have the soil smooth and level and bury the edges of the plastic in the soil. If the edges are not buried, the wind is likely to catch them and blow the plastic away."

Mr. Ragan recommends making diagonal cuts in plastic that is laid over a row of seeds that are planted close together (e.g. carrots, turnips, etc.). The cuts must be made directly over the row. The diagonal cuts are recommended because the wind is less likely to tear the plastic than is the case with straight cuts.

Cuts two to three inches long in the form of an "X" are recommended for seeds that are planted several inches apart and for transplants. Again the cuts should be made directly over the seeds if the seeds are planted before the plastic is laid. Since succulent plants like cucumbers and melons are prone to damping-off, larger cuts are recommended for these crops to allow for a greater exchange of air.

Mr. Ragan says transplants should be given water when they are put into the ground. After that the moisture from an irrigation sprinkler system or rain, usually regular rains will provide the plants with enough moisture. He also says that hotcaps can be placed over warm weather crops that are being grown with a mulch to give them an early start in areas where frost is likely.

At the end of the growing season the mulch should be pulled up. If it is not torn, it can be used another year. It should never be worked into the soil because it does not decompose.

"The advantages of plastic mulches for horticultural crops in areas where they are suitable," Mr. Ragan says, "are that they produce earlier crops and higher yields, control weed growth (except the clear plastic) and conserve moisture."

Further information on plastic mulches can be obtained from Ralph Trimmer, Horticulture Branch, Alberta Agriculture, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, T5K 2C8.

HOME SEWING GOES METRIC

For some time now, we've been travelling at kilometres per hour and forecasting the weather in degrees Celsius. We've adjusted to metrics in the kitchen, and soon, we will be sewing metric as well. After July 1, fabric lengths will be sold in metres and lengths of a metre, instead of yards and eighths of a yard. The metre is a bit longer than a yard - about 10 percent greater in length.

Fabric widths will not change, but will be expressed in centimetres instead of inches. The most frequent sizes are: 90 cm replaces 36 inches.
115 cm replaces 44-45 inches.
140 cm replaces 54 inches.
150 cm replaces 60 inches.

COSTS

Because of the small length difference, sewing costs will be slightly higher than the old price per yard. You should however, end up paying the same amount as before, since the total amount of fabric required for a garment will remain the same.

BUYING A PATTERN

Here again, sizes do not change, but body measurements are expressed in centimetres. In size 12, and 24 inch bust is replaced by 57 cm. It may sound shocking at first, but there really is no difference. Why not take your measurements in centimetres and familiarize yourself with metric dimensions?

NOTIONS

Zipper lengths will be in centimetres, while seam bindings and trims will be described by millimetres and sold by length in metres. Button sizes will be measure in millimetres according to the diameter.

SEWING MACHINE NEEDLES

These too, will be known differently. For fine fabrics, 70 replaces No. 11; for standard fabrics, 80 replaces No. 14; for heavy fabrics, 100 replaces No. 16.

SEAM ALLOWANCES

As you may know, the pattern seam allowances have been marked in millimetres for quite some time.

These are: 6mm replaces ¼ inch, 15 mm replaces five-eighths inch and 20 mm replaces [illegible] inch.

Since we've easily adjusted to metrics in other areas, the switch to metric sewing will be no problem at all. Right?

Lakeshore-Mckenzie

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

A former long time resident of the Lakeshore district, Mrs. Anna Ferguson (widow of the late Elmo Ferguson) of the Sherwood Park Lodge, suffered a stroke around May 10th and was rushed to the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton where she passed away May 27, without gaining consciousness. Funeral services were held May 30th at the Sherwood Park United Church with Rev. Burgess officiating. Interment was in the Glenwood Memorial Gardens in Sherwood Park. Pallbearers were 5 grandsons, Edmond Ferguson, Brian Ferguson, Louis Renaud, Brian Seleski and Deanna Champagne and a nephew, Willard Ferguson. Anna was 88 yrs. old at time of death. After the service, the Sherwood Park ladies served lunch in the church banquet room to friends and relatives.

Anna, an English war bride, came to Canada in 1919 with her husband, Elmo, after the first World War, who predeceased her in 1972. She leaves to mourn her loss five sons, Edris of Tofield, Lorne of Devon, Albert of Athabasca, George of Gift Lake, and Frankie of Lethbridge; 16 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. Elmo and Anna farmed in the Lakeshore district where their family grew up before they left the district. Edris and Nola reside on the family farm.

Howard and Mae Ferguson were among other relatives from the district attending the funeral of Mrs. Anna Ferguson at Sherwood Park.

Leroy and Shirley Eaton of Fort McMurray were May 27th overnight guests at the home of Leroy's mother, Ellen Eaton, enroute home from visiting Shirley's mother, Mrs. Vera Raper of Lavoy on May 28.

Arnold and Deanna Nelson motored to Vermillion on Thursday to visit Deanna's grandmother, Rachel and Bill Sisen. Mrs. Sisen hasn't been very well lately.

Alberta and Dolores Krystal and 2 children were Saturday evening callers at the home of Mrs. Ellen Eaton.

The weather of last ten days has delayed seeding after the heavy rainfall which although needed, left the land too wet to continue seeding operations. Any weeds got a good start, requiring the land to be reworked before sowing the grain.

RAINS ALLEVIATE DROUGHT PROBLEM

Summer rains in most areas of southern Saskatchewan have likely saved rangeland cattle from a fate worse than thirst or hunger.

Because of dry conditions and poor forage stands earlier this year, cattle could well have become addicted to locoweed, a poisonous plant that can kill cattle. When grass becomes scarce on a range, cattle eat the weeds.

Under these conditions, cattle can develop a craving for locoweed and other dangerous species and even prefer them to good forage. Eventually, they can eat enough for the poison to be fatal.

Agriculture Canada's Swift Current, Sask., Research Station reports that fortunately, rains have increased grass stands and alleviated the problem this year.

Sewer system approved for Round Hill

A by-law allowing for start of a sewer system in the Hamlet of Round Hill passed third reading by Camrose County Council on Friday.

On a motion by Councillor William Banack, the services of Torchinsky Consultants are to be engaged to prepare plans for the project, with tenders expected to be called for in the middle of July. It is hoped whoever is awarded the contract will get the work underway in August this year.

The estimated cost of the underground system plus the sewage lagoon, is approximatley $140,000. Unlike the system in the neighboring hamlet of Ohaton, there will be no lift station involved in Round Hill.

The assessment against property owners will amount to $1.24 per front foot per year. This computes to $124 per year for a 100-ft. wide yard. An off site levy will be charged land owners living outside the proposed service area boundaries.

An informational meeting is expected to be held in Round Hill for the residents of Round Hill in the near future.

According to an Engineer's report given to the County on Thursday, residents of the Hamlet of Ohaton can expect to be using their sewage system by the end of June.

Confronting Your Faith

Re: AFTER DEATH
With Pastor J.M. Schmidt of the Tofield Gospel Church

No generation has been more quickly, more frequently, and more accurately informed about death and dying than we have. Our newspapers, TV's, radios and telephones transmit the news only moments after it has happened. Yet, no age has been so death-denying, death-evading and death-dodging as ours. It is a puzzling paradox that the very people who pride themselves on being so realistic, so scientific and so open, should be so utterly superficial, so unprepared and so irrationally evasive concerning the most important and certain event of life. Psychologists inform us that man uses every trick imaginable to avoid thinking about, talking about, or facing death realistically. We utilize any number of mechanisms to ward off any personal consideration of death and its related consequences. We have become partners in a mysterious conspiracy of silence.

Dr. Kuebler Ross, who has done extensive research of terminal cases in larger institutions says that parents, relatives, friends, and families all shield their dying loved ones from the truth of death. Instead, they mislead them to believe an erroneous dream that death is far off, and seek to amuse and cheer the sufferer with funny jokes, sex magazines, comic books and the distorted views of life as portrayed on TV. Consequently, while thousands of voices and cases proclaim our mortality, we have become prone to dismiss any serious thoughts on death as untimely, out of place, or even cruel and unkind. Most of us prefer to cultivate less fruitful fields by turning our minds to objects and subjects trivial for the present, and useless for the future.

The Psalmist David intelligently realized, "Truly as the Lord liveth, there is but a step between me and death." Certainly it is wise, as real and so factual as death itself. He therefore prayed, "Lord, that I make me to number my days, that I might apply my heart unto wisdom." Psalm 90 12

"Prepare to meet your god", is not only a timely admonition but a practical necessity. It is wise to "Set your house (materially and spiritually) in order", before that certain event. Neither man's greatness, cleverness nor his wealthiness can save him from the clutches of the Grim reaper. "It is appointed unto man once to die, and after that the judgment." So what can and should be done?

The antidote to Death is Life. Eternal Life. That kind of life is not found in church membership, baptism, religious rituals or even in living a good life. Eternal Life is only and exclusively in the person of Jesus Christ. He who conquered over death and hell said, "I am the resurrection and the LIFE, he that believes in me, even though he dies, shall live again, and all that live and have faith in me, shall live eternally."

Scripture unmistakeably states, "He that has the Son (Jesus Christ) in the heart has Life, but he who does not have Christ, does not have (eternal) life." It is only with Christ that we can face death fearlessly and peacefully, for then death is only the gateway to a much more glorious Life in heaven. Through all your days be sure you prepare adequately and in time!

Cartoon on trial

A cartoon whose objective is farm safety is being published in this issue of The Mercury.

The cartoon comes from the Alberta Labour Occupational Health and Safety Division through the co-operation of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association.

The objective of the cartoon is to see if readers like it and its safety tips. If the cartoon receives favourable comments, it could become a regular series in the fall.

Only nineteen weekly newspapers in Alberta have been given the cartoon for its trial run.

Readers are urged to express their views to the editor of this paper by June 23rd so that we may pass along opinions to the producers of the cartoon.

United Church delegates confer in Camrose

Resolutions on disarmament and world relations were carried during the 34th Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada held in Camrose last weekend.

Because a special full-scale session on disarmament has been demanded by Third World Nations, it was decided by delegates to the United Church conference to request the Government of Canada to instruct the Canadian delegation to the United Nations Special Session on Disarmament to urge all the nuclear powers to agree to a ration, the Secretary General of the World Conferences on Religion and Peace consider a ban to the development of new weapons of mass destruction and new delivery systems, and large annual reductions in the stockpiles of nuclear weapons, as well as an effective plan for the redirection of resources released by disarmament for peaceful economic development, particularly in the Third World.

Copies of this resolution are to be sent by telegraph to the Prime Minister of Canada, the Secretary General of the United Nations, the Head of the Canadian Delegation to the United Nations Organongoing comprehensive provincial awards programme of its kind in Canada. At last year's awards banquet and presentation in Calgary, a total of 216 awards were given out in three categories of performance, excellence and service. For the first time, the silver Premier's Award was given to one person in each category who had attained extraordinary heights of achievement.

Performance awards are given to Albertans who, as Alberta representatives placed first in a Canadian championship, or first, second or third in a recognized international championship, between September 1, 1977 and August 31, 1978. This applies to sport and non-sport competitions.

Service awards are given for individuals or groups who, in a voluntary capacity, have performed outstanding service for ten years or more, having provincial or wide regional impact.

Excellence awards are given to individuals or groups for exceptional contributions and/or achievements in a professional or occupational capacity at provincial, national or international levels.

Deadline for nominations is September 2.

Since effective Christian witness for peace is greatly hindered by lack of knowledge of the realities of modern war and of Christian Ethics on the part of large numbers of members of the Church, a further resolution was made that the Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada authorize the preparation and use in all congregations of this Conference, of a study programme on Christian responsibility in peacemaking and peacekeeping on an international scale.

A discussion of the fate of 2,500 "disappeared" persons in Chile recently led the conference delegates to unanimously move that the United Church of Canada express its concern through a telegraph to the military government of Chile, requesting that government to meet immediately with representatives of human rights groups in Chile to account for the fate of all "disappeared" persons.

With reference to a recommendation received from Yellowhead Presbytery regarding the Rev. Douglas Lester Berry, in connection with problems arising from Pioneer Court, a condominium adjacent to Salisbury United Church on the Clover Bar Pastorial Charge, it was resolved that the Yellowhead Presbytery recommend to the 54th Alberta Conference that the name of Rev. D. L. Berry be removed from the roll of the Conference.

Approximately 580 delegates attended the conference at Camrose Lutheran College May 28, 31 and June 1.

Achievement awards nominations sought

Nominations are being accepted now for 1978 Alberta Achievement Awards, organized by Alberta Culture.

If you know of someone who has made an outstanding contribution in sports, the arts, community service, science or other fields, send in your recommendations. Nomination forms are available from Alberta Culture, Alberta Achievement Awards Programme, 14th Floor, CN Tower, Edmonton T5J 0K5.

International volleyball is scheduled

St. Paul will soon be the site of some of the finest volleyball in the country and the north western United States.

On June 9th, 10th, and 11th, teams from Oregon, Washington, B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be in St. Paul competing in the annual Can-Am volleyball championship.

The tournament got its start in 1975 and has been going strong since, with the finest junior volleyball players western Canada and parts of the United States.

They are chosen from various universities, colleges and other institutions, and must be of only the best caliber.

The tournament was designed for junior players not over the age of 21, but the Alberta teams have lowered their age even more.

To produce some expert players for the future, the Alberta delegations has decided to set its age limit at 19 in order to prolong their playing together and able to compete in a higher level of competition in the future.

This year's tournament will be comprised of eleven teams, six womens and five mens with competition beginning on Friday.

The teams will commence with round robin play, one point being awarded per win, followed by a best of three semi-final match between the first and third place finishers and second and fourth place.

The final matches in both the mens and womens will be a best of five affair.

The Can-Am Tournament in the past has been dominated by the play of the B.C. teams with the men winning the tournament all three years it has been in existence while the B.C. women have won it twice. The Alberta women were fortunate enough to come out victors in the 1976 series.

This year's events will take place in the St. Paul Racette Junior High and St. Paul Regional School with the women playing at Racette and the men at the Regional.

Advance tickets for the tournament will go on sale this week at the following locations: Champs Sports, Red Rooster Stores, Double D Western Wear and the St. Paul Journal. Out of town they will be sold at Mikulin Mckay Sports Bonnyville, Vilna Lumber, Diggers Sports Centre Vermilion, Mitchells Confectionery and George's Cycle in Elk Point.

Tickets will be available for each separate day as well as tournament passes. Friday tickets $2.00, Saturday $3.00, Sunday $3.00, adult tournament pass $5.00.

Oil and gas activities at Prudhoe Bay and elsewhere along Alaska's North Slope and the Canadian Western Arctic provided the incentive for the formation of Arctic Transportation Limited. The company is preparing to provide specialized transportation along the Western Arctic coastline.

A listening chicken is champ

Frank is a good listener, which makes his owner and chief handler two very happy young men.

Frank is a chicken, and on Saturday, he became the chicken racing champion of the world.

His owner is Francis Thompson of Rosalind, and his equally excited chief handler is Mark Loesch of Daysland.

Using a new technique, the rural duo easily won the crown, all the glory, and the prizes that go with the honour of having the fastest moving chicken in the whole world.

The winners had a tape record emitting chicken sounds at the finish line. In addition they also had a chicken at the race's end. Frank took a look and a listen and made a bee line for the finish line, and then stalked around in triumph waiting for the other two challengers to decide second and third places.

For winning the world crown Thompson and Loesch won a trip for two to Las Vegas along with two hundred and fifty dollars in spending money. They also were presented with a special gold chicken by Darcy's Jewellers.

Second place in the championship race went to Wayne Ungstad of Ponoka while third place was taken by Brian Reinhart of Bawlf.

Competitions began on Friday afternoon with eliminations races. Further elimination heats were held Saturday morning with semi-final and final races being held in the afternoon.

Fifty-two chickens were entered in this year's championships which are sponsored by CFCW.

Ryley and district news items

Kathy Wilde

Friends of Ryley and district were saddened to hear of the death of Mrs. Clara Westlund (nee Lillimo) of Calgary. Clara was born north east of Ryley, living there with her parents, three sisters and three brothers. She attended Thule School and married Emil Westlund in 1927. Because Emil worked for the C.N. the couple lived several places in Saskatchewan and Alberta before they finally retired in Calgary. Clara leaves to mourn her husband, Emil, one daughter, Yvonne Faith, three sons, Glen and Milton of Edmonton and Brian of Calgary, two sisters, Mrs. Edith Schultz of Bashaw, and Mrs. Anna Anderson of Sorento Place, B.C., three brothers, Arthur Lillimo of Calgary, Clifford of Edmonton and Oscar of Elbow, Sask., many nieces and nephews and several grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her parents and her sister, Ella (Mrs. Sogge).

Vivian Wilde sponsored a home fashion show at her place May 30 with Edna Leburk showing her fashions. Many ladies and girls showed up for the sale.

Diane Kozdrowski will be out of the Ryley scene for a couple of months. She left on May 31 for the University Hospital in Edmonton.

Graduating from the University of Alberta last Monday were Peggy Lyons and Debbie Budinski. Debbie and Peggy have gone through school together all their lives, and both graduated as teachers. Debbie, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pope who were at the Jubilee Auditorium to see the girls, will be applying her education in Tofield come September when she begins teaching with a class of grade fives.

Andrea Allot graduated from Bonnie Doone High School last Saturday, one in a class of over 400. She attended the Ryley School all her life until grade 12, which she took in the city. The Allot family attended the ceremony which was held in the Jubilee Auditorium.

Married on Saturday at the United Church were George Greenwald and Georgina Graden.

Following the wedding were a supper and a dance open to the public at the Community Hall.

Bill, Erna and Vanessa Maaren and Elise Mathews of Holden spent the weekend with Ric and Florence Mathews in Bonnyville. They helped Beth and Todd celebrate their birthdays.

Monday June 12 has been designated as Ryley Cemetery clean-up day. The work will start at 1:30. Anyone wishing to help should bring their own tools. If it happens to rain that day the clean-up will be held one week later June 19.

A shower for Sherry Wickstrom was held Sunday evening in the Lutheran Church kitchen. Many of Sherry's former classmates lent a hand in the program. Vanda Johnson read a poem, Marlene Magnuson played the piano and gave a history of Sherry. Vanda and Tanya Nordby presented the gifts, and Cindi Rokon played two songs. The wedding is being held on Saturday.

WANTED: Volunteers to raise money for a worthwhile cause, the Gwynne Children's Home, a place for kids from broken families. The youth group from the Tofield Mennonite Church is sponsoring a 22-mile walk-a-thon from Tofield to Ryley and back on the afternoon of Saturday, June 24. Anyone with two legs can walk it. If you feel that you're tough enough to make it, call me at 663-3519 for a sponsor sheet and more information. Also watch for a more detailed article to be published next week in The Mercury.

Orion Lehman and Wanda Brinker became engaged on Thursday. Orion is the son of Oliver and Clara Lehman of Ryley, while Wanda is from Camrose.

Minister attends conference

by Grace Phillips

Rev. David Moddle of the Tofield United Church, was in attendance at the Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada held in Camrose at the Camrose Lutheran College May 30 through June 2. The Tofield-Ryley-Holden charge was also represented by Mrs. Janet Winness.

In answer to a questionnaire sent out earlier requesting the opinion of delegates as to the most important issue facing the United Church in Alberta, Rev. Moddle stated, "How to put Christian values back into our society's decision making."

The Rev. Jim Roberts of Edmonton, President of the Alberta Conference felt that matters of faith and renewal would be a large part of the discussion and social issues such as native land claims would be part of the considerations, but "we also need to regain some perspective on the meaning of our faith." Mr. Moddle agrees but adds, "that faith should send us back into the battle of human rights everywhere."

The keynote speaker was Professor Bill Adams of St. Andrew's College, Saskatoon.

FIREBLIGHT

Fireblight is a very common bacterial disease that damages apple, crabapple, hawthorne, mountain ash, cotoneaster and siskiatoon in Alberta.

Fireblight is especially destructive in cities and towns. One diseased tree can provide enough bacteria to infect all susceptible trees in a city block or farm orchard. Insects are important in spreading the bacteria; especially at blossoming time. Infected blossoms become blighted and turn brown. Later, twigs and attached leaves may appear as if scorched by fire. Such leaves sometimes remain on the trees all summer and well into the winter. The bacteria tend to work their way downward into the larger branches killing patches of bark and thus forming cankers. These cankers are discolored, slightly sunken and tend to crack at the edges. If not removed they may eventually encircle affected branches causing all parts above them to die. Cankers carry bacteria overwinter. In the spring drops of bacterial ooze emerge from the edge of the cankers, and may be spread by insects, rain, wind and pruning shears. Bacteria infect twigs through leaves and blossoms. Branches are infected through wounds, and trunks through wounds, suckers, and water sprouts.

Fireblight can be controlled by using resistant varieties and promptly pruning diseased tissues. No varieties are immune. The resistance of a variety can be determined by consulting the Alberta Horticultural Guide. Trees should be pruned annually during their dormant period and whenever the disease is noticed during the growing season. Always prune healthy trees first. Cut 10" below the canker and disinfect the shears. All diseased limbs should be burned. Excessive use if high-nitrogen fertilizers should be avoided as it promotes soft, susceptible growth.

Blood donors answer call

Residents of Tofield have shown that they can come through in time of need.

Sixty-eight Tofield and area residents responded to an appeal for blood donors when a local resident was scheduled for surgery.

Sponsored by the Tofield Lions Club, a blood donors clinic was held on Monday with the sixty-eight donors giving blood while another seven found out they were unable to contribute.

Eighteen of the donors were there specifically to help out in replacing the blood in the donors' bank which would have been used up during the operation on the town resident.

Prov. Park hectic over past weekend

Miquelon Lake Provincial Park was a "mad house" over the past weekend, according to Sgt. Norm Lowe of the Camrose RCMP detachment. An estimated 25,000 visitors were at the lake on Sunday, with a four mile line-up of vehicles on Highway 623 north to Edmonton waiting to get into the park. Although the area was well promoted by broadcast media throughout the day, people were being turned away at the gates early in the afternoon due to the lack of room.

RCMP at Camrose, who are responsible for patrolling the area, report the most serious of six automobile accidents over the weekend occured at Miquelon Lake on Sunday.

A 1984 GMC half-ton truck operated by Allan John Skognes of Camrose, and a Toyota containing Douglas Meads and Guy Lablance, both of Edmonton, were demolished in a head-on collision on a gravel road two miles east of the Miquelon Park gates. The operator and passenger of the Toyota were treated for minimal injuries in St. Mary's Hospital, Camrose. The combined value of the vehicles was reported to be $1,500

The Park Warden's office reports this weekend may be an indication of an extremely busy summer, with expectations that as the Commonwealth Games approach, the Park will be full all week.

Saskatchewan gets park

Grasslands National Park in the southwestern area of Saskatchewan seems destined to become Canada's most national park with the year

But it could have been the first national park in the world even before Yellowstone National Park in the U.S.A. or the first national park in Canada, before Banff in Alberta, had been settled. Settlers in the area listened to George Catlin. An artist and writer, Catlin in 1857 advocated that the entire prairie region be set aside as a national park to preserve both the buffalo and the Plains Indians who depended upon them for their livelihood

However it was not until June 20, 1977, that Saskatchewan Minister of Tourism and Renewable Resources Adolph Matasilla announced that the Provincial Government had given its conditional approval to the Government of Canada to proceed with the establishment of a Grasslands National Park. "In establishing this park, we will ensure that a part of our prairie heritage will be set aside and preserved in our Province for future generations" Mr. Matasilla said.

The bulk of original grasslands throughout the continent and, indeed, most of the world, has been modified by cultivation and other resource consumptive use practices. It is considered that the entire prairie region be set aside as a national park to preserve both the buffalo and the Plains Indians who depended upon them for their livelihood

However it was not until June 20, 1977, that Saskatchewan Minister of Tourism and Renewable Resources Adolph Matasilla announced that the Provincial Government had given its conditional approval to the Government of Canada to proceed with the establishment of a Grasslands

a combined total area of approximately 72 square miles and would be expanded eventually so that the proposed park, when fully established, would contain approximately 360 square miles, an area which is sufficiently large to support the flora and fauna typical of the Prairie grasslands A parkway would enhance the two park components

The Val Marie-Killdeer area of southern Saskatchewan is a truly interesting region. In addition to the mixed prairie vegetation there exists a nearly complete sample of prairie fauna Species ranging from the Pronghorn antelope and Richardson's ground squirrel or "gopher" to the rare and endangered peregrine falcon, ferruginous hawk and sage grouse can be found there The black-tailed prairie dog also resides within the boundaries of proposed Grasslands park Their colonies can be seen along the Frenchman River Valley, the only place in Canada where this prairie resident can be observed in its natural habitat

The rolling grassland landscape is broken by the bizarre shaped landforms of the Killdeer badlands It was there that Sir George Mercier Dawson made the first recorded discovery of dinosaur remains in 1874 while serving as geologist and naturalist to the North American Boundary Commission There is also a "hunking hill", a fault-like formation 300 feet wide and 35 feet deep which is said to be sinking at a rate of one foot per year

The re-establishment of the plains bison, the black-footed ferret which depends on the prairie dog colonies for both shelter and food, and the kit fox, is a likelihood as the proposed park is located within the historical range distribution of these animals

The area's history is similarly interesting and colourful. Remnant tee-pee rings, projectile points or "arrow heads" and other artifacts indicate that the Plain Indians roamed there in search of bison It was also a favourite bison hunting area for the nomadic Metis during the early days of the Red River settlement Sitting Bull and his Sioux followers took refuge in the general area from U.S. Army retaliations after the Battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876. Also associated with the area's history are the Wood Mountain North West Mounted Police Post, the Jean-Louis Legare trading post, and the Fort Walsh-Wood Mountain trail which are located north of the proposed Killdeer park component As the area developed, cattle ranching and homesteading followed From the beginning homesteaders found it extremely difficult, if not impossible to survive. consequently the homesteading gradually faded out, leaving ranching operations have continued to flourish and have added much to the local history of the area This cultural history contributes to the interpretive potential of the proposed park

Parks Canada has stated that acquisition of land for the park will only take place through voluntary sales over a five years Provision has been made to allow present ranchers to pass ranches on to their sons and daughters

Apples of Gold

S.J Rade

What is a home? It is a fixed place of abode, a family residence, a congenial abiding place It is the most sacred relationship on earth and should be a foreglean of our heavenly abode.

We have been far away from home as we have been roaming about, but now we come back home and enter right into our abode, for there is no place, like home and we sing in our hymnal, "Home, home sweet home, There's no place like home. O there's no place like home!"

Our Bibles picture many wonderful homes and mothers If we had more mothers like Mary there would be more children like Jesus So we would like to share a few suggestions to be guided by if our homes are to be all that God intended them to be!

In the first place I believe we must learn to understand one another It is to bear one anothers burden, and that means to be willing to support and forebear, refrain and cooperate with one another

Someone once said, "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage and half shut after marriage" Sacrifice and concession must be made in the right attitude, for we must learn to understand one another!

In the second place let us not major on what is insignificant for we may react in different ways when we are tested. Right attitudes must be maintained towards each other and we must learn to overlook the faults of other people God's Word tells us that love is kind, thinks no evil, rejoices not in iniquity, but rejoices in the truth. (1 Cor. 13:4-6) It is a virtue to be patient and kindly with each other.

Then the third suggestion is to be sure to maintain open conversation or communication at home! What a thrill it is to see a family carrying on free and relaxed conversation. Lack of communication in the home is tragic. It is vital to a happy home! If you are tempted to quarrel, ask yourself, "Is it really important?" There are no good quarrels, and it takes at least two to quarrel! St. Paul has a good advice here. He teaches that all difficulties are to be settled on the same day they arise, that is before nightfall. He says, "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath!"

The fourth suggestion I offer is this: To show appreciation for each other, the husband should show the wife that she is appreciated She should be a good wife and mother Just think of all the talents she must have to fill the role of homemaker. She should be a good cook, baker, economist, police officer, teacher, lawyer, nurse, doctor, diplomat, administrator, interior decorator, counselor, sanitation expert, banker, judge and minister and still more!

I wonder if I should not also include a sense of Good Humor. It is a good spice for the menu

It does not hurt to also see the funny side of things So let us learn to laugh at our mistakes and blunders. A fellow married a girl who was very spoiled. She always had to have her way. She didn't know how to cook. So one day the husband came home and found that she had been crying. She said, "I worked very hard today to make a birthday cake, but Fido, the dog, ate it!" He replied, "Don't take it so hard. I'll get you another dog somewhere." (Do you get it?) A good help is a bit of humor

In the sixth place is the willingness to forgive and forget An unforgiving spirit will wreck the home Some people are so dogmatic, not willing to give in. We must be able and willing to say, "Please forgive me, I was wrong!" Have you ever met a happy couple who had not learned to forgive and forget? I doubt it. I haven't The carrying of a grudge or the attitude, "I will forgive, but will never forget," must be repudiated if the home is to be happy again.

I have purposely left the most important suggestion for the last. It is the most complete

"Let God build the HOME! Then it will be lasting. A HAPPY HOME" It really takes three to build a happy home by way of marriage The Bride and Groom, and God! It takes more than brick and mortar to build a home. No home can be happy without God having the proper place in it!

Our homes must be maintained or they disintegrate Paint buildings, water on the lawns and gardens, weeds pulled and plaster in the cracks We once lived in a parsonage reported to have a cold cellar and floor. Upon inspection revealed large cracks in the cement walls in the basement and a lot of cracked storm windows Whose fault"

Yes, we will also imply that church attendance, Bible reading and prayer are the ingredients needed to maintain a substantial and happy home! If these suggestions are followed there won't be so many divorces and so much unhappiness in our society! the Bible says, "Happy is the people whose God is Jehovah." Psalm 144:15 Amen!

Warble inspections to continue

The Alberta Warble Control Program will continue on-site inspections for warble infested cattle at all markets and terminal stockyards during 1978, says Alberta Agriculture's livestock supervisor Ross Gould.

Any infested cattle at markets being offered for sale will be treated for the pest unless they are to be sold for slaughter within seven days, are milking dairy cattle or are too young or sick to be treated.

The practice of inspecting and treating infested cattle at markets was started several years ago when Alberta counties and municipalities began passing their own warble control by-laws says Mr Gould. Eighty per cent or more of the ratepayers had to request a warble control program for a petition The province adopted warble fly regulations through the Agricultural Pests Act, and in 1976 a uniform policy was established for all municipalities in the province.

All cattle offered for sale are inspected, and infested cattle returning to the farm are treated to kill the grubs and prevent re-infestation. The treatment is paid for by the cattle owner through a $2 00 per head deduction from the seller's proceeds for each animal treated

"A few animals may retain one or two grubs even in herds which have been carefully treated in the fall," says Mr Gould, "and we advise farmers to check their cattle

POTATOES FOR THE GARDEN

Agriculture Canada potato specialists advise backyard gardeners not to use ordinary table potatoes for planting

They say that the choice of variety and source are the most important criteria for a good home garden potato crop Only certified seed stock should be used to give a disease free crop.

The variety should be chosen according to taste and growing conditions in your area.

Do unto others

Whether it is defiance of the law, demonstration against authority or forceful protest against one another, coercion is the act of desperate people. These acts are never taken by a single individual but are the mark of militant groups depending on each other's presence for effect and protection against reprisal.

Whether the present atmosphere of resentment is caused by impossibility to communicate or simply failure of one side to try hard enough to hear or be heard, is hard to say. It is likely that most protest organizers are sincere and that they plan only to "get some attention".

Anarchy begets anarchy however and those who take by force will inevitably encourage removal of their right to protest under threat of force. They will surely also provoke violent reaction or threat on the part of those being injured.

Seeding of wheat and flax is nearly completed in the Camrose area. Rapeseed and oats are over 90 percent seeded while barley has passed the 80 percent mark.

Some areas, notably Camrose, have some problems developing with wild oats growing while the rapeseed crop are experiencing difficulties with flea beetles Rain, which delayed spraying, is blamed for the problems

Welcome committee

Visitors to the Camrose and District Museum are being welcomed at the door this season by Alfred, the full-grown gorilla shown above, and Alfred is drawing a good deal of interest in his own right. Loaned to the museum only for the summer, officials of the Devonian Institute in Calgary, which owns Alfred, were surprised that anyone would seriously welcome such a repulsive looking creature. When he arrived here a couple of weeks ago, bolted to a Post Office sorting truck, museum officials were fearful they had been sent Joe Davidson by mistake, but quickly sorted out the difference

Powerline sees play

The Powerline Baseball League got back into action on Thursday evening after missing two evenings because of rain.

Holden walloped Round Hill by an 18-7 score while Hards easily handled Tofield 13-6 in Hards

The other game was in Ryley where the Rebels and the Camrose Roadrunners fought to a 5-5 stalemate

Nelson started for Camrose with Olsen coming on in the fourth inning. Burke started for Ryley and was relieved by Solberg in the first inning. Swanson and Wilk were the top hitters in the game as each got two for five.

There are no games scheduled until this coming Tuesday when Holden hosts Camrose, Round Hill is in Bardo, and Ryley goes to Tofield.

Tournaments are scheduled in Holden and Bardo on Friday.

Holden presents brief

Oleh Shykera, Mayor of the Village of Holden, accompanied by A. Sevenson, secretary of the village, delivered a brief to Provincial Cabinet Ministers when they visited Ryley on May 26th.

Following is the brief which was presented on behalf of the Village of Holden.

The Council of the Village of Holden wishes to commend and thank the provincial government for making this contact opportunity available in order that local concerns may be expressed & recognition and thank you must certainly be given to John Batiuk, MLA - our representative

There are three areas we wish to bring to your attention. In the first instance we wish to record a commendation and thank you to this government for the increased municipal assistance grant, the street improvement grant and the recently approved eight units of self-contained housing for senior citizens. This latter project will provide improved housing for some current residents of the village as well as attracting people from the surrounding farm areas

In the second instance we wish to record the following concerns and recommendations for action:

a) The continued compulsory use of the standardized financial statement by this village is not only expensive but meaningless to the average citizen If we are forced to use this document the province should at least pay for the auditing costs involved in compiling it Currently the cost represents approximately two-thirds of the total audit cost

b) Under-assessment of farmland within village boundaries is unfair in comparison to other properties in the village and farmland in the county This denies us needed tax revenue A review of this disparity would be in order

c) Policing by the RCMP from a detachement at Tofield, twenty miles away, is inadequate in terms of manpower available compared to the total geographic area under its jurisdiction. A resident RCMP or increased manpower at detachment headquarters would greatly improve availability of force members and provide better protection

d) We believe in the government's expressed policy of decentralization However decentralization to towns rather than villages is not the proper way to ensure a stable and buoyant rural population or economy With all due respect, towns like Vegreville don't need an Environmental Centre to boost their economy and population. Towns will survive and grow without provincial assistance. The case of villages like Holden is less certain.

In the third instance we wish to ask your assistance in ensuring that the current application, of Beaver Foundation to the Alberta Housing Corporation, to build a senior citizens' lodge in Holden is proceeded with during the next fiscal year.

This lodge of a proposed 44 - bed unit would meet the needs of many people living in Holden and district who would like to live in a lodge providing accomodation and meal service as well as some care and assistance. Several of our citizens have moved and live in lodges in communities that are strange to them This is a hardship on them and their families. The majority of citizens in our community are

We must commend, once again, the efforts and dedication of our MLA John Batiuk in this area of concern. We are encouraged as we were with the verbal assurance of W.J. Yurko the recent minister responsible for

Our concern is that for several years this lodge has been talked about Due to a combination of lack of information, improper procedure, run-around from housing officials and changes in the ministry our requests have been sidetracked.

To further express our concern and facilitate your effor to assist us the attached appendix documents chronologically the unsuccessful efforts of Holden residents to attain a lodge for the pioneers who built his community and this province.

Regardless of how open government is or how well-meaning politicians and officials can be this chronology indicates the honest but frustrating and crippling effect that red tape towards a lodge has brought. Hopefully your review will eliminate some of the obstacles and frustrations involved in a venture of this sort. Once again we commend MLA John Batiuk who has been most helpful to a new council in clarifying procedures and assisting us in this endeavour We only want to serve the electorate to which we are responsible and guarantee our efforts in this project will not be in vain.

SHOWDOWN

Fair exchange

Tourism Minister Bob Dowling's to be commended for his share in promoting the concept of offering tourists fair exchange on their money.

Most tourists have done a good deal of planning over their holiday, they're knowledgeable about fair rates of exchange, and indeed, very often the exchange factor has been a basic part of their planning.

Many things can upset tourists, just as many can delight them, and one of the former is being "taken" for an unfair rate of exchange. It's not hard for Canadian tourists to recall our own frustration and severe annoyance at being offered par, at the very best, or several cents less, at worst, when the Canadian dollar was actually at a premium in the United States. (Possibly worse still were the stores which refused to have anything at all to do with those foreign currencies.)

It's easy to argue, of course, that intelligent tourists should change their money at the banks, and that's obviously best. But there are times when the banks aren't open, there are times when purchases exceed planning, there are times when more money is needed on short notice.

And one of the best reputations Canadian businesses serving the huge and lucrative tourist business could get would be a general reputation for offering fair exchange all the time.

Tourism in Alberta has come a long way since the days it was a non-portfolio and Bob Dowling was given the non-portfolio job of promoting it as a highly labor intensive, non depleting, renewable resource capable of yielding major revenues for Albertans.

Fair treatment, whether it be in pricing, in quality and service, or in exchange rates, goes a long way to help improve the El Dorado we can look for.

Can't all err

Finance Minister Chretien tends to lose a great deal of credibility when all four western premiers, in a joint statement, charge there was very little consultation over the federal reduction of provincial sales taxes, and that very little time was given for any expression of opinion or input.

Surely they can't all be wrong, all covering each other.

Prime Minister Trudeau insists all were consulted, but it would seem the word should more properly be informed, and even then the amount of information and the time must have been limited.

Sunday night the government position was defended in a national telecast by the deputy prime minister, Hon. Alan MacEachen, who must have squirmed within even as he told his audience across country that Alberta had agreed on the basis it was getting its share in development of natural resources. Especially when he knew Chretien had already changed the rules in Quebec to a straight income tax reduction. Mr. MacEachen, too, could not help but have known that Premier Lougheed would never agree to a trade-off whereby his citizens could not share in the tax reductions, especially when the rules are modified to let others under the umbrella.

To the Editor

"WAKE UP TOFIELD"

When the town of Tofield was first formed, there were, no doubt visions of forefathers of a great town in the future.

Barely forty miles from Edmonton and railway passing through.

One could envision industrial and naturally residential growth.

But No - says our elder pioneers. No such thing. Keep them out! This town shall be known as the "Town of Park". (Quoted from our mayor's speech last year.)

The park installed last year was one of the largest boo-boo's ever seen.

It resembled an elongated cemetery. I could just about hear the old folks say "They won't have to pack us very far, moved the graveyard right up to our door".

Then take our young folks just graduating from high school (a slim few make it.)

If they wish to stay at home they are eligible for a job as a park maintenance mechanic. Two months of the year at minimum pay or take off to where - ever.

Fine picture is it not?

Take a peek at Beaumont or Ardrossan. Up until recently not more than a hamlet. In more months they will outgrow this town by progress.

Long range progress was thought of by our town council, but in reverse.

They think of things to be done today that should have been planned ten years ago.

Sure - I can get out if I don't like it but I am stubborn and have hopes, who knows? Maybe in the next couple years we may get another Senior Citizens Home and use up a few precious acres of land for parks.

Tofield - Wake up, or put up a sign at the exit - "you are now leaving the Park Town of Tofield" will the last one leaving please turn out the lights.

Abortion The number one issue today

Dear Sir;

I oppose the liberalization of abortion and the concept of 'abortion on demand'. I have thoroughly looked into the issue of abortion and there is no simple solution. There are those who favor and those who oppose the liberalization of abortion. Abortion is a contentious and moral issue, however, and it is, therefore, almost impossible to decide whether one side is right or wrong. As well, both medical and legal definitions of when life starts have to be considered.

Scientists unanimously agree that life begins at the moment of conception and that thereafter the life process is merely a process of growth and development, from the pre-natal stage to the post natal to youth, adolescence, adulthood and old age. Legal experts, meanwhile, provide no unanimous or practical interpretation of the stage of development at which a fetus (unborn baby) is endowed with legal status as a person with full legal rights.

To summarize the above, science tells us that the 'fetus' is in fact human life; the law however is uncertain and indecisive on the issue. These positions then, imply that to abort a fetus is to take a born life which may or may not be justifiable within the law, not to mention the morality of such a decision.

Considering the nature of abortion in Canada it would appear that the vast majority of abortions being performed are more for purpose of 'social convenience' than for medical or emotional necessity. In view of this, it is impossible to support abortion on demand, as this would result in many thousands of unnecessary human deaths each year. Rather, perhaps the answer is to 'tighten up' controls over abortion so that more [illegible] (or to mother-nature, for those who are agnostic) This would then allow man to make these decisions over the taking of a human life, only where such was considered medically necessary (for example where the life of the mother was directly threatened).

Most would agree that we should minimize, in our society, the extent by which one person determines that fate (life or death) of another. This may be the essence of the issue.

Monica Stokowski.

Well said, Mr. Premier

Premier Lougheed put it in the most succinct terms during the course of a national television question and answer program Sunday afternoon.

He was asked his opinion of the recent first ministers' conference and replied to the effect he thought it had been clearly illustrated there was a general feeling of the need for government to vacate the market place and a return to private sector initiations and [illegible]

At this point, the program's moderator made the remark it was all very well for the premier of a province "sitting on all that oil which commands $15 a barrel" to talk in such terms.

Premier Lougheed's response that "governments of Alberta had yet to discover their first barrel of oil", to us at least, should be registered as a classic in the "put-down" category.

His additional comment outlining the role of private enterprise which has brought Alberta to this point in history of oil and gas discoveries and development only added to the [illegible]

Of course, the "$15 a barrel" [illegible] easily responded to as another example of what happens when government decides to enter the market-place

It is only a few short years ago when the prime minister of this country and the then finance minister, John Turner, decided to take it upon themselves to dictate the price of Canadian oil and gas.

Subsequent events not only put the entire industry in chaos for an extended period and has only meant highly-increased prices for Canadian consumers in all parts of the country.

It cannot be repeated too often that when governments at all levels take it upon themselves to enter the marketplace, the resultant time-consuming red tape, bureaucratic bumbling-consuming red tape, bureaucratic bumbling and preponderance of costly civil servants only [illegible] additions to an already top-heavy government hierarchy.

OTTAWA (SF) — Untold millions of dollars are paid out annually by the Federal government for consulting contracts, and it's extremely difficult to pin down individual cases to determine whether or not specific outside contracts are [illegible]

Conservative Fisheries critic Lloyd Crouse raised a couple of cases in Parliament recently which focused attention on one particular aspect of outside consulting contracts Everybody knows there are straight political patronage contracts assigned to the party faithful by the government in power, but there are also a great number of contracts which can be classified as bureaucratic [illegible]

Crouse raised questions when he discovered that a former senior Fisheries official [illegible] years in three [illegible] contracts for the department. Reporters questioning those contracts were told by Fisheries that the man in question was now serving in a non-paying post and the contracts were a way of making sure he was compensated for [illegible]

It seems there were the names of several others former [illegible] list of departmental contracts issued during 1976-77, and that made other people interested.

I took one of those pocket calculators up to Crouse's office and spent an hour punching up the total of outside contracts for two years, arriving at the total of [illegible] ranged from $300 to several hundred thousand dollars - some of them looked legitimate, others appeared dubious

The routine for passing out contracts to senior public servants who have retired [illegible] it possible for those on government pensions to expand their incomes with the expertise gained through government service Most of those involved have retired early, and there's little question that contracts are handed out through the bureaucratic old boy's network. If your connections are right, you can retire on pension, then make considerable extra bucks through government contracts on the side. It's a practice that goes on in every federal government department, and it costs millions.

As I punched up the individual figures for each contract in the Fisheries department, I thought of my income tax, your income tax and the tax paid by the guy down the street. Anger was the [illegible] emotion and I've got a faint suspicion that the same anger is now being reflected [illegible] government in [illegible]

Bicycle gets returned after Mercury's story

Barbara Borton of Tofield has her bicycle back, thanks to a story about the theft in last week's issue of The Mercury.

The loss of the 10-speed bicycle had been reported to the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP. After reading the story in the newspaper, the person responsible returned the bicycle to its owner, and no charges were laid.

Progressive Farming

Hello Farmers,

We will soon be approaching the time of year when most farmers should be thinking about cutting their first hay crop of the season. Cutting the hay at the optimum time is vitally important to obtain the best quality of hay possible.

The time of cutting varies with each crop but is determined by the stage of growth. For example, alfalfa is at its optimum quality when at the 10 percent bloom stage. At this point in time the most advantageous point of high yield and high protein content is achieved. Even though the overall tonnage may be lower, the quality (total digestible nutrients) will be much higher than at any later date. The grasses are best cut between heading and full bloom since after full bloom is reached much of the leaf protein is transferred to both the roots and seeds thus resulting in less nutritious hay.

Curing and handling of the hay are other key factors in maintaining a high quality hay. Rapid curing is essential and is speeded up through the use of windrows and hay conditioners, while the handling of the hay is best done while the crop is still tough. Handling dry hay results in shelling and the loss of leaves which in turn depletes the quality of the hay due to the leaves being the most nutritious part of the hay.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic, please contact Alberta Agriculture in Ryley (Ext. 203, phone: 663-3931) we're here to help you in any way we can.

Here's one to think about - -

If Agriculture would have kept up with inflation, a loaf of bread would cost almost $4 at today.

Saying "goodbye"

Everitt Norris took his final bow as director of the Tofield-Ryley Stage Band, following a concert in Ryley on Thursday night. Mr. Norris is moving to Viking in the fall to teach music and math.

Bardo leads league

Bardo has taken the lead in a tight four-team race for the pennant in the Powerline Baseball League.

Only one full game separates the top four teams in the league following Tuesday evening's action.

Bardo has now gone undefeated in three games while Ryley has no defeats and two wins. Bardo has one tie game while Ryley has two.

On Tuesday night, Bardo whipped Round Hill 15-5, while Ryley trounced Tofield to the tune of 18-3, and Holden edged Camrose 8-7.

There were no games last Thursday because of two tournaments which had been scheduled for Friday. In games on the previous Tuesday, Bardo and Ryley fought to a 14-14 stalemate, Holden edged Tofield 15-13 and Camrose smashed Round Hill 19-5.

Games this evening (Thursday) will see Bardo playing in Camrose, Holden goes to Ryley, and Tofield is in Round Hill.

Tuesday games will see Bardo host Holden while Round Hill is in Ryley and Tofield is in Camrose. Next Thursday's games will have Holden hosting Round Hill, Ryley in Camrose, and Bardo at Tofield.

Six postponed games are to be played. Dates have not been set for these games.

Tofield-Ryley walk planned for June 24

by Kathy Wilde

Are you doing anything on June 24? That's the day the youth group of the Tofield Mennonite Church has scheduled their walk-a-thon for, and they'd like you to help them out.

Recently, as a service project, the youth decided to send $200 to the Gwynne Children's Home in Gwynne. To raise the money, a walk-a-thon was planned and since it was expected that more than $200 would be raised through this, they decided that all the proceeds from this pure profit project would go towards the Home.

Gwynne is a small village on Highway 13, located about 45 miles south-west of Tofield. The Gwynne Children's Home is a place for kids from broken families. It is supported entirely by the contributions of donors. Many local Ladies Aid groups give of their time by going to the Home to help with such jobs as cleaning and patching clothes.

The walk-a-thon will be 25 miles long, from Tofield to Ryley and back. Walkers will leave Charles Place at 1:00 in the afternoon; the Ryley checkpoint will be at the elevators. The entire distance doesn't have to be walked - if at any point you would like to quit, you may.

Walkers may pick up a sponsor sheet and ask for sponsors, although you could just come out for the walk.

A lot of work has gone into the planning of this project. An effort has been made to let the community know of the walk-a-thon; besides this newspaper article, posters should or will have appeared in both Tofield and Ryley. Sponsor sheets have been typed up and are available to anyone who wants one (see below).

The route has been chosen and checked out with the RCMP to make sure that we can legally use it. Signs will be made and posted at the Ryley and Tofield town exits onto the highway to warn drivers that there are people walking. As well, cars will drive along side us with a heavy construction of walkers with flashing lights, as a safety measure.

If you want more information or a sponsor sheet, get in touch with Myrna Seergen, Tofield at 662-3653 or Kathy Wilde, Ryley, 663-3518.

Their son and his family, brothers, Seimer and Leonard and families, sisters, Kathleen and Ida, brother-in-law Stan, sister-in-law, Brenda, Ruby and Pete Hunter of Tofield and Hilda Jensen and Glenn were present. Phone calls came from Creston, Edmonton, Camrose, Holden and Tofield. The lovely cards and gifts from those who remembered the day were greatly appreciated.

The final band concert of the year, a musical evening to be remembered, was held on Thursday, in the school gym. Everitt Norris, Ryley and Tofield's music teacher, led in a variety of numbers as the bands from grades 5,6,7,8 and 9, as well as the Stage Band, performed. The Ukrainian Dancers from Two Hills added a final swirl of color and energy to the program.

On May 28, at the Spring Convocation of the University of Alberta, Joanne Yoder received her B.A degree with distinction. Parents, sister receiving grades 11 through 12 in Ryley. Greta and Otis Phillips as well as Greta's parents, left Sunday for a trip to Finland and Lapland where they will be visiting relatives. They'll be back in about three weeks.

The United Church had their Sunday School picnic on Sunday afternoon. They gathered at the Ron Kozoway farm for a barbeque and games.

The Camrose Lutheran College Choir, four girls and two boys, presented a program at the Bethel Lutheran Church on Tuesday night. Their repetoire, including both songs and skits, was very well performed.

On May 19, Orvil Bray, an old timer of the Salt Lake district passed away at the age of 85 years. His wife, Anne Bray, was a teacher in Salt Lake and instructed the grade two class in Ryley for many years. Following their retirement, the Brays moved to Victoria where it was hoped that Orvil could enjoy better health. However, after a long illness of 14 months in the hospital, he died and was buried in Victoria.

A memorial service for Orvil will be held on Saturday in the Zion Church at 2 p.m. Any relatives or former neighbours and friends are invited to attend.

Turn the tables on common weeds

by Gerry Wheeler of Alberta Agriculture's Plant Industry Laboratory

Redroot pigweed, lamb's quarters, purslane, common chickweed, shepherd's purse and stinging nettles have more in common than being troublesome weeds in and around the garden. They are all edible and can be used as potherbs, and, with the exception of stinging nettles, they can also be used as salad greens. Because of its stinging hairs, nettles need to be cooked before they are eaten.

Although the above plants can be cooked and eaten like spinach, I suspect that many people will find common chickweed too bland to be eaten alone. It needs the addition of a stronger flavored plant such as shepherd's purse or pepper grass to make it more palatable.

When cooking chickweed with other greens it is better to start cooking the other greens since and to the chickweed when the others are almost done. Chickweed is a very tender plant and only requires about two minutes cooking time.

A good place to start experimenting would be with one part shepherd's purse to two parts chickweed, but only you can decide what the exact proportions should be, or, for that matter, whether you prefer any of these "wild" greens to spinach or beet tops. When used as salad greens or potherbs or salad greens, only the tender young greens should be used. These are the most tastiest and most nutritious parts of the plants.

What is the nutritional quality of these plants? With the exception of purslane, all are equal to, or richer than, spinach with respect to most nutrients and vitamins. Spinach which is relatively high in iron content, has two to three times as much iron as these plants, except for purslane and redroot pigweed which have as much iron as spinach. One unusual feature of stinging nettles is their exceptionally high protein content. On a dry weight basis, it can be as high as 40 per cent. This makes stinging nettles higher in protein content than most commercial livestock feeds. Curing nettles for hay de-activates the stinging hairs, thereby enabling them to be used as an excellent livestock feed.

Kingman

Sharon Krezanoski and Gladys Johnson attended a bridal shower on June 3rd for Miss Valerie Konack. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. Kay Konack in Anderson.

Bobby Konack and Gerry Wenger returned last Sunday from a nine day trip through British Columbia, Washington, Idaho, and Montana. At Vancouver they visited at the Sam Konak home, then went by Ferry to Vancouver Island where they stayed with Bobby's aunt and uncle Sophie and Albert Lym, also visiting cousins while in Sechelt. They reported very hot weather in Washington on their way home.

INCREASE LIMITS FOR FARM CREDIT

In addition to a number of other things, recent amendments to the Farm Credit Act have raised lending limits.

The lending limit for a farming operation with one qualifying applicant is now $300,000, regardless of age. The previous maximum loan was $150,000 for an eligible applicant under 35 years of age, and $100,000 for an eligible applicant over 35 years of age.

The amendments also provide for a loan limit of $400,000 for farm units with two or more qualifying applicants. Previously the same loan limit applied to all farm units, regardless of the number of eligible applicants involved.

Harry Warne of Alberta Agriculture's Farm Business management branch says this new provision will be useful for joint farming operations and for families who wish to expand their farming unit to enable a son or daughter to work into the business.

Another amendment provides for all loans to be secured on a market value basis. In the past standard loans to people under the age of 35 could be secured on a market value basis, but those made to people over 35 were secured on an appraised productive value basis.

Still another amendment provides for the elimination of the penalty interest charge on loans that are in arrears.

The $25 a year charge for supervision, which was applied to loans exceeding 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm business, has been dropped. Advisory services will now be provided only when needed and requested.

To qualify for a standard loan under the present Farm Credit Act, a borrower who is over 35 years of age must have a full-time farm business. However a person who is under 35, and who wants to "please into" farming, may retain an off-farm job for up to five years.

The average loan made by the Farm Credit Corporation last year was $78,385 compared with $67,510 in 1976. Approximately 72 per cent of last year's loans were made to farmers under the age of 35.

Move to save wood bison

An endangered species of Canadian wildlife, wood bison, will be re-introduced to Jasper National Park this month when a small herd of 30 will be transferred from Elk Island National Park, near Edmonton.

The bison will be drawn from one of only two pure herds in the country - the other is at Fort Providence, near Great Slave Lake - and be located in the remote north eastern corner of Jasper National Park. The bison are considered indigenous to the Jasper area.

The Canadian Wildlife Service has established a wood bison advisory committee to examine the management problems of the animal and a primary objective is to remove the animal from the endangered species list by increasing populations in areas outside Elk Island National Park. New areas of habitation include zoos and wilderness areas.

A cattle liner will take the animals to Rock Lake, near Jasper National Park, and helicopters will fly them into Willow Creek where they will be held together for a while to establish herd solidarity. After, they will be free to roam and establish a balance with [illegible].

This historic transfer of wood bison, soon to become a free roaming herd, has been a joint venture of C.W.S. and Parks Canada. Warden service staff from Elk Island and Jasper National Park are co-ordinating the move with the assistance of C.W.S. personnel.

LEADERS AND MEMBERS (taken from Leaders and Members, Ministry of Community and Social Services)

I found this reading so effective to many of the activities that go on in our County. One question, are you contributing to the groups you belong to?

"Mrs. Smith has done wonders for this club during the ten years she has been president. What will we ever do without her?"

"What we need in our organization is a good man at the top to give us dynamic leadership."

"This committee has fallen apart since Bill is no longer the chairman."

In many of our community groups, the functions of leadership seem to be the responsibility of a single person, or a very few people. It is left to be president, the executive and the chairman of committees to plan and operate all the activities of the group. The members often seem content to be mere followers. Of course, if the leaders are careful to find out the wishes of the members, and if they are aware of the objectives of the group, this method of operation can be consistent with democratic principles.

However, this way of doing things brings up two important questions:

Is it a good idea to expect just a few people to shoulder the whole load of responsibility that goes with successful group leadership?

Won't the ordinary member lose interest if his membership in the group makes him only the "rubber stamp" of the leaders, and only remotely involved in planning the objectives and the program?

Government embroiled over budget provisions

. . . says Don Mazankowski

OTTAWA
May 24, 1978.

The major news item from Ottawa in the past weeks was the Prime Minister's decision to call off the federal election which was expected this summer Mr. Trudeau asserted that he never meant to call an election, that speculation was caused by the press and the public, not by the Liberal Party. This statement clearly [illegible] however, [illegible] one looks at the carefully orchestrated chain of events which were to have concluded in an election call sometime this spring The Liberal Party's gala meeting in Ottawa, the Prime Minister's speech in New York, the Cabinet's whirlwind tour of the West, the large number of recent appointments made to the Senate, the judiciary, government Boards and Commissions and rushing of last minute legislation-were all carried-out with a clear objective. The government's pre-election timetable was upset by only one thing, the collapse of the Trudeau government's public support as registered by the Gallup Poll

Now that the election fever has subsided and the House of Commons is resuming normal business, the government has become embroiled in a heated controversary over its budget provisions for reducing sales taxes The federal government originally made specific proposals to each provincial government to pick-up part of the cost of a reduction in provincial sales taxes All provinces agreed to go along with the scheme, assuming it was a non-negotiable, take it or leave it, proposition, except Quebec, which was noncommital.

Alberta meanwhile, did not qualify since it does not have a [illegible] tax. After the federal budget was made public, the Quebec government firmly rejected the federal plan and decided to initiate a program of its own. In response to this, the federal government decided to distribute Quebec's share of the program directly to Quebec taxpayers This will take the form of an $85 rebate to each taxpayer and will cost $186 million in total This was met with severe criticism and even succeeded in forcing the Quebec provincial Liberal Party to give their full support to the separatist Parti Quebecois government.

This modification changes the thrust of the federal budget substantially and, from Alberta's point of view, the federal government's action is particularly unfair The Conservative M P for Red Deer, Gordon Towers, pointed this out in the House of Commons last week when he asked the Minister of Finance why Quebec taxpayers will be getting $186 million with no strings attached while Alberta taxpayers are completely excluded from the program. There can be no doubt that changing the rules in midstream for Quebec but leaving them the same for all other provinces is unfair and not in the spirit of promoting national unity. The Progressive Conservative Party takes the position that the federal government's program should be withdrawn and renegotiated with the concurrence of all the provinces, since the federal government has intruded into the provincial tax domain

Finally, I would like to turn to the grain export situation on the West Coast, which can only be described as disgraceful. As of last week, shipments were 25 million bushels behind target, 20 ships were waiting to load grain in the port of Vancouver, demurrage costs are forecast to exceed the record [illegible] in 1973 [illegible] Canada's best grain customers are turning to the United States

I asked the Minister of Transport in the House of Commons last week what new initiatives were being taken to correct this disastrous situation. His answers made it clear that no new initiatives are being taken and no leadership is being provided by the government, in an effort to ease the bottlenecks, unplug elevators and get some much needed cash into the hands of farmers. If, in fact, nothing is done there will be grave consequences for Western farmers and indeed for the whole Canadian economy Even more importantly for the long term, Canada's reputation as a reliable supplier of grain in the international market will be dealt another damaging blow.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?
A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?
Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.
When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?
Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is
(A) made or grown in Canada and
(B) of equal or better value and quality.
That's not just good advice . . . it's good sense.

What is made in Canada?
Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.
As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.
Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?
Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.
If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.
Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?
Sometimes it doesn't Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I " Or "B C Apples" or "Fabriqué au Quebec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."
The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell
And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

Bill Story

I was ten. I had a brother 14, and sisters 12 and five when our father died. Although I was an authority on everything starting with, "Dad says - - and dad said - - ", I didn't know about death and I didn't understand how much we depended on Dad.

Auction sales were foreign to me and I didn't know why Dad's favorite driving mare, wearing her harness and hitched to the 'Sunday buggy' was driven out of the yard by a man unknown to me. I didn't know why all the cows were sold, - - all [illegible] Big Spotty.

The easy-[illegible] and a box of hens were all that was 'taken to town' when we moved off the farm to live in a dilapidated house in the nearby town. The farm just disappeared, and when I hung my overalls on a nail in the clothes closet, I wasn't reminded by our mother, "hang them on the little nail. The big nail is for your father's mackinaw".

We had been "building an empire", our father had said, but it crumbled because, although there were plows and harrows and a seeder and many cows and pigs and horses, there were also mortgages and notes. I knew all about the big team, Betty and Maud; about multi-colored Molly the sow, and I knew about Ramsey the bull and I knew about money for crow's eggs and gopher tails, but I had never heard the words "debts and financial commitments".

It was rough. I walked four miles to the farm quite often and cried on the way back because the pigpen was empty and sparrows dirtied on the floor of the [illegible] they got in through a broken window. My dog Happy didn't like it in town and the neighbors [illegible] several times, tied behind the wagon.

It was tough times for my widowed mother with a family of four.

This column, Our Industry Of Agriculture usually deals with the business of farming, commentary and explanations and about research being carried out, and concluding with remarks called A Storyism, many of which come to me as I work around my own farm where I have cows and pigs and a stoneboat and a fat panting dog I call Happy.

This week it is different. This is an appeal for money.

Fred Shiplack, a Candiac district farmer, died recently in Regina, Saskatchewan following an altercation relative to the business of farming and the incident has, for the past several weeks, received much coverage in the press.

Back on the farm at Candiac are the widow and seven children. The eldest is a teenager. The Shiplacks are READY and WILLING to carry on farming and although I do not know the family I do know about a widow and the empire that didn't get built because of [illegible].

My employers, CFQC radio-TV, Saskatoon have started a fund for the Shiplack family and Our Industry Of Agriculture is suggesting you may be ABLE and interested in contributing to the fund.

Cheques or money-orders made to Shiplack Trust Fund may be sent to CFQC radio-TV, Saskatoon - - or to Bank of Nova Scotia, 1448 2nd Avenue, Saskatoon. Receipts for the charitable donations will be mailed from CFQC, Saskatoon. We have a charming little lady who will mail a receipt the day your cheque arrives.

A STORYISM: The Shiplack and her brood are ready and willing. Please help in making [illegible].

Bruce news items

by Bea Fredericks

Debbie and Dennis Heber of Onoway are the proud parents of a son, Donald Kenneth Reid, born on May 27 at the Misericordia Hospital.

In Edmonton on June 10 to attend the wedding of Andy Lavoy and Maureen Cairns, were Audrey and Vernon Pratt, Agnes and Roy Erickson and Mary and Bill Flynn.

The Board of Directors of the Bruce Agricultural Society met on June 6 at the Recreation Centre for the regular monthly meeting. President Stewart McMullen was in the chair and a number of business items were dealt with. The current project is the Midsummer Social which will be held in the Recreation Centre on Saturday night at 9 p.m. Blue Suede Country will be providing the music.

A committee was appointed to handle arrangements. It was reported that Sharon Bruce had won the Society award for the highest average in the general program and that this award had been presented at the graduation exercises in Holden on May 27. A decision was made to buy three large roasters for the community centre kitchen. Judy Kalita was appointed to the Board to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Myrna Curtis. The July 4 meeting will be open to the community and will be held in the meeting room of the Community Centre at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to come to this meeting to offer suggestions.

A meeting of the catering groups is planned for early July to discuss price changes.

B.B Starky and Bud Starky were in Millet on Sunday afternoon to attend the 50th wedding anniversary reception in honor of Verna and Charles Mullen. The Mullen family lived near the old Woodside School in 1918.

The Bruce Stampede float actually made it to the Holden Sports Day parade, thanks to Pratt's towing service. What's more it won first prize! Three of the Stampede Queen contestants, Marie Chrystian, Tara Christensen and Linda Kinlek, added a bit of charm to the creation. Tammy Mickek unfortunately did not have a school holiday and was therefore unable to be here.

Irven and Grant Fredericks, along with five other retired dealers from various Alberta points, were honoured by Shell Oil at a banquet on Saturday night, at the Mayfield Inn in Edmonton. Irven and Grant began selling Canadian Oil products in 1945 but later Canadian Oil was bought by Shell in April of this year. Irven and Grant sold their business to Bruce Kawalilak.

PUT fuel & IN YOUR TANK profits IN YOUR POCKET

United Farmers of Alberta – owned by the farmers of this province – can save you money in many ways. Take the petroleum division.

First on your mind is, of course, quality. UFA agents provide top quality petroleum products, reflecting the latest technological advances. Rigid tests ensure that these products meet or exceed manufacturers' specifications.

And these agents are not high-pressure strangers. They are independent businessmen in your community, with a knowledge of you and your needs, the ability to help you plan intelligently for the future and the capacity to make available to you an information service which will keep you advised of new developments in your industry.

Then there's costs. Despite rigid quality control UFA offers its products at competitive prices.

Further, UFA is a co-operative. That means that, by becoming a member, you not only have a voice in how the association runs its business, but you also share in its profits by way of patronage dividends, based on the amount of business you do with UFA. These dividends are not token. This year alone UFA distributed $2,894,000 in patronage dividends to the farmers of Alberta.

That's why most Alberta farmers belong to UFA. If you're not one of them, contact your local agent.

Confronting Your Faith

With Rev. Carl Hansen Co-Pastor of the Salem Mennonite Church

Materialists are not all tough mean Marxist Atheists. Some are nice quiet, respectable people like you and like me. Jesus met one in the person of the rich man in Mark 10:17-31. Here was a respectable man. He kept the last six commandments perfectly. He didn't do anything bad to his neighbors. But he didn't do anything good for them either. He didn't want to share his possessions or his life with the poor around him. He lived for himself. He was a materialist.

The first commandment of the Mosaic law code prohibited people from having any other gods before God. Jesus didn't bother to question the rich man about keeping the first commandment. He simply invited him to "Go sell what you have, and give to the poor. . . . and come, follow me." Then the rich man found impossible to do. He was bound to his possessions. They were more important to him than being with Jesus. They were his gods.

Materialism is the prince of all idolatries. Modern man does not superstitiously worship wood or stone idols. His worship is more subtle. He surrounds himself with his possessions and they become the objects of his affection, the center of his existence. He will sacrifice his time and energies to get them, and lay down his life to defend them. His possessions become his master, his god.

Reverence for wealth is the root cause for most of the violence and suffering in our world. Someone has said, "Our planet has enough resources to supply everyone's need but not everyone's greed." Almost every war or act of violence has been a conflict between greed and need (if not creed). Wars will cease only when men learn to share.

Today there is a desperate need for sharing in our world. The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer. The hope of the poor has long since turned to despair and despair is now turning to desperation.

The world faces the spectre of desperate starving masses of rising greed, the rich classes in violent bloody revolution.

To safeguard their investments we see the obscenity of the rich nations equipping the rich ruling classes of the poor nations with sophisticated weapons so they can protect their position and their wealth against the desperate starving fellow countrymen.

The poor have nowhere to turn. Disinherited by the greed of others, crushed by the brutality of the rich and powerful, they can only die. And they are dying at the rate of ten thousand every week. Who will help them if we rich Christians don't share our riches with them and support them in their struggle for justice? Will you be a sharing Christian or a non sharing materialist? Support the charity of your choice or give to the Food Bank. Ask your Alberta Wheat Pool agent for details.

Assistant Farmer's Advocate appointed

The Farmers' Advocate of Alberta, Helmut P. Entrup, has announced the appointment of Basil Haddrell to the position of assistant Farmers' Advocate of Alberta.

Mr. Haddrell will assist Mr. Entrup with problems and complaints received from farmers, which arise from the action of parties other than the government and its agencies. However, they include all matters pertaining to individuals versus rural municipalities.

Mr. Haddrell joined the office of the Farmers' Advocate with a background of experience in farming, police work, the food industry, consumer and corporate affairs and agricultural marketing.

He received his degree from the University of Victoria. Because his background has given him wide contact with the agriculture community he should prove a beneficial addition to the office of the Farmers' Advocate.

Hail damage drops according to Corp.

Hail damage to farm crops in Alberta was lower than normal in 1977, according to officials of the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corporation. Even so, payments of $3.3 million were made to farmers insuring under the Corporation's hail program.

A loss-to-premium ratio of 63 per cent on last season's business will provide a refund of 10 per cent of premium to all non-claimants insured under the Corporation's program. The refund will be distributed by agents early in June.

Because of drought over wide sections of the province farmers placed less hail coverage on their crops in 1977. The Corporation, which wrote about 76 per cent of the straight hail insurance in the province, carried about $82 million of risk in 1977, compared to $114 million the previous year.

In addition to its hail program, the Corporation administers crop insurance in Alberta and under the hail endorsement clause of its crop insurance policies, it carried an additional $185 million of hail damage coverage indemnities for hail damage under this program totalled almost $6 million.

Hail was experienced in Alberta on 67 days in 1977 compared to the long-time average of 52 days. The most intensive hail damage in 1977 occurred in the Red Deer-Lacombe area of Central Alberta, the Sangudo through Westlock districts northwest of Edmonton, and from Tangent through Spirit River and Fairview to Hines Creek in the Peace River district.

Cancer and women

Doctors agree fear is a serious problem in fighting cancer. Fear, and the ignorance that accompanies it, keeps people from consulting their doctors when they discover their bodies aren't functioning normally.

Ignorance can only be dispelled by knowledge: women should know that cancer occurs most frequently in parts of the body most easily examined by a doctor. Four out of five women will see the doctor for something else first. Then if the physician has found anything suspicious, he will take these important steps.

— If over 35, have a physical examination by your doctor as often as he prescribes.

— Cancer of the cervix can be detected by a simple, painless pap test, and early cancers can be removed by a minor operation.

— Learn how to examine your breasts; see your doctor or the Canadian Cancer Society.

— Have your doctor repair any injuries to the womb after childbirth.

— Lung cancer is preventable. Nearly all cases occur in cigarette smokers.

— Bleeding from the rectum may not be due to haemorrhoids.

— Avoid "miracle cures", trick diets, treatments in farflung lands, or home-remedies for indigestion especially after age 40.

Craft Club plans display

Craft Club plans a July 1st display, to be held in the Craft Room, featuring crafts by the people of the district.

It is open to anyone with a craft he or she enjoys.

The display staged on May 27 was well worth seeing.

School classes have enjoyed using the Craft Room. Loads of their pottery creations have been fired in the kiln and now adorn their homes.

The next meeting of the club will be held on September 12 at 8:00 p.m. in the Craft Room. Plans will be made for fall and winter classes. Everyone is welcome.

Protein from leaves

Have you ever thought of weeds as a rich source of protein?

More than a quarter of a century ago a young man working at Cambridge University in England became convinced that the green part of plants could be used as a source of protein if a way could be found to extract the protein. Despite interruptions due to other commitments, Norman Pirie persisted over the years with this work and eventually developed an extraction process.

Essentially, the process is simple: fresh green material is forced through a screw press which extracts the juices. Then the protein in the juices is coagulated by heat and strained out as a kind of cheese.

Work at the British National Institute for Research in Dairying has shown that the fibrous residue that is left can be used as feed for cattle and other ruminants. The sugary whey which runs off the protein after extraction could be used as a base for processes involving bacteria, the scientists say.

"Apart from conventional herbage crops", says Mr Pirie, "there is an enormous potential for extracting protein from plant species regarded as weeds as well as from the residues of farm crops." He has calculated, for example, that sugarbeet tops, of which more than two-thirds are simply plowed back into the soil in Britain, could provide the country with 50,000 tons of protein a year.

"Another 50,000 tons of protein could be produced from potato stems which are not used at all", he says. Work on this material is now going on at the Rothamsted Research Institute in England. "Any harmful alkaloids" Mr Pirie says, "are easily removed by washing the product with acid."

The main use of leaf protein in countries like Britain seems likely to be in animal feeds. Elsewhere, however, it could well be used in the human diet.

Leaf protein is said to be equivalent to the protein of fish, but not as good as that from eggs and cheese.

Development work on the pressing process is still not complete, but there are reasonably efficient versions capable of working with a power requirement as low as one-third of a horsepower (250 watts). In fact, according to a British report, a low power press has been successfully used in trials in southern India where the protein shortage is acute.

There, locally made material, based on lucerne (alfalfa) and mixed with brown sugar and cereal, was fed to children as a supplementary food in the form of small cakes. Other children were given supplements based on skim milk powder and on pulses.

The children apparently relished and thrived on the sweet cakes. In terms of the children's height and weight gain, the cakes appeared to be almost as good as the milk powder supplement and slightly better than the pulses.

An incidental benefit from the leaf protein, says the report, came from its richness in vitamin A. Vitamin A is often deficient in some diets and the deficiency may, if not [redacted] an early age.

An official of Alberta Agriculture's plant industry division says similar work to that done by Mr. Pirie is being done with alfalfa leaves in Davis, California, U.S.A. at the University of Wisconsin, also in the United States, a 50 per cent protein product is being obtained by squeezing the juice from alfalfa specially grown for this pur[redacted].

UNIFARM INSURANCE POOLS TO END

After almost 20 years of service to the F.U.A. and Unifarm, auto and fire insurance pools are to be discontinued, Howard Falkenberg, Unifarm president has announced in a letter to all Unifarm members.

The Alberta Superintendent of Insurance and the Automobile Insurance Board have requirements which prevent continuation of the pooling program.

Unifarm's insurance committee discussed the matter with representatives of The Co-operators, underwriters for the pool, and the Superintendent of Insurance, and found that there is no basis for continuation of the pooling program in any form.

Mr Falkenberg noted it was gratifying that the program, established in 1959 had met its objective which was to obtain insurance at cost. The F.U.A. felt at that time insurance premiums were generally higher than they needed to be. Thus the pooling of premiums and claims with those members in good standing evolved. At the end of each year, surpluses were distributed to eligible members in the form of a discount on premium [redacted].

With termination of the pools, The Co-operators have been asked to periodically review their rates. Already physical damage premiums for most Alberta auto policy holders insured with The Co-operators have been reduced by 10 percent.

Eligible members will be receiving final dividend cheques in the month of May.

Carob powder (also called carob flour) can be substituted for cocoa. Carob powder is available at Health Food Stores for $1.50 per pound. Cocoa is selling for $5.00 per pound (Edmonton May prices).

What does this saving mean in terms of baking a cake? Substituting one third cup carob powder for cocoa means the cake will cost 38 cents less.

Straight substitution may be made, however, the following changes should give a somewhat better product. 1. Decrease the amount of sugar slightly. 2. Increase the amount of vanilla. 3. Decrease the oven temperature by 25 degree F. 4. Sift the carob powder before mixing with the other ingredients.

The only reason for recommending carob powder is the tremendous increase in the price of cocoa. There are no nutritional advantages in the use of carob powder as opposed to cocoa.

Tofield's annual Sports Day will be held on Saturday with this year's theme being "A salute to the Commonwealth Games".

While the Sports Day is being held on Saturday, the annual celebration will actually begin the night before with a dance in the Arena.

Saturday's activities will commence with a pancake breakfast being served in the Community Centre, starting at 7:30 a.m. Proceeds from the breakfast will go to the building fund of That Place. One of the major highlights, each year, is the giant parade that wanders through the business community.

The parade will gather at the hospital at 10:30 a.m. where the judging will take place.

At 11:00 a.m. the parade will leave the hospital and go east to Kallal Motors, then one block south and east to the Tofield Hotel. Then, it will proceed north on Main Street to the Freebury Clinic where it will turn and go east for one block, then south to the United Church, and east to the Fairgrounds.

Baseball will highlight the sporting attractions to be offered during the day at the Fairgrounds.

Holden will tangle [illegible] do at 9:00 a.m. while Ryley faces Camrose just two hours later. The two winners will meet at one o'clock.

Tofield beats Round Hill at three o'clock with the tournament's championship game set to go at six o'clock.

A gymkhana has been scheduled [illegible] Light Horse Association [illegible] of the Arena at one o'clock. Highlights of this year's show will include a horse drill and a cattle penning event.

Six teams have been entered in the ladies' fastball tournament.

The first game goes at 9:30 a.m. between Kingman and Tofield Ladies while Round Hill and Ryley High School will tangle at 11am, and Ryley Ladies face Tofield High School at 12:30 pm.

The tournament semi-finals will go at two o'clock with the finals scheduled for 4:30 pm.

A men's fastball tournament also has six entries.

An event that is expected to attract considerable attention has been scheduled for three o'clock in the arena.

There will be a weight-lifting competition, featuring members of Tofield and Edmonton weight-lifting clubs.

Concession booths will operate at the Fairgrounds all day and a giant beef barbeque will be served, starting at 4:30 pm.

Saturday walk helps Gwynne children's home

On Saturday, the Tofield Mennonite Youth Organization held a walk-a-thon from Tofield to Ryley and back, for anyone who wanted to walk.

Approximately 30 people joined: Robert Lyslo, Nancy Neufeld, Ken Wilde, Teresa Laarhuis, Marge Klaussen, Diane Epp, Deanna Fleck, Rosa Siemens, Karry Krystal, Brenda Peters and Eva, Janice Wilde, Steve Donnan, Carrie Epp, Reggie Kosoway, Corney Goertzen, Kathy Wilde, Laura Siemens, Janice Epp, Paul Wilde, Shareen Weiss, Randy Siemens, Aron Klaussen, Myra Baergen, Doreen Gauthier, Viola Warkentine, Wallace Lehman, Lorne Peters, Mike and Joyce Gladüe.

Corney Goertzen of Tofield walked from Tofield to Ryley on stilts. Paul Wilde walked to Ryley and Reggie Kosoway walked to Ryley and back, all 22 miles. Robert Lyslo jogged and was the first to get back to Tofield.

The money is going to the Gwynne Children's Home, which we hope to visit some time in the near future.

The total amount raised will be announced in next week's news.

[illegible] Peters drove up and down the highway, setting up check points, and picking up the people who couldn't make it.

The Ryley Legion provided ice, and Keith Robson and Ryley Bigway donated phones.

Ryley investigates comm. playground

The Village of Ryley is looking into the possibility of establishing a community playground to serve the village and surrounding area.

Don Kondrat attended a recent meeting of village council and outlined his plan for a community playground.

Council accepted Mr. Kondrat's proposal and turned it over to the finance Committee and the Recreation Board for possible funding, with the suggestion that the report be brought back to the next council meeting, scheduled for this past Monday.

Council accepted a proposal submitted by Calgary Power whereby the utility company agreed to install three-phase power at the new water treatment plant, at no cost to the village.

It was agreed that excess funds from the water storage reservoir, constructed in 19[illegible], be applied to the cost of the construction of the water treatment plant. Amount of the excess funds is $61,737.35.

Council received a report, through Councillor Brown, from firemen attending a school at Vermilion. Councillor Brown also gave a report on a symposium he had attended in Banff.

Walter Narten was appointed as the village's weed inspector for 1978.

Accounts presented for payment were approved.

Minutes of a regular meeting held on May [illegible] were approved.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a regular council meeting held on June 12th.

Ryley takes lead in the Powerline

It seemed impossible, but the race for first place in the Powerline Baseball League tightened up during the past week.

Only one-half game separates the top four teams in the league with only one week remaining in the regular schedule.

Ryley has moved into sole possession of first place following the past week's action, dropping Bardo into a second place tie with Camrose, with both teams mere percentage points ahead of Holden.

Round Hill and Tofield are out of contention, with the result that neither team will be competing in the playoffs.

Games on Tuesday will see Camrose play in Bardo, while Ryley travels over to Holden and Round Hill goes to Tofield.

One week from today (Thursday), the schedule will have Bardo in Holden, Ryley travels over to Holden, and Round Hill goes to Tofield.

One week from today (Thursday), the schedule will have Bardo in Holden, Ryley in Round Hill, and Tofield at Camrose.

Two other games have to be played. Holden must play in Ryley while Bardo has a game in Tofield.

Ryley jumped into first place when they outslugged Bardo 19-12 after battling to a 1-1 draw with Camrose.

Camrose blanked Round Hill 21-0 while Holden dumped Round Hill 17-11 and blasted Tofield 17-1.

Getting the word

Most of the participants in Saturday afternoon's walk-a-thon from Tofield to Ryley and back, gathered in front of Charlie's Place to get instructions from Kathy Wilde (back to camera) before starting out on their twenty-two mile hike to raise money for the Gwynne Children's Home. Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (SF)— If things had gone according to the scenario mapped out early this year by the Trudeau government, we would presently be in the final stages of a federal election campaign. The Gallup poll and private Liberal Party polls combined to change the Prime Minister's mind.

Mr Trudeau can't be blamed for using his prime ministerial prerogative to choose an election at a time when the political climate is beneficial for his party, because that's part of the Canadian system, but he was foolish to the extreme in trying to claim that the early summer election hype was all the fault of the media. There is no doubt that the Liberal Party was geared up for the expected election at the Prime Minister's behest and postponement may have done the Trudeau cause irreparable damage.

More than 400 candidates had already been nominated for the expected election. Volunteer workers were recruited to knock on doors, staff meetings held and campaign offices. Those volunteering their services for the Liberal Party are well aware of the fact that the election was postponed because the head man of the party didn't think the Liberals could win. They'll be afflicted with the slumps because of it and will be just that much tougher to recruit this fall, or next spring, when the election finally comes.

Not so with workers for the Tories or the NDP. They no know that the voting date was postponed because the government was in political trouble and they'll sense potential victory, thus be much more eager to serve when the election call finally does come.

Momentum right now favors the Conservatives to a marked degree, but the Liberals are scurrying to reverse things.

It's going to take action on a major scale to turn Liberal fortunes around. If traditional tactics are used, it just won't work. In the past when Mr. Trudeau and the Liberals have been out of public favor — as in 1972 when Liberal strength in Parliament was cut to a minority government — the answer of the party brain trusts was to use salesmanship. It was never considered that policies were wrong; merely that they had not been "sold" to the public properly.

Voters will give you 15 different answers for dissatisfaction with the Liberal government today, but beneath the specific reasons lies a discontent with the Prime Minister himself. No degree of public relations hype can lure that around, unless, of course, the man himself can produce the miracle he is a magnificent campaigner and that's exactly what he'll be doing this summer, election or not.

OUT OF CONTROL

Save poor Mr. Dowling

The Alberta Lung Association last week announced in a press release it is gearing to save the lung, (if not the soul), of Business Development Minister Bob Dowling. Because the Hon. Mr. Dowling, after ten weeks off the weed, "reverted", in their words, "to his old minority status." Horror of horrors, he started smoking again.

The Association, according to Doris Lewoniuk, who is executive director, "is determined to save his lungs."

All we can say is, God help the minister. The feeling expressed by the Lung Association isn't help, . . it's the depraved righteousness of the reformed.

And far from helping, it can only be guaranteed to get in the way.

The Hon. Bob is well known as a native son of Olaton. We've known and respected him as a man for roughly half of his half century. And we think he needs this sort of "moral support" like a gambler needs a new set of odds.

It's probably a case of supporting the missionary effort in far-off lands, but for years we have endorsed and supported the efforts of the Alberta Lung Association. We'll probably continue to do so in the future.

But that doesn't mean we can't disagree with what we consider unreasonable pressure, directed in an unreasoning manner, at one public figure. A public figure who had agreed they had a good cause, and tried publicly to help them advance their program.

Old Camrose area residents know Bob Dowling well enough to know he's his own man. And if he gave up the weed for ten weeks, he was sincere in his support of the Lung Association. If he took it up after ten weeks, it's probably because only God and other members of the Cabinet comprehend the pressures facing a Minister in the government today.

As we understand Alcoholics Anonymous, their support of their members comes more from encouragement to continue, than from condemnation over slipping.

Mrs. Lewoniuk and the Lung Association, we would think, would stand to advance their cause far more by adopting the precepts of A.A. than by coming out publicly and embarrassing a hitherto willing, as well as able, supporter.

When it comes to questions like smoking, drinking, eating, exercise, and so on, many of us are willing to be convinced, but few of us are willing to be coerced. And that's what we tend to feel when we experience the pressure to surround us such as the Lung Association indicates in its pinpointing of Bob Dowling.

Teapot tempest

Travellers planning holidays will be grateful that pilots flying for Air Canada agreed not to go on strike after the company threatened to remove their privilege of flying first class between assignments.

Much of the time there are enough empty seats in the first class compartment that little problem would be caused by staff members using that area, rather than competing with the public for seats in the economy class. And while other carriers don't usually make first class accommodation available, it's not at all uncommon for staff to travel on pass.

It could even be said it might be important to have them arrive at their destination more rested and relaxed than other passengers, especially if the safety of the next flight out depends on their reflexes.

On the other hand, it strikes us as a dreadful indictment of both union and management when a strike could threaten over such a relatively unimportant and trifling single issue. To think that an entire nation could be tied up by such a strike reminds us of the comment of Judge Carl Goldenburg, of Montreal, one of Canada's foremost labor relations arbitrator. When he faced a dispute some years back between the Canadian Pacific Railway and its engineers and firemen, Judge Goldenberg prefaced his judgment with a comment to the effect that "Surely to God in this twentieth century it should not be necessary to resort to strike" . . . to settle such a matter as faced him.

We sure are in a mess

With unemployment in this nation now over the million mark, with inflation almost reaching double digit figures again, the Canadian dollar at its lowest ebb in the nation's history, with the federal government's current debt reaching almost $18 billion dollars, and with billions of Canadian money pouring out of the country for investment in the U.S., there is little wonder that Pierre Trudeau has been in no hurry to set the date for a general election

Newspaper editors all across the nation are drawing their readers' attention to the unprecedented financial banging that has been going on in the nation's capital during the past ten years, among them the Brockville Recorder and Times, which in a recent editorial, had the following to say (under the heading "We're in a Mess"):

"It is not uncommon to hear criticism of the Liberal government's handling of the economy. And as the time for an election draws nearer, the trumpeting against the Trudeau years becomes ever louder. And after reading an address given by a Canadian Construction Association official in Fredericton in January, it is not difficult to find reasons to join the chorus

"Mr J C MacInnes reminded his listeners that five years ago the Association appeared before a federal government committee and told its members what was going to happen in 1976 if the government didn't heed the Association's advice and warning. In its brief to the government the Association pointed out that the government's insistence in spending money the nation didn't have (by printing more money) and the tendency to let the civil service grow "like Topsy", without control, would inflate the economy, create unemployment and drive away investment. Nothing was done, construction has ground to a halt and all the other ills have visited the nation. In other words, we're in a mess and Finance Minister Chretien, in bringing down his budget the other night, supported some of Mr. MacInnes' contentions.

"But the Construction people have a solution to offer, unlike many of the government's critics. And it's worthy of note Coats, including labor, must be kept to 4 percent or less a year, taxes must be cut by $3 billion, government growth cut and government involvement in the economy cut back.

"In the past 10 years, government deficits, which Mr Chretien said were going up another $11½ billion this year, have totalled more than the combined deficits of all other federal governments in the previous 100 years. Since Mr. Trudeau came to power in 1968, government spending has risen 377 percent and in the same period wages have grown by 89 percent and consumer taxes have risen 220 percent. The government, without fanfare or referendum, has burdened every man, woman and child in the country with a debt that stood at $5,217 each as of 1976. It is estimated it will go to a little better than $9,000 this year.

"We feel many Canadians are ready to join Mr. MacInnes and the Canadian Construction Association in asking the question: 'Would you like your business planned by those people?' The present tax system, another questionable instance, shows a remarkable ignorance of the productive forces in society. The government penalizes ability for being ability and success for being success.

Productive genius is being [illegible] to sustain mediocrity. The tax system should reward success not penalize it. The government must also get off the backs of business for 25 percent of a business executive's time today is being spent dealing with government initiated requests, and most of it is a waste of time

"We find agreement with the arguments put forward by Mr. MacInnes in the feeling that if the ground is fertile, the market sector will quickly and efficiently grow. All of which begs another question: If this government were to win the next election, would the business community have the necessary faith in it to move ahead or would the country stagnate further?"

PQ, Quebec Business Face Off for Fight

The business community in Quebec is quickly becoming the chief opposition to the Parti Quebecois government. Those businessmen are not pulling any punches, writes Amy Booth from Montreal. One of their leading spokesmen, Pierre Des Marais, head of Quebec's Conseil du Patronat, which speaks on behalf of corporations representing about 30 per cent of the employees in the province, told that "over the short ter conditions in Quebec will get worse before they get better. It will take the province 30 years to recover. We know that investment is not coming here and we know too that even more negative decisions are being made around the board room tables." Fernand Roberge, speaking on behalf of the Hotel Association of Greater Montreal, recently castigated the provincial government for "allowing" the tourist industry to deteriorate in the province.

Numbers of tourists are down more than 5 percent from last year, Roberge says, and the tourist industry has had to lay off nearly 1,500 in June and July, the two months that normally require extra staff. Roberge said that in part the downturn in tourism - which accounts for investments exceeding $600 million, provides jobs for more than 80,000 persons and pays $142 million into provincial coffers - reflected a decrease in sales tax introduced in the first Parti Quebecois budget and the indexed minimum wage, now the highest in North America For these reasons, he says, the tourist industry "can no longer remain within the silent majority." Instead, it must announce "its true independence towards the government."

Final rites for Wilfred Simonson

Wilfred Simonsen of Camrose was born in Tofield on March 24, 1913 and passed away on May 9 at the age of 63 years.

He spent most of his life in this area and was well known in the Bardo, Kingman and Camrose districts. He worked for a few years in New Westminster, then returned to Kingman and worked there for several years, before moving to Camrose about 25 years ago. During most of that time he was employed by Jubilee Construction. He retired in November of 1975.

In his passing, he leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, Gladys; two daughters, Dianne York and Vivian Holt, four grandsons, two brothers Harold and William, four sisters, Alice Sitler, Selma Clinansmo, Marge Olsenberg, and Della Swanson, besides a host of other relatives.

Funeral services were held in the Mountain Lutheran Church with Rev. Carl Kapperud officiating.

Interment was in the Camrose Cemetery. Burger Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Alf Anderson, Marvin Johnson, Ken Anderson, Ed Dorsagh, Elmer Hartmann, Henry Krause, John Kashuruk and Andy Kosha.

Pallbearers were Bill and Harold Simonsen, Selmer Olsenberg, Elmer Sitler, Herman Swanson, and Wyman Christenson.

Whither Canada's graduates

With Canada facing its worst unemployment crisis since the late 1930's, university and college students are emerging from the education system to find that opportunity is no longer knocking. The jobless rate for those in the work force who have a university degree, whatever its age, is only half as high as the rate for all levels of education. But new graduates aren't nearly as immune from the unemployment [illegible] they would be. It's unnerving not just for graduates, but for a society that spends 8 percent of its gross national product on education — high by international standards — to find that its economy does not have the momentum necessary to harness these new skills. The crisis of graduates who cannot find a useful, suitable or meaningful first job with which to start their working lives is something not seen in Canada since the Great Depression and the anguish and anger will color the future attitudes and actions of too many. While post-secondary education may have the short-term effect of delaying entry into an already crowded labor market, it's unlikely that Canada's economy is going to have to pick up fast if our investment in human resources is to be maximized This much is sure The graduate expectation gap cannot be allowed to widen Either expectations will have to be brought down closer to reality, or the educational institutions will have to be reshaped to a new effectiveness Plainly a bit of both is now in order

Ryley

The Ryley Seventh-day Adventist church had John Evans as speaker for Sabbath Worship Service on Saturday

Mr and Mrs Evans form an integral part of the Yukon Youth Centre, a village for children The purpose of this centre is to provide a loving home atmosphere for children who would not otherwise have this important aspect in their lives.

The Evans family, including eight children, of various racial backgrounds are presently touring eastern Canada, introducing people to the concept of a village for children and also to meet some of the sponsors of the project.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?
Every time you buy something [illegible] Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.
When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?
Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is
A. made or grown in Canada and
B. of equal or better value and quality.
That's not just good advice — it's good sense.

MADE IN CANADA
FABRIQUÉ AU CANADA

What is made in Canada?
Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.
As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.
Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?
Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.
If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian-made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.
Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?
Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Product of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Québec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster".
The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.
And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

The result has been that there were nine traffic accidents during the past five days, which saw four people injured, none seriously

Cadets enjoy weekend

Eighteen sea cadets from R.C.S.C.C. Nootka in Holden, along with three invited guests and the corps' leaders, converged on Belleview Lake on Friday for a weekend of sailing, boating, water skiing and fishing.

Several families of the cadets also attended and joined in the fun.

The weather was beautiful, the water cold and refreshing, and the mosquitoes plentiful.

With two sailboats at their disposal, each cadet had an opportunity to practice his or her sailing skills at least once during the weekend. Saturday's wind was rather mild, which was good for novices, but Sunday's gale was only for the experience sailor.

The canoes were kept busy both days, as was Lt. Tayler's boat pulling water skiers. Many of the cadets experienced the thrill of being able to stand up on water skis for the first time

On Saturday afternoon, Capt. Cooper and his novice sailboat crew were upset into the water by several passing canoeists, snorkelers and other well wishers. True to tradition, Capt. Cooper went down with his ship. Needless to say no one in the camp got away with dry clothes that day, as "dunking" was the order of the day.

The cadets were responsible for their own cooking of meals and clean-up, as well as the setting up and taking down of the large army-issue tents they slept in.

Lt. Brian McIntosh, cadet liason officer for the past year, and his wife, Sharon, also took an active part in the weekend's events, and said their "goodbyes" to the group as they are moving to Yellowknife in a few days' time

VACCINATING PETS AGAINST RABIES

Are you wondering whether you should vaccinate your dog or cat against rabies this summer?

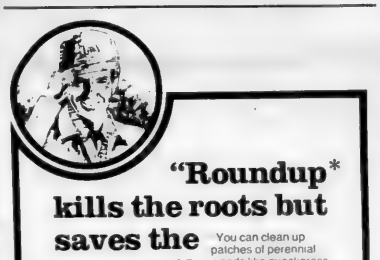
Dr. H. N. Vance, director of Alberta Agriculture's veterinary services division, suggests people who live on acreages and farms and those who plan to take their pets to lake cottages, etc. have them vaccinated against rabies.

"While Alberta's rabies vector control program has been quite successful, we are still finding the occasional rabid skunk in the extreme eastern part of the province," he says. Although no cases of rabies have been diagnosed in Alberta so far this year, four skunks, one cow, and nine bats were recorded in 1977 According to Dr Vance, bats are not a frequent source of rabies infection for dogs or cats

Although present regulations do not require pet owners to have their animals vaccinated before taking them into any of the national parks, Dr Vance thinks it is a good idea to vaccinate them anyway. He strongly recommends that people who plan to take their pets anywhere in Canada that is east of the Alberta border have them vaccinated British Columbia is free of rabies, but it is still a good idea to vaccinate pets before taking them there

Anyone planning to take a dog into the United States needs a rabies vaccination certificate signed by a Canadian or American veterinarian, which states that the animal was vaccinated at least 30 days, and not more than 36 months, before entering that country Although cats do not require a rabies certificate to go into the United States, they must have one to re-enter Canada

Both dogs and cats that have been domiciled in the United States must have been vaccinated against rabies within 36 months of entering Canada However, puppies, and kittens under three months of age do not have to have had a rabies vaccination



"Roundup* kills the roots but saves the soil

You can clean up patches of perennial weeds like quackgrass or Canada thistle, and kill the weeds around sheds and barns and in shelterbelts with Roundup

What makes Roundup different from most other weed killers is this: it works right down at the roots, and although it totally controls the growth of the weed, it does not persist in the soil

FOOD FOR CAMPING

Summer weekends mean heading for the mountains, cottage, or lake for a bit of camping and relaxation. When stocking your trailer, cabin or backpack with food, think skim milk powder. It's one of the most economical convenience foods you can buy. Most important, it's nutritious and fat free!

Powdered milk which has been opened will keep about two months To keep out the moisture, store in a well sealed container Once the powder is mixed with water, it should be used immediately or refrigerated

The camping cook can find many uses for skim milk powder Add it to cream soups, or make quick creamed fish, meat or cheese suppers by using margarine, flour, skim milk powder and water for the creamed sauce. Add a protein source and serve over toast, rice or noodles Skim milk powder and water can be added to packaged puddings — and try adding some raisins or nuts as well.

For a great start to your day in the outdoors, add 4 tablespoons of skim milk powder to each cup fresh, wild berries as an extra treat.

Have a Super Weekend!

Roadrunners lose tourney and money

Saturday was a losing proposition for the Camrose Roadrunners all the way around as they not only lost their own baseball tournament, but they also lost money

Holden won top prize money in the day-long tournament when the Roadrunners were eliminated in their first outing

Only a handful of fans turned out for the [illegible] which was the first baseball tournament to be held on the new diamond in Kin Park

It was a five-team tournament, with the other entries, besides Holden and Camrose, being Bardo, Tofield and Round Hill

Bardo took advantage of two costly errors by Tofield to score five runs in the first inning, to go on to pick up an easy 7-3 victory in the opening game of the tournament

L. Heiberg and Finseth paced Bardo's attack by going one for three while L. Williams, and Wickstrom had similar records for the losers

Holden picked up six runs in the first two innings and coasted to an easy 10-6 over the host Roadrunners

Burden allowed 10 hits in picking up the win, while Sawchuk and Stang gave up ten hits in a losing cause

Danilak had a perfect two for two while Chamberlain was two for three to pace the winners D. Stang, Heck and Nelson went two for four for the losers

Holden then faced Round Hill in the semi-finals and tallied an easy 10-1 win in an abbreviated contest

Danilak tossed a six-hitter to pick up the win while Campbell gave up only five hits, but walked ten, in taking the loss

Trann paced the winners by going two for three while D Banack of the losers had a similar total

Bardo piled up a 6-0 lead after four innings in the finals and then went on to commit six errors in allowing Holden to bounce back and post a close 10-6 win for tournament honours

Danilak paced the winners at the plate by going three for four while Trann and Micklich each went two for five W Stauffer of the losers was three for five Lineups for the finals did not show positions played by players so that batteries are now known.

CFIB

Terry Howlett

Terry Howlett is one of the District Managers serving this community for the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, a non-profit organization of over 40,000 independent business owners dedicated to the preservation of free competitive enterprise.

A prime function of the CFIB is to give small business owners in our area a stronger voice in the creation of both provincial and federal laws affecting business. The Federation has proven to be uniquely effective in this regard.

As a direct result of CFIB efforts, a great deal of far-reaching legislation to assist our local independent businesses has been passed. For example, the recently revised Small Businesses Loans Act makes loans available from the chartered banks at 1% over the prime lending rate.

This, plus many more equally vital initiatives by the CFIB, will assist local businesses and merchants in this community to create more job opportunities. For more information write: Terry Howlett, 3732 - 136 Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta, T5A 2P1.

Bad weather causes minor crop damages

Heavy rain, hail and frost have caused some damage to crops, according to reports received from Alberta Wheat Pool.

For the most part, however, crops are responding to the almost perfect growing conditions that have prevailed during the past few weeks.

Crops around Camrose are reported to be in excellent condition. Growth has reached 20 inches for rye with other crops ranging from four to seven [illegible].

Hail was the cause of some rapeseed damage in the Holden area with the condition of crops being about normal in most instances. Already there is a trace of crops being in shot blade stage

Ryley reports slight damage from hail and heavy rain although all crop conditions are reported as being good.

Farmers east of Tofield [illegible] in a one-half hour [illegible] the result that some [illegible] soil washed away.

Crop conditions are considered [illegible] normal with [illegible] from six to [illegible] in height. Ten [illegible] of the wheat has [illegible] the shot [illegible] stage and five percent of the rapeseed is in bloom

Daysland area farmers are still reporting their crops to be in better than normal condition. Flax and rye are the [illegible] reported to be [illegible] reported to be between 118 and 120 percent of usual condition at this stage.

Crops around Round Hill are not progressing as fast as in other areas, being reported to be from two to six inches high. Conditions indicate that most crops are only 90 to 95 percent normal with only rye being considered normal.

Some frost was reported around the Hay Lakes area with slight damage to gardens in the area. Grain crops were untouched and are reported in good condition, ranging from two to five inches tall.

No report was received from Rosalind, by presstime.

Economic realities

James C Webster, Director of U.S Governmental and Public Affairs, told the National Feed Ingredients Association on March 20th, 1978 "Today, wheat and feed grain producers have belt-bursting bins and cribs full of wheat and corn - some 2 billion [illegible] of this year and similar inventories of feed grains."

'How did we collect all this stuff? Well, somehow farmers got sold a bill of goods that $12 soybeans, $6 wheat and $3 corn were going to be a normal thing for farmers. Someone planted the idea that there would always be a Mother Russia with perennial crop failures and an inexhaustible capacity to take all the wheat and corn we could raise. So farmers planted wall-to-wall and bought $40,000 tractors and farmland for $2,000 to $3,000 an acre and thought the millenium had come

"After three years of record production, they read the price cards at their local elevator and wheat was $1 78 and corn was $1 40

"The return to reality was painful

"The United States and world food and agriculture system is always in a state of imbalance. There is a thin and precarious line between over-supply and shortages."

Bruce Stampede nears

by Bea Fredricks

Would you believe that there are only four Mondays until Stampede Day?

Time before Stampede is always measured in Mondays for that's the evening that the men work at the grounds. No other night will do for traditions concerning this major event die hard. Chances are that some fellow who hasn't been seen or heard from since last summer will show up to work and it would be a shame to discourage such dedicated loyalty.

Actually, these work bees begin rather leisurely with few in attendance and much discussion as to what needs doing and an even longer discussion later in the local establishment where the hard workers finally drift to quench their thirst.

As the important day approaches, however, more people appear and the activity gains momentum.

It's a fact that in Bruce there are only two seasons — Pre-Stampede and Post-Stampede.

Whether one is relaxing in the Bruce Inn over a cup of coffee or picking up groceries at one of the stores, snatches of conversation are overheard — . . . got the hay cut before Stampede, . . . can't get away to the lake until after Stampede.

Notice, too, that NOBODY refers to this gala occasion as a rodeo, it has always been just a plain old Stampede.

Two years ago, one of our local merchants decided to give the front of his store a facelift (naturally his plans were to complete it before Stampede).

When he mysteriously disappeared from the Queen contestants' supper on Stampede Eve, he was spotted up on a stepladder putting the finishing touches on the new sign. And there it was, adding just the right touch of dignity to Main Street for the parade next morning. Now I wouldn't be guilty of such nonsense so our six thousand or so visitors will find our place just as it is the other 364 days of the year.

During the next few weeks, I would like to share with you some of the activity that precedes this important community event — that is if I have time ... could be that I will weaken and paint the garage before Stampede!

Tofield Lodge News

Mr. Carruthers has transferred to the Lodge in Camrose where he will now be closer to members of his family.

Mr. Harrison motored to Viking on Saturday to visit with friends. Mr. Harrison was a resident of Vialta Lodge for four years.

Chapel service last Thursday was led by the Tofield Mennonite Ladies group. Mrs. Marlene Unrau played the piano for a singsong and Mrs. John Koop shared a reading.

At noon on Sunday men of the Gideon Bible Society held a short program and presented a Bible for each room of the lodge.

Presently in hospital are Mrs. Hesler, Mrs. Kindal and Mrs. Kortzman. Mr. Stock who has been hospitalized since prior to Christmas is reported to be steadily improving.

Mr Baergen, Lodge Manager, reports that the patio furniture is being enjoyed by all during warm days of summer.

Increase limits for Farm Credit

In addition to a number of other things, recent amendments to the Farm Credit Act have raised lending limits.

The lending limit for a farming operation with one qualifying applicant is now $200,000, regardless of age. The previous maximum loan was $150,000 for an eligible applicant under 35 years of age, and $100,000 for an eligible applicant over 35 years of age.

The amendments also provide for a loan limit of $400,000 for farm units with two or more qualifying applicants. Previously the same loan limit applied to all farm units, regardless of the number of eligible applicants involved.

Harry Warne of Alberta Agricuulture's farm business management branch says this new provision will be useful for joint farming operations and for families who wish to expand their farming unit to enable a son or daughter to work into the business.

Another amendment provides for all loans to be secured on a market value basis. In the past standard loans to people under the age of 35 could be secured on a market value basis, but those made to people over 35 were secured on an appraised productive value basis.

Still another amendment provides for the elimination of the penalty interest charge on loans that are in arrears.

The $25 a year charge for supervision, which was applied to loans exceeding 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm business, has been dropped. Advisory services will now be provided only when needed and requested.

To qualify for a standard loan under the present Farm Credit Act, a borrower who is over 35 years of age must have a full-time farm business. However a person who is under 35, and who wants to "phase into" farming, may retain an off-farm job for up to five years.

The average loan made by the Farm Credit Corporation last year was $78,985 compared with $67,510 in 1976. Approximately 72 per cent of last year's loans were made to farmers under the age of 35.

And, if you can't read

At a recent conference hosted by RPM Magazine, a firm by the name of the Comber-Beavan Agency arranged for a publicity hand-out in registrants' kits that may be of interest to safety personnel.

It took the form of a card, about the size of the average luggage label, with a slot in the centre that contained an ordinary rubber balloon.

It was titled a "Sobriety tester" and the instructions given were "Blow up balloon to 10" diameter, and tie off."

However, the card recognized that not everyone might be able to do so, so it gave these alternatives:

IF unable to tie the balloon, don't drive.

IF unable to blow up the balloon, don't use the stairs.

IF unable to find the balloon, don't use the elevator.

IF unable to read these instructions DON'T MOVE!

There was plenty of action in Kingman on Saturday when that community held its annual Sports Day, with action in men's, ladies' and children's ball. The shot was taken during a crucial game between Round Hill and Ryley.

Blood knowledge

About 12 years ago the Canadian Red Cross Society began using plastic blood packs for blood collection.

These plastic blood packs are lighter in weight and sturdier than glass bottles and can be credited to a large extent with the Red Cross's increased efficiency in providing the gift of life where and when it is needed.

an interesting proposition for SMALL BUILDERS

LOANS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF RESIDENTIAL SUBDIVISIONS IN ALBERTA

Alberta Home Mortgage Corporation's Residential Land Development Program offers an opportunity and a challenge to Alberta's small private building firms. The Corporation would like to see more of the province's smaller builders involved in its plans to stimulate the delivery of affordable housing to Alberta families. This program opens up an avenue for your company to participate fully and to increase the scope of its activities and its revenues in the home-building field.

If you presently own land, hold an option or can obtain an option on suitable land for residential subdivision in Alberta, AHMC may provide mortgage financing for up to 90% of the cost of the land, subdivision planning, and all servicing for a project to a maximum of $10,000 per lot. The size of the project may not exceed the equivalent of 150 residential lots.

In addition, loans for the construction of housing in the project may be obtained under other AHMC programs.

This is a real opportunity for smaller builders whose gross annual revenue is less than $10 million to get into a development and construction project that will provide a stable ongoing base of operations.

Memories

Fond memories of the gold old days were revived in Kingman on Saturday with displays of items of days gone by being exhibited in the Community Hall. The occasion was Kingman's annual Sports Day.

Students tour farm

June 12 dawned clear and bright.

Eighty grade one students from the Sateo School at Bill Woods visited the Joseph Vosgitin farm for their field trip and picnic. For many, it was a new experience.

Upon arrival, they divided into 3 groups, and accompanied by their teachers, Lois Vosgitin, Gloria Hlebka, Colleen Kennedy, and five additional supervisors, they began their hike through the pasture.

As well as observing the horses and cattle enroute, they searched for several varieties of wild flowers.

They discovered just how fast baby chicks grow when they visited the chicken house and became re-acquainted with the ones they had hatched in their school room at Easter.

Other activities included bottle feeding the two sets of triplet kids, and petting the two-day old ones. The added feature of the day was a new set of triplets born that very morning.

They also observed a goat and cow being milked. One of the boys, gazing at the foamy white contents in the pail said, "Is that milk? Yuk!"

The boys showed special interest in the horses and fed them grain, which they pulled, keeping both boys and horses happy.

The girls spent some time trying to persuade the kittens to come out of their hiding place.

A wiener roast, followed by home-made ice cream, two interestingly decorated cakes, chocolate milk and lemonade, brought their activities to a close.

After seating the children on the lawn, the birthday girl presented Mrs. Vosgitin with a book, "Wild Flowers of Alberta", and thanked her for the privilege of coming to the farm.

Boarding two buses, they returned to their school, tired, but happy.

The past 16 years, as owners and operators of the Alberta Hotel have been most enjoyable for the Kast family.

We have made many friends and have enjoyed the privilege of serving each of you.

As of Monday, July 3, 1978 the hotel will be managed under the new ownership of:

RONALD & DIANA GUILTNER

We trust that you will favour the new owners with your patronage.

In order to make the transition to the new owners, we will be closing the restaurant and dining room on Sunday, July 2, to take inventory.

Again, thank you for your patronage and best wishes to Ronald and Diana.

SENIOR CITIZENS

As many of you know last week I was away for a week tour to Grande Prairie, Peace River and Slave Lake with 40 senior citizens from our County. We had a lot of fun but lots of problems!

Monday morning we left early on our way to Grande Prairie. We stopped for coffee at Spruce Grove with our lunch break at Whitecourt. Lunch consisted of bag lunches brought from home and tea was made. Another short break was made at Valleyview for coffee. We arrived in Grande Prairie at 7:00 p.m. for supper and then to the Richmond Motel. Everyone was supposed to rest that morning, but as soon as we got to the motel, everyone was gone for ice cream or museum or walking, or even out for a brew!

Tuesday morning we had an early breakfast and set out for Beaverlodge to visit the museum. We had a picnic lunch there while shingles were made and everyone toured the displays of machinery, horses and antiques. On the way back to Grande Prairie for supper. That evening we visited the senior citizen's drop-in centre for some games of whist and lots of gab. We had alot of fun and didn't make it home too early.

Wednesday morning we got up to a rainstorm. After divided the group in half, Carol Lynn Chilkowich and her gang were off to Wanham and a ploughing competition. My gang headed to Dunvegan where we had lunch and then continued onto Peace River. Both buses met in Peace River where we stayed at the Crescent Motel. In the evening we visited the Peace River seniors where activities included bingo, singsong and coffee. The hospitality was very warm and we had an enjoyable evening.

Thursday was a relaxing day with few activities planned. In the morning shopping was on the agenda, so the ladies took advantage of it. We had our picnic lunch at the Peace River town park. We spent the afternoon with the Peace River seniors, leaving later for Slave Lake. Upon arrival at Slave Lake, a turkey supper was served. We stayed at the Sawridge Motor Hotel in Slave Lake which is a beautiful facility including a hotel, restaurant, dining lounge, cocktail lounge, tavern, gift shop and banquet room. We had a lot of trouble getting some to bed as they were attracted by the dancing of the tavern.

Friday morning we left early for home. Westlock was our lunch break and Fort Saskatchewan our coffee break. We were home by 5:00 p.m.

At this time, I'd like to pass on my sincere thanks to the staff, Carol Lynn Chilkowich - assistant, Jim Ingram - busdriver, Tom Harray - busdriver, and Roy Whitlam - truckdriver, for the jobs well done. With all the bus problems, we had, I appreciated your assistance as well as your encouragement.

Hope to see all you travelling senior our next time!

TRAVELLING PLAYGROUND

The travelling playground bus will be visiting the following communities on these dates: July 3-7 - Prague at Prague Community Hall, 10-14 - Kinsella at Kinsella School, 17-21 - Bruce at Bruce School. Registration is $3.00 per person and will be taken the first day of playground.

CAMP LAKE

A reminder that registrations are still being taken for our camping programs this summer. Camps are five days long with campers arriving Monday and departing Friday noon. Camp 1 - Girls only - 7-10 years, July 26-28. Camp 2 Boys only - 7-10 years, July 31-August 4. Camp 3 Boys and Girls - 11 years and up, August 7-11. The fee of $30.00 includes meals, materials, supplies and transportation. Please call our office at 663-3730 for a registration form.

STATIONARY PLAYGROUND

A note of explanation concerning the new age limit for the playground programs. Four year olds are not included in our programming this year because we have been forced to cut our staff back to one leader in Tofield.

Ryley news items

by Joyce Gindus

Since Kathy Wilde is leaving a new news correspondent is needed, and I'm taking her place. I hope to do as good a job as Kathy did. I enjoy writing and I'm sure this will be a good experience for me.

Richard Kope came home last week from a one week holiday in Indiana. Richard won this trip by selling treflon for Alberta Wheat Pool. He spent a week in the nice warm sun and had fun attending banquets and other activities. Richard was so lucky to visit and watch the Triple A baseball game and the Indianapolis 500 speed way race.

The Senior Citizens have returned from their visit to the northwest last week. They had an interesting and enjoyable trip.

Beth Kope held another MCC Self-Help sale in her breezeway last Saturday. Many hand-made crafts were sold.

Doug Wilde had the misfortune of losing his front tooth last week while playing ball. He was taken to Camrose and had the tooth transplanted.

Tofield Sports Day draws 3,000

Fun time

Taking part in Saturday's parade which was part of Tofield's annual Sports Day, was on enjoyable outing for residents of Tofield Lodge, who were listed among the prize winners for their parade entry. —The Mercury Newsphoto

Tofield enjoyed its most successful Sports Day in the town's history, on Saturday, as part of Canada Day celebrations.

Huge crowds lining the parade route in the morning indicated that this year's Sports Day was going to be successful.

The indications proved to be much more realistic than organizers thought, as over three thousand (3,000) people attended the different events being presented at the Fairgrounds.

Lindbrook, Ryley and Camrose teams emerged as the winners in the baseball and fastball tournaments that were held.

Ladies' Fastball

Ryley Ladies won the championship when they defeated a team from Round Hill in the finals.

Ryley earned its berth in the finals when they stopped Tofield 10-8 in the semi-finals.

Round Hill earned its berth in the finals by beating Ryley High School in the opening round, and then went on to beat Kingman in the semi-finals. In the other opening round game, Kingman defeated Tofield Ladies.

Men's Fastball

Lindbrook topped the field in men's fastball while Ryley rebounded to win the consolation playoff.

Lindbrook defeated Tofield 9-5 in the finals after stopping Ryley 13-6 in the opening round, and drawing a bye past the semi-finals. Larry Olsen and Larry McLeod picked up the wins.

Tofield had earned a berth in the finals by whipping Holden 9-1 in the semi-finals with Vic Wiens picking up the win. Tofield had gained a bye in the first round.

In the other opening round game, Holden stopped Kingman 10-6 with Roger Skyba getting credit for the victory.

Ryley got past Kingman 11-7 and Holden 7-6 to win consolation honours with Bill Peters getting credit for both wins.

Baseball

Camrose Roadrunners received two shutouts from their pitching staff enroute to winning the baseball tournament.

Grant Skippen blanked Tofield 3-0 in the finals, after George Odovichine led the way to a 3-2 win over Bardo in the semi-finals Camrose blanked Ryley 7-0 in the opening round with Glen Nelson getting the win.

Tofield whipped Round Hill 10-3 in the opening round with Robert Marshall picking up the win. Tofield then drew a bye into the finals.

In the other opening round contest, Bardo walloped Holden 9-3 with Richard Fosheug getting credit for the win.

Bruce water available during annual Stampede

by Bea Fredericks

Bruce is not only famous for its Stampede its water is long remembered by those fortunate enough to have sampled it

This water accuasy given Bruce-ites a decided advantage over those in neighboring towns, for when they have unpopular visitors, they make them a cup of tea.

That simple courteous gesture usually ensures that their guests will not return at teatime again. This year, the members of the Bruce Stampede Association decided that water so unique should be shared with the public

Consequently, a well has been drilled near the block building which serves as a power center Now nobody need go thirsty! I've been told that there were some hot Stampede days when certain individuals would have gladly given several dollars for one glass of cold water

Personally, I wonder if drilling a well is part of a conspiracy to convince the County that we are in dire need of suitable drinking water It could also be a plan to guarantee that pop sales increase.

After a sample of our good salt water, most people will require a "chaser."

Another major attraction at the Stampede grounds is the old-fashioned outhouse

However, some of the charm has been lost since Eaton's discontinued publishing its catalogue. On the south side of the grounds, the ladies have a more modern facility which by next year should have flush toilets.

There is no problem really, for if the line-up is too long there are lots of trees! Of you are brave enough and thin enough to hide behind one! If you are caught you can always pretend to be talking to a horse for inevitably there will be one tethered nearby.

The past years, an increasing number of people have been parking recreation vehicles in McVige's pasture across from the west gate It is an attractive picnic site with abundant trees to give shade and privacy

From all reports, there is as much action there Stampede eve as there is in the local Recreation Centre where the dance is held.

Campers are curious about the barbecue and gather at the pit after the dance to watch the large roasts being lowered into the hot coals It's not unusual to find a guitarist and a group of singers serenading the men while they work.

Could it be that a bit of music is the secret of good barbecued beef?

Memories

Senior citizens dropped in to the museum in Tofield to look over the displays exhibited during the town's annual Sports Day. The lady revived memories of the "gold old days" when she looked through this photo album.

Without a country

As one of the speakers at last Friday's Citizenship Court in Camrose said, most natural-born Canadians take citizenship too lightly, and too much for granted.

So the comment of Judge Evans as she addressed the gathering in the court was of considerable interest, as she drew attention to the fact that one of the group of twelve new citizens has attained citizenship for the first time. "He has been one of those stateless persons" said Judge Evans, who are so numerous in some parts of the world.

To us in Canada it hardly seems conceivable that every baby isn't born into some sort of citizenship, which he keeps until he formally adopts another. But there are countless persons in war ravaged areas, who are protected by no state, who enjoy no statehood, and who cannot even pass on citizenship to their children. Concentration camps in the Arab-Jewish countries, for instance, offer no citizenship, for neither country wants them. And in the Far East where battles have raged for years, where various ideologies have in turn flourished and been superceded, are millions of stateless persons.

Sometimes when we travel abroad we can glimpse the importance of citizenship, especially Canadian citizenship, but all too often it's one of those things that we won't prize sufficiently until we lose it.

It was interesting and highly enlightening during the same citizenship court session to talk with a young woman born in Poland, but who has lived in this country for several years, and who with her husband recently travelled back to her earlier home and her relatives.

Though she had spent several years there in growing up, her life in this country, with all its freedoms, had left her unexpectedly unprepared for the regulated, even regimented, forms of living in that country, nor could her family believe her reports about the freedom, the lack of restriction, and the ease of travelling in this country. Her family and their friends, she recalled, always had to have papers explaining their reasons for being in a particular area, where they were going, and why, and for how long. In war-time we might expect this, but today? To us, it seems incredible.

Travelling with a native of the country, and being treated as part of the family, her husband, too, found many strange and unexpected views of the country and its life which would completely escape the ordinary traveller.

Newlyweds, they found, had to apply for a place to live, which might be available in as little as fourteen years. Meantime, the new couple move in with the parents of one or the other. Cars are almost unavailable. They must be completely paid for, in cash and only when all the money has been put up can the application be made for purchase, with manufacture some time in the future, and delivery even further off.

We've certainly got problems in Canada as we enter our 112th year, but compared with circumstances like these, we've got a bowl of cherries. We should all be concentrating on maintaining every bit of freedom we have, and extending it as much further as we can, rather than supinely watching while government, bureaucracy, and underworld nibble away at its edges and cornerstones.

But before we can do that, we must learn to recognize just how very fortunate we are, and to prize our good luck.

Mazankowski reports:

Constitution proposal entails Senate change

The federal government introduced a bill in the House of Commons during the week of June 19, designed to change the Canadian constitution The target date set for approval of the constitutional package is July 1, 1979. The main points which are included in this third try by the government to change the British North America Act are outlined below:

The 104 seat Senate will be abolished and replaced with a 118 seat House of the Federation. Ontario and Quebec will have 24 members each, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, B.C. and Alberta will have 10 each, Newfoundland, Manitoba and Saskatchewan 6 each, P.E.I. will have four and the two Territories one each. Half of the members of this new House will be appointed by the provinces, with each party being able to appoint members in relation to the results of the last provincial election. The rest will be appointed by federal political parties on the basis of federal election results. The House of the Federation is designed to represent and protect regional, provincial and language rights. The House will be allowed to initiate any legislation, except that which requires the expenditure of money. Its members will approve appointments to federal boards and agencies, will have the power to delay, but not veto, House of Commons legislation, and will have by complicated "double majorities" system effective veto power over all language legislation.

The Supreme Court of Canada will be expanded to eleven members from the present nine and provincial governments would be involved in appointments to the Court The province of Quebec will be guaranteed 4 of the 11 justices which is an increase from the present guarantee of three.

In the area of language, French and English would have constitutional status as official languages but these guarantees, including the right to choose the language of education, would need provincial ratification to be fully operable The House of the Federation would, as mentioned earlier, have the power to prevent erosion in language rights Any legislation affecting language would have to be passed by a majority of both the House of the Federation's English speaking and French speaking members A negative vote under this provision could still be overruled by a two-thirds vote in the House of Commons.

The new constitution under the government's proposals would include a charter which would spell out individual rights such as freedom of thought, conscience, religion, mobility within Canada and enjoyment of property.

The maple leaf flag would become the official flag of Canada. O Canada would be officially declared the national anthem and God Save the Queen, the royal anthem The Queen and her successors would be spelled-out in law as the sovereign head of state Her representative, the Governor General, would perform certain functions in his or her own right independently of those in the name of the Queen.

These initiatives should be seen as proposals despite their being in the form of a bill A parliamentary committee will be studying the bill in detail and travelling across the country to hear the views of Canadians on this important subject. As such, the government's proposals should be regarded as merely a policy paper open for comment, criticism and, above all, alteration.

Low priced food

More than 40% of all Canadians are employed either directly or indirectly in the total food chain, but only 5 percent are actually primary producers and that 5 percent is diminishing. These 5 percent or one million people, placed together would make one-third of metro-Toronto or the city of Montreal.

No farmer in the world can match the productiveness of the Canadian farmer, but the constant tug-of-war between a fair price to the consumer and a fair price to the producer continues. In 1900, the average farmer produced enough food for seven people In 1940, he fed 11, by 1960 he fed 31 Today one average farmer feeds 52 people

When we talk about food prices, remember 62 cents of every dollar spent on food occurs in the food chain process after the original produce has passed through the farm gate Canadian farms are efficient Agriculture is Canada's most important industry, thanks to our farmers, and to the scientists who support them by developing better livestock and crop strains and better farming techniques.

Food is man's most basic need, without it nothing else matters. How many people are concerned that only 5 percent of our population feeds the other 95 percent? The Task Force Report on Agriculture 1970 reports that 64 percent of the farmers in Canada are over 45 years of age, and of that group 30 percent are over 56 The escalating cost of farming, land prices and accessibility of land makes it harder and harder for the entry of young farmers into farming operations To make matters worse, we see that farm input costs are expected to increase nearly 200 percent by 1979, while incomes are expected to continue their sharp decrease of recent Food in Canada is low priced. Is that the only consideration we should have?

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (SF) — Immediately after Prime Minister Trudeau decided that the people of Canada didn't really want a federal election this spring, the federal bureaucracy was sent into a frenzy preparing legislation The PM's logic in public over postponing the election had it that Parliament was working well, hence work should be performed. He refused to admit that his decision had anything to do with his party's falling in the Gallup Poll. He needed new laws in a hurry

The resulting economic legislation looked impressive on the surface, but much of it was badly drafted, and most of it was never intended to pass through the various stages of Parliament into law Things like the legislation changing rules for small business are being touted as measures which will save billions annually for the 800,000 small entrepreneurs- but why weren't such intelligent steps taken years ago? The need was certainly apparent, but I guess it took the threat of a dcy election to bring them forward

Mr Trudeau even had a controversial law introduced and that's something we've been promised for five years without seeing a sniff of it until now Don't hold your breath waiting for it to become law and don't expect much of the other desirable legislation quickly either It's designed to die on the order paper.

The law Mr Trudeau really wants through is the legislation authorizing Ottawa to pay $15 to every income tax paying Quebecker Quebec finance Minister Jacques Parizeau you'll remember, balked at the proposals of federal Finance Minister Jean Chretien for cutting provincial sales taxes across the board, and all Quebec is opposing the [illegible] scheme.

The opposition was determined to fight that bill tooth and nail, forcing the government to use closure to get it through Parliament. The government wanted a stack of attractive legislation backed up behind the Quebec sales tax law to give an added incentive to the opposition in the sales tax law debate

[illegible] Parliament recesses for summer, then adjourns for a new session in the fall, all legislation not passed through every stage of the Parliamentary process dies on the order paper That's what will happen to those laws we want so much

Should Mr. Trudeau decide that the polls are right for an election this fall, then he'll be able to have his troops charging in the campaign that the opposition in Parliament held things up so badly that needed legislation didn't make it into law.

Meanwhile, in the media, the government gets all sorts of credit for introducing things like the small business measures and the conflict of interest law, despite the fact that those proposals have never passed Parliament. Political is a tricky business, and not always practiced to the best interests of the people.

Milk Production Too high

The average Canadian consumes about 11 pounds of butter annually The amount of industrial milk required to produce this amount of butter yields 22 pounds of powdered skim milk. 16 pounds more than most Canadians want

The problem what to do with all that unwanted skim milk powder? The solution is for the Canadian Dairy Commission (CDC) to sell it on the international market as animal feed for the going price causes a loss of approximately 50 cents per pound These losses have to be covered by levies against dairy farmers' milk payments The CDC estimates the 1977-78 loss at $140 million, of which $125 million will be collected from farmers' levies The balance will come from the federal government

School conditions found consistent

Alberta's school terms are approximately the same as in other Canadian provinces and remain generally unchanged even though authority to set terms was shifted from the province to local school boards in 1970. These are the major findings of the School Year-School Day Study conducted by a University of Calgary team of educators for Alberta [illegible].

The study investigated school year-school day concerns in Alberta by reviewing relevant legislation and literature, by comparing data from the 1969-70 and 1975-76 school years, and by soliciting data and preferences through questionaires and interviews with trustees, superintendents, principals, teachers and parents.

On the average, Alberta schools were found to offer 190 days of instruction in the 1975-76 school year. This is 1.5 fewer than they offered in 1969-70. The average amount of instructional time in the school day for both 1969-70 and 1975-76 school years was five hours. Both were found to be consistent with the requirements in other Canadian provinces.

While some variations in the length of the instructional day and year were noted among the three levels of elementary, junior and senior high, these variations were consistent between the two school years studied. This finding indicated that the shift to local school board authority for setting school terms in 1970 has had little operational impact.

Questionnaire and interview respondents indicated general satisfaction with the present length of the school year and daily instructional time. There was a general desire to retain the traditional July-August summer vacation period. Most respondents preferred to have decisions related to the school year and school day continue to be made at the school board level of operation.

The School Year School Day Study was conducted under the supervision of a steering committee composed of representatives of the Alberta Teachers' Association, Alberta Federation of Home and School Association, Alberta School Trustees Association, Canadian Association of School Superintendents and the provincial Department of Education.

Ryley and district news items

by Joyce Gladue

A lot of people took advantage of the holiday weekend to go camping and visiting.

On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Adams, from Hawthorn, Nevada, and Mrs Alma Adams, from Ryley, visited Donald Erickson and family in Edmonton.

Lis Palmquist (Greig) and husband, from North Battlefield, visited Alma Adams and Mr and Mrs. Tom Harris last week.

A week ago last Sunday, the Holden, Ryley, and Viking congregations held a combination church service at Hastings Lake Bible Camp. There was a potluck dinner, ball playing and visiting. It was a full enjoyable day for everyone.

Thorn Mallum is still in the hospital.

The Alberta Hotel has been taken over by new management, last Monday. Ron and Dian Gulltaer are the new owners.

We are thankful for last weeks rain. Ryley trees, fields, gardens and flowers are looking great. Yes, we will soon have new [illegible].

The total amount of money raised for the Gwynne Children's Home is unkown yet.

I am encouraging you to call me if you have any news that you would like to put in the paper at 663-3884.

Tofield Lodge News

by Mrs. Agnes Anderson

This has been a rather busy week for some members of the staff and guests, preparing for the Sports Day in Tofield. Most of the guests were able to see the parade or attend the sports grounds. Our float was formost in receiving second prize for best float (non-commercial).

Our service last Thursday was led by members of the Lutheran Church which was very much enjoyed by the guests.

In the hospital at present are Stan Glover, Mrs. Nealer, Mrs. Kortman, and Mrs. Delany. Greetings to all of you.

Thanks again from all of us to those people who donated 6 folding chairs for the patio, in memory of Mrs Carlisle; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Berricloth; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rude; Mrs. Olive Sutton; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Jones; Mrs. Hilda Simpson.

This kind donation has been so much appreciated these hot days.

There were many visitors at the Lodge during the long weekend, and quite a few of the guests visited friends and relatives.

Confronting Your Faith

THE GREAT DIVIDE

We were standing on the banks of a rippling stream high in the Canadian Rockies. Not far from us, in the center of the narrow riverbed, was a huge boulder against which the rippling waters dashed.

We noticed that as the waters sprayed and foamed against the rock, they divided some continuing their course to the left of the jutting boulder and some splashing their merry way to its right. It was a beautiful sight to behold, and we stood there entranced for a few silent moments.

Do you realize, "our guide asked," that the water which is rushing to the left of that rock is going to end up in the Pacific ocean, while the water swirling to its right will end up in the Atlantic?" He then went on to explain. The rippling stream which we were admiring is known as Divide Creek. The boulder in the middle of the riverbed is situated at the crest of the continental divide.

The waters which rush to the left of that rock flow into Kicking Horse River, down through many mountain gorges into the Columbia River, and thence through the states of Washington and Oregon into the Pacific Ocean.

The waters which splash their way to the right of the huge polished stone flow into the Bow River, down through the mountains into Saskatchewan River, thence into Lake Winnipeg, and then through the Nelson River into Hudson Bay and ultimately into the Atlantic Ocean.

What only a few moments ago had been just another delightful mountain stream had suddenly, for us, become a sermon of tremendous importance. What a dramatic picture of life we thought.

Once those dashing droplets of water touched that rock and made their unconscious choice as to the side on which they would continue, their ultimate destiny was sealed. Beyond that rock they were destined, irrevocably, either for the Atlantic or for the Pacific, there would never be a turning back.

So, too in the affairs of men. In every life there are a hundred "Great Divides" which determine forever the direction of the future. But the greatest of these is that moment when the river of life finally heads inexorably for one of two eternities, an eternity with Christ or an eternity without Him.

You may be standing at that great divide today. Behold now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation.

Tourism group joins in appeal to Cabinet

Several members of the Battle River Tourist Association joined the Tourist Association of Alberta last Wednesday in making a special appeal to the provincial government for consideration in several areas. The group included President Bob Rattan of Provost, Past President, Edna Palmer of Killam, and Association manager, Sylvia Clements of Camrose, who joined other groups in the presentation in the Legislature Building in Edmonton.

Meeting with six Cabinet Ministers, the group urged that the government invest substantial sums from the Heritage Fund in facilities to improve opportunities for tourist in the province. Pointing out tourism is the province's third biggest industry, the group suggested that such investment meets Heritage Fund criteria in several ways, in that it provides thousands of jobs, generates an international exchange of people, ideas and concepts, and is a renewable resource.

The delegation reported that large numbers of tourists are coming to Alberta as a result of extensive advertising and marketing programs. There is also more travel within the province by Albertans, they pointed out.

The private sector must provide the capital for tourist accommodation, food and recreation, the group told the Cabinet ministers, but said the government could materially aid the program by establishing an overall tourism policy and investing in roads and land areas for [illegible] use.

Specifically, they suggested the Crowsnest Pass, Drumheller, Rocky Mountain House, Grande Cache, Canmore and the Peace River region as areas for potential travel development.

Cabinet ministers attending the presentation included the Hon. Bob Dowling, Dave Russell, Stuart McCrae, Gerry Amerongen, Dallas Schmidt and Hugh Ellmoil.

Moisture is needed to keep crops going

Rain is starting to become a need for the 1978 crops, according to reports released by the Alberta Wheat Pool

Most areas report that crops are still in good condition but, that moisture is needed. In some instances, crop conditions have already started to deteriorate because of the dry conditions.

There were reports of hailstorms in some areas during the latter part of the week with damages ranging from slight to severe.

In the Camrose area, crops are reported to be in good condition, although rain is becoming a need. Crops are from six to 36 inches high. Sixty percent of the rapeseed is in bloom while one half of the wheat has reached the shot blade stage with barley is one-quarter into the shot blade stage.

There has been some damage to crops in the Holden area following a fairly severe hailstorm. Rye is considered to be the only crop in normal condition with all of the others a few percentage points below normal.

Rye is 28 inches tall with the other crops ranging from four to ten inches in heighth. Ten percent of the rapeseed has bloom while five percent of the wheat has reached the shot blade stage

Ryley farmers report their crops to be in excellent condition with rapeseed already three-quarters in bloom while sixty percent of the wheat is in the shot blade stage.

Crops in the Ryley area range from ten to eighteen inches in heighth

In the Round Hill region, crops deteriorated because of the heat and lack of moisture. Rain is becoming an urgent need, with conditions ranging from 85-95 percent normal

Forty percent of the wheat and ten percent of the barley has reached the shot blade stage while one-quarter of the rape crop is in bloom. Crops are from four to ten inches tall

Rain is also becoming an urgent need in the Tofield area where crops are still considered to be normal for this time of year, but are on the verge of going down hill if rain doesn't fall soon.

Crops range from seven to nine inches high with only fourteen percent of the wheat and six percent of the barley in the shot blade stage. Twelve percent of the rapeseed crop is in bloom.

In the Hay Lakes region, crops are from five to eight inches tall and are reported to be in normal condition, although there is no bloom to the rape crop as yet and wheat and barley are not in the shot blade stage.

Reports were not received, by presstime, from Daysland and Rosalind. Last week's report from Daysland indicated that crops in that region were better than what is considered normal. No report has been received from Rosalind for two weeks. Farmers in that region were behind other areas in getting their seeding operations completed, because of heavy spring rainfall.

PINK EYE IN CATTLE

Pink eye, the common name for an infectious eye disease in cattle of all ages, can occur at any time of the year, but is most prevalent in [illegible] when flies and dust aid in its [illegible]

Dr Frank Baker, Alberta Agriculture's beef cattle extension veterinarian, says the discomfort and debilitating effect of pink eye undoubtedly results in considerable loss of milk and meat production in an infected herd.

Occuring in most countries of the world, this disease is caused by a bacterium (Moraxella bovis). Dr. Baker says it is very important to isolate affected animals in the early stages of an outbreak because of the contagious nature of the disease. Early signs include watering of the infected eyes and inflamed eyelids and "whites" of the eyes, hence the term pink eye. Pink eye can occur in one or both eyes. As the disease progresses, a cloudiness appears on the eyeball. This cloudiness can vary in color from white to yellow and may develop into an ulcer. In severe cases, the eyeball becomes cone-shaped and may rupture, causing blindness.

According to Dr. Baker, when treated early, pink eye usually responds well to antibiotic preparations. He says that ointments and lotions are preferable to powders because the latter often causes irritation. The medication should be applied at least once a day and preferably two or three times a day. Treatment is longer and more difficult when the eyeball has become cloudy or ulcerated. In these cases, veterinarians frequently inject an antibiotic and cortisone under the eylids.

"The importance of shielding the eye from sunlight," says Dr Baker, "is part of the treatment that should not be overlooked." It can be done by confining the animal, or animals, indoors or by putting a patch over the affected eye. These are commercial patches, similar to those worn by human beings, on the market, but many cattlemen use a piece of cardboard. It should be large enough to completely cover the eye and be attached to the upper eyebrow with "bull cement" (the term used by cowboys for the glue that is used to put the tags on the backs of cattle at auction markets). Although an animal often rubs the patch off in a few days, it usually stays on long enough to help the eye to heal.

Among the factors that make cattle susceptible to pink eye are deficiency of vitamin A, dust, flies, strong sunlight, wind, tall grass and anything else that tends to irritate or injure the eye. Dr. Baker recommends doing everything possible to minimize these conditions. The fact that infected animals can remain carriers for more than a year makes the elimination of pink eye difficult, if not impossible.

THE SEAFOOD BARBEQUE

Getting tired of barbequing hamburgers, hot dogs, and steaks? Try something different, like a seafood barbeque - it can't be beat for [illegible]

Cooking Fish

Remember that fish requires very little cooking, so that all types of frozen fish and seafood should be thawed to refridgerator temperature before barbecuing.

This way the fish will cook evenly and remain tender.

Fish flesh has a tendency to break easily when cooking and becomes difficut to pick up. This problem can be avoided by using a hinged wire basket, or by making a chicken wire envelope and placing the fish [illegible]

Be sure to oil the grill and fish thoroughly. Then place fish directly over hot coals, as this gives the fish a seared appearance and helps prevent sticking while cooking. Baste frequently with vegetable oil or butter.

It is easy to tell if your fish is ready by using a fork to part the flesh. If it's opaque and milky all the way through, your fish is done. If the flesh flakes too easily, it is overdone and dry.

Sauces

Very often, commercial barbecue sauce is too strong and destroys the delicate flavor of seafood. Try basting with plain butter, or garlic butter. Or even lemon juice in butter with your favorite seasonings.

Barbecue Ideas

There are numerous ways to barbecue fish. Try wrapping bacon strips around fish sticks and fasten with a toothpick. Cook until bacon is done.

— Brush fillets with Italian or French dressing and place over grill. Baste frequently.

— Top fish cakes or patties with cheese, pineapple and a dash of ground ginger. Or, place a tomato slice on top of grated cheese and add a spoonful of tartar sauce.

— Make fish kabobs by alternating cubes of fish (and lobster and shrimp) with mushrooms, cherry tomatoes, pepper squares, pineapple, olives and bacon rolls. By first blanching the vegetables for 1 or 2 minutes, they will not split off the skewer while cooking.

(Rupert Brand Leaflet)

More information on barbecuing a variety of foods is available from this office.

Waiting

It's a helpless feeling if you're a baserunner and you come home to find the catcher waiting with the ball while the umpire is poised to call you "out". This is a scene from the Camrose-Bardo game during Saturday's Sports Day in Tofield.

Around the town

Tofield and District Cancer Drive has been completed with a record total of $2536.15 received as a result of the diligent efforts of the canvassers and the generous donations of the local citizens.

Tofield Recreation office will be open Monday thru Friday from 4 to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 [illegible]

Tofield Museum welcomed some 200 guests on July 1st, of whom about 100 were old-timers. Among the crowd were Mr. and Mrs. O. Pruden and family of Edmonton who were very interested in the Tales of Tofield book. Mr Pruden was born in Selkirk, Manitoba, a descendant of the Selkirk Settlers and believes that all the Prudens mentioned in the book must be related to him.

Bardo Recreation center was the scene of a great deal of activity on Saturday and Sunday of last week when the Wall family held a reunion with approximately 80 people attending from as far away as Sask., Grande Prairie, Calgary, and Edmonton. Sunday morning, all gathered to begin the day with church service while the afternoon was spent in games, eating and a great deal of visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Friesen spent last weekend in Rosthern where they attended the graduation exercises for their daughter, Donna, who will remain there for the summer, working in their recreational program.

While a great many Tofielders enjoyed Sports Day activities here on Saturday a large number spent the weekend at various lakes, soaking up the sun which seems to have shone generously on all Albertans.

Ryley development receives approval

Approval for development of a portion of the Village of Ryley has been received by Village Council.

At a regular meeting, councillors read a letter from the Current Planning Section of the Planning Branch of the Provincial Government.

In the letter, the Section gave its approval for the outline plan for the northeast portion of the village.

A letter from Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation gave that body's notice that debenture by-law 5-1978 had been received and would be reviewed in the near future.

Councillor Kope advised council that the Ryley Recreation Board was in the process of finalizing its 1978 budget.

Council was advised by letter, that Radio CFCW would be saluting Ryley and District on Friday, July 28th.

Council accepted an application submitted by Sheldon Reid, for employment under the STEP program. Later in the meeting, it was agreed that one of his first duties should be to paint the village's fire hydrants.

Accounts submitted for payment were approved and a number of other routine business matters were handled.

Minutes of a regular meeting held on June 12th, and a special meeting on June 21st, were approved.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a regular meeting of village council, held on June 26th.

Community associations attend recreation meet

Three community associations were represented at a recent meeting of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board.

Brian Aubrey and Dave Watt, representing the Lindbrook Community Association, told Board members that their future planning would cost approximately $10,000 as they were hoping to conduct major renovations to their hall.

Mrs. George Lee attended on behalf of the Spilstead Community Association and indicated that money could be used for ball parks, playgrounds, renovations and a possible addition to their Hall. However, because of the amount of red tape involved, Mrs. Lee said that the association had not decided whether or not they would apply a major recreation-cultural grant.

A list of items needed was submitted by the Shaw Community Association.

A letter received from Alberta Recreation, Parks and Wildlife indicated that a major culture-recreation facility development program grant, in the amount of $14,413.92 had been approved.

Board members were informed, by letter, that the proposed revised regional recreation agreement would not be signed by the Town of Tofield.

New restrictions were placed on the recreation bus when board members agreed that the bus could not travel more than fifty miles outside the boundaries of the County of Beaver, and that there would not be any overnight stops.

It was agreed that Recreation Administrator, George Baker, should compile a summary of reports received from rural-urban areas on the Five-Year Master Plan with the review to be presented to the Board at a later date.

Reports submitted by Mr. Baker and Colleen Walker were approved.

It was agreed that the Board would not hold a meeting during the month of July with the next meeting to be held on the last Wednesday of August.

Accounts submitted for payment were approved.

The minutes of the regular Board meeting held on May 31st were approved.

Attending the meeting were Keith Walls, Richard Kope, Hank Field, Christine Mackay, Marvin Tomashavsky, Andy Heiberg, Ed Regehr, Vern Hafso, Walter Kropkuennicki, Gordon Maxwell, Colleen Walker and George Baker.

Visitors win Tofield loot

Visitors to the annual Sports Day in Tofield, on July 1st, were the big money winners of the day.

The lottery for seventy-eight (78) silver dollars was won by Kelly MacEachern of Duck Lake.

A gate prize of twenty-five dollars was drawn for late in the day with the winner being D. Downing of Ardrossan.

Bruce expects VIP's

by Bea Fredericks

Perhaps one of the most enjoyable pre-Stampede activities is speculating about who will attend this year's event.

It's a forgone conclusion that most of the former residents, whether they are ill, unemployed or working in Inuvik, will make a supreme effort to get back for the day.

What's more, it's a good bet that as long as they can walk or talk they will probably be selling tickets at the gate, parking cars, working in one of the concession stands or, making salad for the barbecue.

People who have lived here seem to have that fierce loyalty which year after year compels them to "come home to help".

A telephone call a few days ago indicated that a bus load of V.I.P.'s from the Commonwealth Games will be brought down for the Stampede.

Horse lovers will also be thrilled to learn that a group of V.I.P.'s from the Salisbury Gymkhana Club will be here to put on a show at the grounds at 4.30 p.m. on Saturday. For a buck you'll be able to see a display of fine horsemanship.

The midway will be set up on Saturday as well for the benefit of the young and the not-so-young and visitors will be able to witness a fireworks display at 10.30 p.m. However, there will be no need to go home for the dance at the Recreation Centre will be in full swing and you can do a western waltz or whatever to the toe-tapping music of the Travellers.

The 1978 Stampede Queen will be crowned at midnight and when the lucky draw is made, there will be three people a few shekels richer.

I can't remember whether it is good news or bad news that travels fast, but regardless, news of the Stampede seems to get around.

A few years ago we were honored to have three young lads from Switzerland enjoy the festivities, and another year a bus load of young English servicemen from Camp Wainwright delighted the girls in the concession booth by asking for a "lolly, luv".

This year a group of sixty exchange students from [illegible] hosts from Rimbey will be attending.

One thing is sure-at Bruce on July 30, you will all be V.I.P.'s for it's YOU who make our day a success!

Powerline League is confusing

The Powerline Baseball League scene is one of confusion.

Rain has hampered the schedule since early in the season and apparently forced postponement of an important game on Tuesday evening.

Holden and Bardo were to have played on Tuesday but, since CFCW didn't receive a result, the game must have been rained out. Yesterday, Tofield was to have played in Camrose.

According to one unofficial source, those were the only two games remaining in the regular schedule.

However, results of other games were never reported. Missing results include: Round Hill at Tofield, Holden at Ryley, and Bardo at Tofield.

If the Tuesday and Wednesday games had been played, the semi-finals were to have started this evening (Thursday). If not, the opening games are supposed to be played on Tuesday.

The games not played are important in determining the final standings in the league since only two points separate the top four teams, using the results of games that were reported.

Final standings are very important since the top two teams have the advantage of home games in the semi-finals.

The semi-finals are best of three affairs with the first and third place teams meeting each other while the second and fourth place teams tangle.

Standings:

	W	L	T	Pts
Ryley	5	1	3	13
Holden	6	2	0	12
Bardo	5	1	2	12
Camrose	4	2	3	11

In the 'A' finals, Kinsella edged Bruce by a score of 7-6 to win top prize money in the day-long tournament which was sponsored by the Holden Revy's.

It was an all-Mundare final in the 'B' section, with the Playboys getting by the Old [illegible].

Holden Revy's are buying new uniforms and received contributions from B. Starky, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Chamberlain, and the Malik's.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (CP) — The favorite summer guessing game in the capital is whether or not Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau can afford to postpone a federal election beyond the Oct. 16 date already announced for eight federal by-elections.

As of this writing there were 15 vacant seats in the House of Commons, with resignations of two more members - Justice Minister Ron Basford and Supply and Services Minister Jean Pierre Goyer - expected when the cabinet is shuffled. That would mean 17 empty Commons seats - more than a million Canadians unrepresented in Parliament.

Mr Trudeau could ill afford to allow eight by-elections to proceed as scheduled on Oct. 16 without calling by-elections for the other vacant seats. As well, the eight contests already scheduled would heavily favor the Conservatives, and it would look terrible for the government to lose all but one or two of the by-election seats. Expanding the number of by-elections would give the Liberals a better chance to make a respectable showing in what would be a mini federal election - the largest number of by-elections ever held at one time.

But consider the public attitude towards the fanfare of 15 or more by-elections, more months before the constitution would force Mr. Trudeau into a full-scale election. There would be justified screams of outrage about wasted public money, spent on by-elections held on the eve of the full election. There is also the danger of a dubious government performance in those by-elections being carried over to the larger contest.

Legally the Prime Minister can wait until July 31, 1970, before calling a federal election, because that is exactly five years after the election writs were returned following the July 8, 1974, election. To do so would be political suicide for Mr. Trudeau.

He has already put himself into a tight political box by postponing the election he had scheduled for early the summer, and now the squeeze grows tighter with every passing day. His government hasn't made a respectable comeback in the public opinion polls, quite the reverse, and Tory Leader Joe Clark hasn't made the goofs which Liberals were hoping he would make.

To avoid the by-election squeeze, Mr. Trudeau must decide on an election date in early fall, and name the date no later than the end of September. Legally, a federal general election can be called any time before these by-elections are scheduled to be held, and still pre-empt the by-elections themselves. In all decency, Mr. Trudeau would have to wait no later than Sept. 30 to make the general election call and odds indicate that is his next decision deadline.

Industry of agriculture

Bill Story

I was ten. I had a brother 14, and sisters 12 and five when our father died. Although I was an authority on everything starting with, "Dad says - - and dad said - - ", I didn't know about death and I didn't understand how much we depended on Dad.

Auction sales were foreign to me and I didn't know why Dad's favorite driving mare, wearing her harness and hitched to the "Sunday buggy" was driven out of the yard by a man unknown to me. I didn't know why all the cows were sold, - - all except Big Spotty.

The easy-to-milk cow and a few of hens were all that was taken to town when we moved off the farm to live in a dilapidated house in the nearby town. The farm just disappeared, and when I hung my overalls on a nail in the clothes closet, I wasn't reminded by our mother, "hang them on the little nail. The big nail is for your father's machines".

We had been "building an empire", our father had said, but it crumbled because, although there were plows and harrows and a seeder and many cows and pigs and horses, there were also mortgages and notes I knew all about the big team, Betty and Maud; about multi-colored Molly the cow, and I knew about Ramsey the bull and I knew about money for cow's eggs and gopher tails, but I had never heard the words "debts and financial commitments".

It was rough. I walked four miles to the farm quite often and cried on the way back because the pigpen was empty and sparrows dirtied on the floor of the house. When they got in through a broken window. My dog Happy didn't like it in town and the neighbors had to bring him back several times, tied behind the wagon.

It was tough times for my widowed mother with a family of four.

This column, Our Industry Of Agriculture usually deals with the business of farming, commentary and explanations and about research being carried out, and concluding with remarks called A Storyism, many of which come to me as I work around my own farm where I have cows and pigs and a storehouse and a fat panting dog I call Happy.

This week it is different. This is an appeal for money.

Fred Shiplack, a Candiac district farmer, died recently in Regina, Saskatchewan following an altercation relative to the business of farming and the incident has, for the past several weeks, received much coverage in the press.

Back on the farm at Candiac are the widow and seven children. The eldest is a teenager. The Shiplacks are READY and WILLING to carry on farming and although I do not know the family I do know about a widow and the empire that didn't get built because of financial commitments!

My employers, CFQC radio-TV, Saskatoon - - or to Bank of Nova Scotia, 1448 2nd Avenue, Saskatoon Receipts for the charitable donations will be mailed from CFQC, Saskatoon. We have a charming little lady who will mail a receipt the day your cheque arrives.

A STORYISM - The Shiplack and her brood are ready and willing. Please help in making them able.

Farmers are getting younger

Ken Motiuk of Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch says census figures for 1976 show that Canadian farmers are getting younger, and that the same is true for Alberta farmers.

The average age of the Canadian farmer in 1976 was 47.5 years compared with 48.7 years in 1971. Comparable figures for Alberta farmers were 47.1 years in 1976 and 47.9 years in 1971.

Nova Scotia has the oldest farmers in Canada with an average age of almost 59 years. Canada's youngest farmers are in Quebec where the average age is 46.6 years.

Two ways to cut red tape

... says Mazankowski

The federal government has announced a new creation in response to many complaints from small businessmen about unnecessary and needless paperwork imposed on them by government. As yet, it is uncertain as to whether this new agency, entitled the Office for the Reduction of Paperburden, will do any good in getting rid of the red tape and bureaucratic interference imposed by the government on small businesses or whether it will merely be one more level of the bureaucracy.

If any businessmen have complaints about government paperwork they can contact the Paperburden Office at the following address.

Controller of the Paperburden, 15th Floor, 365, Laurier Ave W., Ottawa

There is also a business hotline which can be used to call the Office directly. The number is (613) 995-9197 and collect calls will be accepted from anywhere in Canada.

There is an increasing desire among many Canadians to see a reduction in government intervention and to reduce the tentacles of government. Adding yet another department to the government bureaucracy to handle this problem is one possible solution. Maybe a better one would be to cut back on government spending, reduce the size of the bureaucracy and cut the bureaucratic web which, if allowed to go unchecked, might strangle us all.

Investing in potential

Last week's release of the annual report of the Alberta Opportunity Company makes most interesting reading, and substantiates once again the good sense and judgment of the government which instituted this financial resource just over five years ago.

The whole concept of the AOC was to provide certain levels of venture capital to encourage business growth within the province, especially where the ventures proposed failed to meet normal requirements of the banking system. One of the most obvious areas where this applies is in the smaller centres outside the major cities, where security of invested capital in a major building is sometimes questionable, since there is no ready market.

The figures, though, we find impressive. Nearly 1100 loans have been approved over the five year period, for nearly $104 million dollars. It hasn't all been out for the entire five years, of course. The first year started very small, then the second and third years saw fairly heavy loan programs to meet the pent-up demand. The fourth year tapered off, only to see a healthy expansion again last year.

Interesting trends show up in the statement, too, such as the fact that 1975 was the year of the highest average for loans overall, at nearly $134,000 on average, although 1976 showed the greatest number of loans over half a million dollars. Notwithstanding these figures, however, the great majority of loans are in the bracket under $50,000, meaning many small-time operators form the greatest percentage of customers of the company. In fact, the median loan over all five years ranges in the low $40,000's, and 1976 was the first time it passed the $45,000 figure.

With all of this, Albertans are naturally interested in knowing how the company fared. Did it lose a substantial number of the loans it made, did it cost the taxpayers huge amounts of money, is there any money left to lend?

Well, it did lose some money, but as it points out, ninty-five percent of its customer businesses are still in operation, which means they're still employing Albertans, increasing the industrial base of the province, providing opportunities where they wouldn't have been otherwise.

It also has lost some investments . . . about five percent, overall, has been written off. The Company's statement points out this is about five times as high as the amount required by chartered banks and similar private sector institutions.

On the other hand, the interest earned by the corporation has been sufficient to pay all operating expenses, even including the expense of the write-offs, and still earn a modest profit. The tax funds provided by the citizens of Alberta, (through their government) remain intact, and at the same time, the province has more than a thousand businesses operating which probably wouldn't have been able to get rolling or stay rolling had it not been for AOC in the first place.

Surely that's ample dividend . . . and dividend enough.

Marinating

Marinating is one of the secrets of successful barbecue cooking. It not only adds a distinctive touch of seasoning, but also brings out the natural flavor of meat, fish or fowl. They also supply fat to meats that are lacking in natural oils, and tenderize by softening the tougher fibers.

Marinating means soaking the meat, in a blend of oil, seasoning and an acid such as lemon juice, tomato juice, vinegar or wine. Marinades can be varied by the addition of olive or salad oil, different types of vinegar, or red and white wines. And there are hundreds of different spices and herbs, fresh or dried, to season the marinade to your personal taste.

The marinade can also be used to baste the meat while it is cooking, but give meats on the grill a chance to warm up before basting, so the flavors

2 parts oil, 1 part vinegar, and herbs, seeds or spices to taste

When preserving it is essential to heat food in containers to a sufficiently high heat to stop ripening and destroy bacteria, yeasts and molds. Because of the acidity in fruits and tomatoes, the temperature of a boiling water bath is adequate, but for vegetables and meats which contain little acid, you must use a pressure canner.

A regular pressure canner is preferable, but it is possible to use your conventional pressure cooker if you use small jars and a pressure adaptor for home canning. This regulator registers 5, 10, and 15 pounds of pressure, but 10 pounds pressure is the only level used.

One such adaptor is called a "Pressure Tru-Indicator" and is sold by Tom Mosely Company Ltd., 10068-116 Street, Edmonton. It fits all Presto models made since 1953, and they are willing to fill mail orders.

Very innocent looking jars can contain deadly toxins even with a seemingly good seal. Boil vegetables and meats well before tasting, and have a safe, well done canning season.

With thanks to Helen Franklin, Grande Prairie, for the information.

Confronting your Faith

by Harold Boettger

"Man liveth not by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God" Matthew 4:4 These words are given by Jesus in answer to the tempter's suggestion that He should, if He is the Son of God, command the stones to be turned into bread to satisfy His hunger.

Jesus' answer speaks to the common but false human assumption that if people have food, clothing and shelter, their base needs for life have been met His answer indicates that man is more than a physical entity whose need in totality is physical That there is a part of the human essence which can only be nurtured and satisfied by "the words proceeding from God" our vitality and existence To ignore Him and His revelation is to live in a spiritual vacuum no less fatal than to attempt life without breathing, and much more hazardous to the common welfare of society.

It is well known that the human brain is so composed that if the supply of oxygen is cut off even for a relatively short time, brain damage will result, impair it's proper function and if too long will permanently destroy it's ability to function In like fact, and does Jesus infer that to attempt life by a preoccupation with physical self preservation without hearing and heed what God has to say about life, is to miss the spiritual and moral base, without which we senselessly sow the seeds of self-destruction"

Human society, often including professed Christians have claimed it their right to use any means including violence and bloodshed for self defence and sometimes self interests. Is not this in complete contradiction of what God has said in His Word and in the example of Jesus Christ" Jesus said, "for whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it" Matthew 16:25 He also said," . . . for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword" Matthew 26:52b Are not His words being proven again and again on every page of the history of North America by widespread immorality and the accompanying violence and homicide, and as a recent T.V. reporter on homicide in New York Detroit and Montreal indicated by suggesting that one of the surest ways of being gunned down is to arm yourself with a gun as a measure of self defence"

How long will we continue to believe we can make it on our own - as long as we have "bread"? Hope for us, America and the rest of the world, rests alone in a willingness to change our attitude toward God, turning from our selfcentred independence to hear and act upon what He said and continues to say to us through His Word as revealed in Jesus Christ, His Son. Will we hear and obey before it is too late?

Tofield Lodge News

by Mrs Agnes Anderson

There have been quite a few visitors the past few weeks. Visiting Mrs Thomson were Mr and Mrs Fred Johnson from Surrey, B C, and visiting Mrs Erickson were Art Hohn and his mother from Round Hill. Also, on Sunday, Mrs Anderson enjoyed a visit with her son Mac and wife Marg from Mundare.

Rose and Margaret drove to Edmonton, and Pebe Baergen enjoyed a trip to Buffalo Lake. Mrs Lerbecmo visited with friends in Edmonton for a few days.

Mr and Mrs Elmer Smith of Edmonton visited the Lorenzes.

Back from the hospital are Mrs Kortzman, Mrs Kendall, Mrs Dolany. Mrs. Kendall has now gone to visit relatives in the city.

Thursday evening we enjoyed a visit from members of Salem Mennonite Church near Dodds, when the group entertained us with singing by young members, also a very interesting service.

Friday morning we had a surprise visit from a huge gathering of youngsters from Conference Church accompanied by their leaders, who presented a most delightful program of singing and musical selections. Thank you everyone, these visits are all very much enjoyed by both guests and staff.

If I have ommitted any important news, please forgive me as I am a newcomer here. Thank you.

Progressive Farming

TAX CONSIDERATIONS WHEN RELOCATING A FARM BUSINESS

Farmers contemplating a farm transfer in which a large capital gain is involved are advised to seek advice before embarking on the transaction.

Information received to date indicates that there is still no definite ruling on the Replacement Property Provision which affects farm transfers. It was initiated in last year's federal budget to allow the "rollover" of business assets when these assets are replaced by similar assets within a specific time. The basic rules are as follows.

— The assets must be property that was a business property immediately before disposition.

— The replacement asset must be purchased before the end of the first taxation year following the disposition of the original asset.

— A letter of election (notification of intent) must be filed.

— The replacement asset must be acquired for the same use as the former asset, and — The replacement asset must be used in the same business as the former asset.

Farm land that is being share-cropped would not qualify under these rules, nor would rented property unless the owner was in the rental business.

"Recent tremors from Ottawa have stimulated concern regarding the relocation of farm businesses," says George Geldart, taxation specialist with Alberta Agriculture. He points out that the concern has arisen from statements made to the effect that the replacement farm must be used for exactly the same purpose as the original farm.

The last of the five rules stated above is the basis for the concern. "Because farming can be broken down into various specific enterprises, there may be problems in deferring capital gains and tax if a change in the type of farm operation occurs from the original farm to the replacement farm," Mr. Geldart says. For example, the selling out of a dairy farm and the buying of a replacement farm that is entirely a grain operation is likely to present problems. On the other hand, the selling of a piece of land used for mixed agricultural purposes (e.g. income is received from grain, bags and feeders) and the buying of a replacement farm along similar lines would probably be accepted.

In addition, if a replacement farm is purchased for less than what the original farm was sold for, there could be some tax liability on the capital gain. The amount of this liability would depend upon the difference between the sale price of the original farm and the purchase price of the replacement farm.

It is because of the present complications in the Replacement Property Provision that we recommend that farmers planning to exchange one farm for another first consult their accountant or regional farm economist.

Murray Lyons spoke on behalf of the Agricultural Society; he stated that Howard had held many different positions on the board and would be greatly missed

Elston Solberg spoke on behalf of the Ryley Rebels, he presented them with a baseball autographed by all the players.

Ben Wickstrom spoke on behalf of the Bethel Lutheran Ladies, she presented Gunhild with a gift for her faithful service to the church

Bruce district news

By Bea Fredericks

Evie and Harold Hassett have been enjoying a visit from Harold's uncle and aunt. Mr and Mrs Sam Hassett who came from England in late June

It's holiday time for many local residents and British Columbia seems to be the popular vacation choice Ellen and Ernie Davis recently returned from the rodeo at Williams Lake where they met Geniene and David Laing Hazel, Bob and Jackie Bruce along with daughter and son in-law, Connie and Dwayne Marcinkoski and grandson, Bruce, also spent some time in our neighboring province B.B. Slarty is in Cawston, the Pratt family spent a few days at Fairmont Hot Springs and Vicky and Hank Field are testing their fishing skill in B.C lakes All report super vacation weather Jean and John Stefanishen were heeding Premier Lougheed's advice and have been stamping around Alberta with Lorraine and Martin Stefaniyn However, Valere and Peter Stefaniuyn and daughter, Veronica, opted to take a special trip this year and are at present visiting relatives in Poland

The ladies who work with the catering groups are asked to attend a special meeting on Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the Community Centre (School) to discuss prices and other matters

The Agricultural Society meeting held on July 6 turned out to be rather disappointing Although it was advertised as an open meeting, only three people other than Board members attended Three Board members were also absent Present from the Board were president S McMullen, secretary-treasurer B Fredericks, E Stefanik, P Malowany, I Berkholtz, H Field, J Kalita and A Mackenzie

Moisture still needed for crops' development

Rain is still a need for crops in most areas even though some regions experienced heavy rainfall in short periods of time last week

Crops grown on stubble that have not received moisture are becoming especially vulnerable during the warm weather, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool

Rainfall in the Camrose area was scattered with some regions not getting any while ten percent of the rape crop is headed out.

Rain last week helped crops in the Round Hill region, although all are reported to be between ninety to ninety-five percent normal, ranging from eight to fifteen inches tall

All crops are still being described as normal, and range from ten to forty-five inches tall Twenty percent of the barley is headed while five percent of the wheat has reached the headed stage

Daysland area crops are still being reported to be in better than normal condition, ranging from fifteen to forty inches in heighth

One-half of the rape crop has formed pods while cereal crops are just reaching the flowering stage

Rye is the only crop around Holden reported to be perfectly normal with all other crops reported to be just below normal development Heighth of crops range from eight to thirty inches

Thirty percent of the rapeseed is forming pods while wheat has started the flowering stage

Crops in the Ryley area are reported to be about five percent below normal conditions Crops are ranging from 18 to 36 inches tall

Forty percent of the wheat and twenty percent of barley has reached the headed stage

Sixty-five percent of rapeseed is in bloom while sixty percent of wheat and one-quarter of the barley crop has reached the shot blade stage

All crops, except rapeseed, are reported normal in the Hay Lakes area with rapeseed considered to be ninety percent normal Crops are from ten to twelve inches in height

Eighty percent of wheat has reached the shot blade stage while sixty percent of the barley has reached similar stage of development. One-half of the rapeseed crop is in bloom

Crops on stubble in the Tofield area are beginning to suffer from a lack of moisture, despite the fact that the region received up to three inches of rain in a short period of time in mid-June last week

All crops are still reported as normal conditions for this time of year, and go from nine to twelve inches in heighth

Nearly one-half of the wheat and rapeseed is headed out while barley is close to forty percent in that stage of development

Although hail has fallen in most areas at one time or another during the past few weeks, most areas report little serious loss

About two percent of the crop in the Ryley area has been lost, with the estimate being one percent around Daysland and Holden Some damage was reported north of New Sarepta, and large areas around Rosalind were reported to have been severely harmed

Eslok—the right choice for the right reasons

Eslok polypropylene baler twines can be used in any properly adjusted baler with no major modifications and no changes in billhooks.

Eslok is stronger than sisal, so you can make stronger bales that will withstand handling and drop shock. And because Eslok won't rot, mildew or attract rodents, Eslok-tied bales stay together in storage. Eslok is also biologically harmless to animals.

Eslok is uniform in size, with no variations in thickness to cause knotting problems. You get a more secure knot and longer continuous runs.

Eslok is smooth, dry, non-oily and runs smoothly and easily through any properly adjusted baler.

Eslok is made in Canada and is always readily available. It's sold in shrink-wrapped bales with guaranteed footage.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?
Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money made in Canada. You help to strengthen Canada's economy.
When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?
Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is
(A) made or grown in Canada and
(B) at least equal in value and quality.
That's not just good advice ... it's good sense.

MADE IN CANADA
FABRIQUÉ AU CANADA

What is made in Canada?
Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.
As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.
Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?
Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.
If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.
Who should Shop Canadian?
You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?
Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Product of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Québec," or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines," or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."
The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.
And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada

Thieves could cause mishaps

Non-thinking thieves could be the cause of serious accidents along Highway 14, according to John Szata, construction chief with Alberta Transportation.

Someone stole a yellow flashing light from a construction site on Highway 14 and the lack of a warning light could easily have been the cause of a motorist crashing into the work area and being seriously hurt, possibly killed.

A six-year old child from Ryley is in an Edmonton hospital for treatment after being injured in a single vehicle accident.

Two youths were turned over to their parents after they had been caught breaking into the UFA elevator in Ryley. Charges will not be laid.

A break and enter at the Diamond Cafe in Tofield over the weekend is being investigated by the RCMP.

William Salisbury of the Hastings Lake area reported the loss of a barn-shaped mail box. RCMP are investigating.

Powerline playoffs underway

The home teams won the opening games in the semi-finals of the Powerline Baseball League.

Games were played in Bardo and Ryley on Tuesday evening with the home teams taking the lead in the best of three semi-final affairs.

Second games in both series will be played this evening (Thursday) in Holden and Camrose. If third games are necessary, they will be played on Tuesday in Bardo and/or Ryley.

In Ryley, the Rebels had little trouble disposing of the Camrose Roadrunners by a 12-7 score. No details were available.

Bardo held off a late surge by Holden to win the opening game of that series by a narrow 8-7 margin.

Going into the final inning, Bardo had an 8-5 lead. Holden scored two runs and had runners on first and second with none out when Andy Heiberg made a pitching change.

The reliefer tossed one pitch. It was a line drive to the shortstop who made the catch, tossed the ball to second from where it was relayed to first base for a triple play, to end the ball game.

Bardo had earlier finished the regular schedule in first place with 16 points while Ryley was second with 15 points.

Camrose followed in third place with 12 points while Holden grabbed the fourth and final playoff berth with 12 points.

Round Hill only won one game during the schedule. However, that was enough to finish ahead of Tofield who have a bye.

by Christine Mackay

The Calvin Story family of Holden have been named winners of the Alberta Farm Family award.

Parade adds colour to Bruce Stampede

by Ben Fredericks

Originally, the Bruce Stampede did not have a parade.

This attraction was introduced approximately six-teen years ago. A parade is definitely a drawing card for it gets people here early and adds excitement and color to the day.

However, after all these years, one's creativity is all and a late July holiday is tempting. How I envy Holden, Ryley and Tofield who plan their sports days early and leave July for relaxation!

A few years ago, I concluded that float-making is an activity designed to keep women and kids busy so they won't bug the men who by this time are spending both Mondays and Thursdays at the grounds in an effort to complete all their planned projects.

The kids, however, are useless, for their heads are dancing with visions of sticky cotton candy and thrilling rides. (This year Crown Amusements has promised rides, and what's more, they will be set up by 4:30 p.m. on Saturday!).

The women actually haven't that much time either for most of their aunts, uncles, cousins, former neighbors and children's friends plan to visit that weekend.

Naturally the good country air will make them ravenous so for the next few days Bruce kitchens will be filled with the aroma of freshly baked buns and other goodies. Unfortunately the temperature has a habit of reaching 30 degrees during pre-Stampede days - an extra handicap for the good ladies who are trying to uphold the tradition of friendly Bruce hospitality.

The amazing fact is that by hook or by crook floats DO get made!

The creations completed by the various organizations are the most interesting. Each evening, someone different is conned into working, with the result that on parade day the people who did the preliminary work may not recognize the masterpiece they helped to create from someone's old rug, numerous cardboard boxes, kleenex flowers and leftover paint.

It is true that it is sometimes necessary to cross your fingers and whisper a little prayer to keep the float in one piece until it gets around the parade route (women and kids haven't the mannerisms knack for guarding same).

I'm not sure what surprises the 1978 parade has in store.

Rumor has it that the president may be riding a mule-I hope that hasn't some special significance.

Come what may, the hours of hard work will all seem worthwhile when we see the large crowd assembled to enjoy it. See you on the 26th at 11 a.m.

CORRECTION: Last week I managed to give some incorrect information.

The Salisbury Gymkhana Club will be performing at 6 p.m. on July 29 and not at 4:30 as I stated. The rides will be set up by 4:30.

The Bay Route

It's not many weeks ago that two Members of Parliament from this region, Arnold Malone for Battle River and Don Mazankowski for Vegreville, each wrote about the Hudson's Bay Route for shipping prairie grains to market. Each wrote from a different starting point, and on a different timing, but both had been studying the problems of prairie farmers, the markets being lost, and the extra costs incurred in trying to cope with the present methods of transporting, storing, grading and selling grain to buyers throughout the world.

Each recognized, as many experts before them have done, the tremendous opportunities presented by the Hudson's Bay Route, and the tremendous savings that would accrue to farmers through greater use of this port. The rail line, they point out, is hundreds of miles shorter than the comparable distance to the Lakehead, and the port is many hundreds of miles closer to many of our customers.

All of these facts, and others, have been known for years. And a continuing campaign has been mounted for many years by "The Bay Route Association" to expand the number of shippers using the line.

All this being so, the question must arise, why isn't it used more? Who is responsible for directing the shipping of grain in the first place?

We don't think the individual farmer has much voice, once he has delivered his grain to the elevator.

Is it then, the Pools, or other grain companies who specify which way the grain should head? Is it the Wheat Board? Is it the customer? Or could it be the railways?

We haven't the faintest idea who calls the shots, but we're convinced many ocean freighters would prefer to load in Hudson's Bay, where the workers know they have only a short season in which to collect wages, and can't afford time lost through the sort of strike which frequently ties up coastal vessels.

We're sure many farmers would prefer to see their shipping charges cut, their demurrage reduced, and their profits enhanced through additional sales.

If it is the grain companies, or the Wheat Board, the farmers should be able to exercise some muscle, if it is the railways which choose the route, other avenues may be found.

There is at present a great promotion for construction of additional shipping facilities at Prince Rupert, and this may be an excellent idea in any case. But we submit that if one tenth the amount of money required to establish Prince Rupert were poured into promoting the Bay, it could advance the farmers' cause a good deal more quickly, and a good deal more cheaply.

But where does the pressure have to come from? Shouldn't the Wheat Pools be doing more in this regard to help their members? After all, they do have a good deal of muscle, if only because of sheer numbers.

Grain companies study Prince Rupert terminal

J.W. Madill, general manager of Alberta Wheat Pool, announced on June 26 a consortium of Western Canadian grain companies will study the feasibility of a modern grain terminal at Prince Rupert. A committee of senior personnel will begin a detailed assessment of all practical aspects affecting such a project. Included in the study will be:

— projection of grain volumes which could go through such a terminal
— additional facilities which should be planned
— choice of size
— choice of site
— economic feasibility considering the above choices
— potential involvement of the present government elevator at Prince Rupert

The relative merits of various construction techniques, site purchase versus lease, environmental constraints and relations with government and other agencies are all expected to be taken into consideration

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (SF) — The tactic chosen by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his Liberals to win the hearts of the public while Parliament is in recess involves questioning the loyalty of every other politician in the land. Only those who bow to the Liberal line in everything are truly good Canadians; all others aide with the Parti Quebecois and foster the breakup of the

What arrogant, deceitful garbage

The tactic was tested by a few of the cabinet lights in spring and early summer, and in a measure, the Liberals feel success with the line was partly responsible for turning around the Gallup Poll. We saw the tactic firming up during Parliament's debate on Finance Minister Jean Chretien's sales tax fight with Quebec Prime Minister Trudeau himself going so far as to lambast Ontario Premier William Davis because the Ontario law to make the province officially bilingual wasn't allowed to pass the Ontario

In Parliament, Transport Minister Otto Lang accused the Tories of swelling the anti-French line in English-speaking Canada, and both federal major opposition parties have been accused of siding with the Parti

Joe Clark is charged with seeking a cozy deal with Rene Levesque whereby Levesque had a meeting with the man Ed Broadbent is accused of being soft on separatists

Are Canadians really stupid enough to believe that the divine right of the Liberal Party to rule the country is a fact? Can we really be convinced that any opposition to the bumbling policies of the Liberal government should be equated with disloyalty?

Think of Robert Stanfield, whom he was leader of the Conservative Party. Think of the crusade for English-French accommodation that he led. Think of the efforts Joe Clark has made to further understanding. Consider, too, the actions of the New Democrats who have tried to fairness from Ottawa in all provinces and language

Equate those things with the habitual use of French-English conflict for political purposes by the Liberals. The deliberate tactics of confrontation used so frequently by the Prime Minister and ask yourself who deserves to be accused of fostering disunity

New Atlantic power sources

Heavy dependence on oil-fired generators is creating an electricity crisis in the Atlantic provinces, writes Eric Hamlin from Halifax The search for alternate sources of power generation including river and tidal hydro, nuclear, solar, wind, and recycling of waste and forest products is being accelerated. Each was discussed at an energy symposium organized by the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council (APEC) in Halifax Power experts from the United States, Britain, and each of the four Atlantic provinces agreed that the long range answer lies in an energy mix, combining nuclear power, hydro, and oil-and gas fired turbines Transmission of power was seen as the key which could unlock the way to a wealth of power for the whole Atlantic region, and, at the same time, the lock on the door against development of potential energy sources Transmission of power on the scale envisaged would require the creation of an Eastern Grid feasible only when more of the huge power potential of the region has been developed. A greater degree of participation and cooperation among the four provinces, Quebec, and Ottawa than has ever before been attempted will be required, observed, perhaps by the astronomical costs involved - $2 billion for a grid, $1 5 billion to develop the lower Churchill, another $2 billion or so to make Fundy tidal power a reality - the premiers of the four Atlantic provinces seem unwilling to take any decisive steps. Meanwhile, Ottawa appears content to stand back, but facing the issue, knowing that it will be heavily involved financially.

RHUBARB

Running out of ways to use up all that rhubarb? I've been experimenting with different recipes and found one that's really tasty. Thought I'd share it with you.

RHUBARB MUFFINS

2 cups finely diced rhubarb
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2¼ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 beaten eggs
¾ cup buttermilk
3 tablespoons melted margarine

Combine rhubarb, ¼ cup of the sugar and orange peel, let stand 15 min. Stir together flour, ½ cup sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Combine eggs, buttermilk and margarine add to dry ingredients, stirring just until moistened. Fold in rhubarb mixture. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake at 375 degree F for 20 minutes. Dust warm muffins with powdered sugar. (16-24 muffins)

WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR

I've noticed that at our Farmer's Market, we are fortunate to have whole wheat flour being sold. If you enjoy the taste and texture of whole wheat baked goods, you might try substituting whole wheat flour in your favorite recipes. If a recipe calls for white flour, use exactly the same amount of whole wheat flour. Remember though, it is heavier and coarser than white flour, and is best suited for breads, pancakes and quick breads. You will discover that the bread does not rise quite as high because it doesn't develop as strong gluten as white flour.

FAIRY RING OF GRASS

Fairy Ring is the most common disease of grass that occurs during the growing season and is very persistent to all areas of the county this year. The disease is readily recognized by the rings it forms in the turf. All cultivated and many wild grasses are susceptible to it. The grass in the rings may be a dark green color or may be dead, or any combination of the two with or without the presence of mushrooms. Infected rings have been known to cover hundreds of acres in size although most of the Fairy Ring we see infects a circle of one to six feet in radius.

Fairy Ring is caused by a mushroom producing fungus. The disease kills the grass through the process of dehydration. Examination of the area under the ring shows a white powdery area, very dry to touch.

Fairy Ring can be controlled by thoroughly perforating the affected area to a depth of one foot with a potato fork or similar instrument and thoroughly soaking it for about a month and a half. Adequate nitrogen fertilization will help to inhibit the growth of the fungus and speed recovery of the grass. The killed out areas should be reseeded or returfed. This is the only sure - fire control method.

Some Success in controlling Fairy Ring has also been reported to us through the use of:-

1 Picking the mushrooms to prevent further spread of the disease by the mushroom spores.

2 Digging up the entire area under the ring and replacing the infected soil with fresh soil and then reseeding.

3 Any mercurial fungicide applied at heavy rates in the early stages.

4 Heavy rates of potassium permanganate followed by lots of watering.

5 Used dishwater with detergent in it will keep the area from drying out and is reported to have cleaned up Fairy Ring in a year.

6 Captan is a very persistant soil fungicide, and can help keep the fungus under control.

Any of you that might have had success controlling Fairy Ring with other methods please let us know and we'll pass it along.

Should you have any questions about Fairy Ring or other farm or yard problems contact us at 663-3555 or write Box 200, Ryley.

THANKS LORD, I NEEDED THAT!

by Charlene Pellerbaum

Who says that Christianity has to be dull to be authentic? Not Charlene Pretzerbaum, that's for sure!

This book is filled with the living and hilarious testimonies of a family that has learned to see that God is in control in every circumstance, even those who seem most "out-of-it!"

This is not just a "housewife" book. It is the day by day experience of a woman-wife-mother who's much like the rest of it and more — because the Spirit of God enlivens and excites what to most people are chores and drudgeries, transforming them into blessings that set her feet to dancing and her soul to singing.

Confronting your Faith

Curtis Johnson
Pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church

"These things have I spoken unto you, that in me you might have peace. In the world you shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." John 16:33

Christ did not fail, neither was He discouraged, and His followers are to manifest a faith of the same enduring nature. They are to live as He lived, and work as He worked, because they depend on Him as the great master worker.

Courage, energy, and perseverance they must possess. Though apparent impossibilities obstruct their way, by His grace they are to go forward instead of deploring difficulties, they are called upon to surmount them. They are to despair of nothing, and to hope for everything. With the golden chain of His matchless love, Christ has bound them to the throne of God. It is His purpose that the highest influence in the universe, emanating from the source of all power, shall be theirs. They are to have power to resist evil, power that neither earth, nor death, nor hell can master, power that will enable them to overcome as Christ overcame.

Inspiration faithfully records the faults of good men, those who were distinguished by the favor of God; indeed, their faults are more fully presented than their virtues. This has been a subject of wonder to many, and has given the infidel occasion to scoff at the Bible. But it is one of the strongest evidences of the truth of scripture, that facts are not glossed over, nor the sins of its chief characters suppressed.

Men whom God favored, and to whom He entrusted great responsibilities, were sometimes overcome by temptation and committed sin, even as we at the present day strive, waver, and frequently fall into error. Their lives, with all their faults and follies, are open before us, for both our encouragement and warning. If they had been represented as without fault, we, with our sinful nature, might despair at our own mistakes and failures. But seeing where others struggled through discouragements like our own, where they fell under temptation as we have done, and yet took heart again and conquered through the grace of Christ, we are encouraged in our striving after righteousness. As they, though sometimes beaten back, recovered their ground, and were blessed of God, so we too may be overcomers in the strength of Jesus Christ.

The life of Christ's disciples is to be like His, a series of uninterrupted victories, not seen to be such here, but recognized as such in the great hereafter.

"Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus." 2 Tim 2:1

Ryley

by Joyce Gladue

Stan and Betty Anderson and their son, Darcy, from Calgary were visiting Mr and Mrs. Elmer Anderson over the week-end.

Leonard Johnston, of Surry, B.C., was in Ryley visiting his friends for the week.

Odd Orbeck and family went to Fort Saskatchewan for the weekend, to do some visiting.

Many churches have had D.U.B.S. these past two weeks of summer. The Bethel Lutheran Church had a very good enrollment of 23 to 25 youngsters join their Bible School for the week. Mothers helped by bringing treats for the children. Last Sunday the Bible School children sang two special songs after they completed their Bible school for the Bethal Lutheran Church.

Rev. Barr of the Bethal Lutheran Church has gone to Hastings Lake camp for the week.

On Saturday, the Ryley Teen Club held a disco dance. The dance was hosted by United Disco's from Edmonton. It started out slowly but towards the end, about 110 people showed up. It was a good turnout.

Don't forget to phone me and let everyone know who your special summertime visitors are or where you planned to spend your holiday and how it went.

Palmer-Earling

Mrs. Joe Koudeon

B. ORVIL BRAY PASSES

Barnt Orvil Bratrud (Bray) was born Nov. 10th, 1882 at Earling, Lyman County, South Dakota, U.S.A. the seventh son of a family of twelve children. He passed away May 19, at a hospital in Victoria, B.C.

In the spring of 1903, he emigrated to Canada with his pioneer parents, Harold and Kari Bratrud. A homestead was established and the community of Earling was formed, with a post office operating out of the Bratrud farm home from Oct., 1904 until June, 1916.

In June 1907, at the age of 15, he was a member of the second confirmation class of the church.

In 1911, the Camrose Lutheran College opened its doors and Orvil Bratrud enrolled as one of the original class members of this historic educational facility.

Following completion of his education, he assumed charge of the family farm, allowing his mother, Kari, widowed in 1906, to retire to Camrose.

In 1922, a new school teacher arrived in the community. Her name was Anne Watson and although she was a city girl, she was destined to become a farmer's wife for the next 25 years. She and Orvil were married at Wetaskiwin in 1924 and were blessed with two sons, Donald William and Allan Orvil.

Mr. Bray's health failed in the 1940's and he underwent major surgery in 1946. Although he recovered his spirit and will to live, his health never again permitted him to farm actively. In 1950, he moved to Ryley where he lived until Mrs. Bray's retirement from teaching in 1964. In 1967, his continually failing health necessitated a move to Victoria, B.C., where he resided until his passing on May 19, 1970, in his 88th year, after confinement in hospital for the past 14 months.

He leaves his wife, Anne; two sons, Bill and Allan, his brother John; four grandchildren; along with many descendants of the original Bratrud pioneer family.

On Saturday, June 17, many relatives and friends gathered at Zion Lutheran Church to pay last respects to Orvil Bray.

Services were officiated by Rev. Ingebergson, with an eulogy given by Allan Bray, and a musical tribute by Delores Bratrud, Bonnie and Lorraine Heliekson.

NEW SEED GRADE

A possible shortage of pedigreed seed of some varieties has led to the creation of a new seed grade - Canada Certified Substandard.

The new seed will be on the market this spring. Its appearance will enable farmers to avoid the use of non-pedigreed seed, according to Yudi Singh, a seed specialist with Agriculture Canada's plant products division in Ottawa.

Certified Substandard seed must meet the same purity standards as Canada Certified No. 2 grade, but it may have a lower germination rate. The new grade applies to seed sold both in bags and in bulk.

Learning

One of the first things to learn when attempting to swim is how to stay afloat. Tom Pope points out, to a class how to tread water while a group of interested mothers watch in the background.

A NEW FALL FORAGE

Annual ryegrass is an ideal forage for late summer and fall in eastern Canada. It grows aggressively, has high digestibility and stands up under wet grazing conditions

These findings are the result of six years of research by Tapani Kunelius, a forage scientist at Agriculture Canada's Charlottetown, P.E.I., Research Station

Unlike the perennial grasses now used on the island, fall ryegrass flourishes right through October

Dr Kunelius points out that growers must use nitrogen fertilizer to produce a good stand of the crop

All water wells must be registered

People who have a well that was drilled before April 27, 1971 which produces more than 21,000 gallons of water a week for domestic or mixed farming purposes and owners of commercial wells drilled before April 27, 1971, regardless of the volume of water they produce, must register their wells with Alberta Environment's controller of water resources before June 30 if they want to protect their water rights

As a general rule, the water rights of people whose wells produce less than 21,000 gallons of water a week on a year-round basis for domestic or farming purposes are assured of a continual supply of water under Alberta's present laws. However, people whose wells were drilled before April 27, 1971 (when legislation was changed), and which produce more than 21,000 gallons of water a week, could find themselves short of water in the future if they do not register their wells now, even though they may have been using the wells for many years

Categories where action should be taken before the end of June to protect water rights include commercial users of water such as small manufacturers, motel operators who rely on a water well, large farming operations such as a feedlot which use more than 21,000 gallons of water a week, municipalities which use wells to supply their water treatment and distribution systems and individual companies that use a well to supply water for non domestic purposes

An owner of a commercial or large-volume well who registers his well before the end of June will have established his claim to the ground water from the date the well came into production. For example, if the well was drilled in 1926 and is registered now the owner's priority for water will date back to 1926. This means his water rights will have priority over those belonging to owners of wells that were drilled after 1926

Water wells that came into production after April 27, 1971 can be licensed any time under standard licensing procedures, but those that came into production before that date must be registered before they can be licensed

It costs $1 to license a well that produces up to an average of 52,000 gallons of water a week. The cost of a license for a well that produces a larger volume of water increases as the volume increases

The head of the Water Well Registration Program, Vern Carlson, urges people to whom the June 30 deadline applies not to miss it because it seems unimportant

LONG - DISTANCE TROUBLE

Canada's long, cold winters can be a blessing in disguise to the nation's farmers. Many insect pests that damage crops in the southern United States cannot survive Canadian winters

However, one such pest, the sunflower moth, migrates north in the summer and can cause considerable damage during its short stay on the Canadian prairies

Researchers at Agriculture Canada's Saskatoon, Sask., Research Station are working on methods to control the pest. One approach is to breed sunflower varieties that mature early, before the arrival of the moth in late July. Chemical controls are also being studied

Band prepares to play for Queen

Some of the Camrose Composite High School band students have been working hard during the past month preparing for a busy schedule of concerts for Queen Elizabeth's visit at Vegreville on August 2nd.

The students will present three 45 minute concerts that day. The first concert will be during her Majesty's arrival at the giant Ukrainian egg, and as she leaves that area they will play "God Save The Queen." While Her Majesty proceeds to the fairgrounds where the Vegreville Fair will be in progress, the band will go to the train station to set up for a program before the Queen's departure. Later the band will give a third concert at the fairgrounds.

The Vegreville committee planning the welcome for the royal party had decided some months ago that they wanted something along the lines of a school band to play for the occasion, and as Vegreville at present doesn't have a school band program, they looked elsewhere. A personal contact by Ray Friedman, band instructor during the past school term at CCHS, thus invited the Camrose band to perform. The one-day trip is being jointly sponsored by Camrose Public School Board and the Vegreville committee.

Even though they are now out of school for the term, the students have continued their practising, and by the end of this month will have had five rehearsals. The next rehearsal will be held on Tuesday, July 20th, outdoors at the Composite if the weather is nice. The public is welcome to come and hear them. The final rehearsal will be on July 31st, and again everyone is invited to attend.

A lot of music is missing from the school, reports Mr. Friedman - - close to $700 worth. It is not just missing from this past school year, but also from the previous year's band program, and parents are asked to return the music to the school as soon as possible if they happen to see any lying around their homes.

Later in the afternoon, they drove to Viking with Gwen and visited with the girls' aunt, Mrs. Phena Evans at Vialta Lodge. After looking over the old home in Viking that had originally been the Evans farm 13 miles southwest on the Correction Line, they visited at the cemetery west of Viking and saw the grave of their uncle who had passed away in 1946. On their return from Viking, all enjoyed supper with Gwen, Cecil and family, then they returned to the camp grounds where they had their camper, leaving the next morning for Edmonton to see Hawrelak Park, and to Jasper, Banff and to Calgary where they would visit with cousins, Delia Hoiness and Dorothy Tilley and families, before leaving for their trip home.

Helpers were Donna and Betty Lang, Ellen Dorin, Jacqueline Laube, Darcy Babiitz and Mrs. Maureen Tiedemann of Edmonton, with approximately 44 children attending. On the closing day, Friday evening, the children who had attended the Bible School gave a short program and received a certificate for their attendance, with parents, and friends looking at the projects done by the children, and then all enjoyed coffee and lunch.

While the children's reading pool is now open in the playground, it is only under supervision of Diana Pannak during the hours of 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m until July 31st.

Mr. and Mrs. John Medzenki have had their daughter and family from Kelowna visiting with them.

The Bill Harasymchuks of Edmonton were Sunday evening callers with his mother, Mrs. N. Harasymchuk.

Grandchildren visiting last week with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tchir returned home over the weekend, with their parents calling for them.

Moisture still needed for crops development

The need for moisture for crops is growing despite the fact that many areas reported rain during the past week.

The sight of dark clouds in the sky is becoming somewhat frustrating for many farmers, since the clouds are constantly passing without dropping any moisture except in scattered areas.

Crops in the Ryley region are reported to be about ninety percent of what is considered to be normal for this time of year. This is a drop of about five percent during the past week.

Wheat is eighty percent headed while one-half of the barley is headed and about thirty percent of the rapeseed crop is headed.

In the Tofield area, some deterioration was noted although crops improved slightly when moisture fell in some places. Overall, crops are still reported as normal.

Over sixty percent of the wheat and rapeseed is headed while just over forty percent of the barley crop has reached the headed stage.

Little change was noted in the Round Hill area where crops are said to be still in the 80-85 percent normal condition range.

Forty percent of the wheat and twenty percent of barley has reached the headed stage while all of the rapeseed is now in bloom.

Rain is needed in the area around Camrose with only flax and rye considered to be normal. Wheat, oats and barley are now ninety-eight percent normal while rapeseed has dropped five percent below normal conditions.

One quarter of the barley is headed while ten percent of the wheat has reached the same stage and rapeseed is just starting to head out.

Dayland still reports the best conditioned crops in the entire area with only flax considered perfectly normal. All other crops range from ten to twenty percent above normal.

All of the reporters had favored pods. Thirty percent of the wheat and twenty percent of the barley are now in flower.

Crops in Hay Lakes are reported to be normal with the exception of rapeseed which is down by about ten percent.

Eighty percent of wheat and seventy percent of barley has reached the boot stage while one-half of the crops crop is in bloom.

Reports on crop conditions were received from the Alhambra to Wheat Pool.

Recreation Report

SUMMER—SPORTS

Summer brings sports with it! Everyone into the pool — into the golf course— or how about a little cycling! The following features are from a recent magazine. I don't know if they'll help at all, but:

Two Commandments of Golf:

1. Thou shalt remain stationary and motionless while thy partner is hitting. (In other words, stand still and shut up.)

2. Thou shalt not trample on thy partner's putting line. (The line between the hole and the cup is sacred in golf. Any pro will walk around it. Amateurs have a big heed right in the middle.)

The Three Stages of Golf:

1. Wearing a caddies shoes and a fancy country club sweater on your chest.

2. Using words without a scratch on them.

3. Carrying a bag with your name on it. (Nobody cares who you are.)

Mother's Day for a Driver:

If you want to look as if you know what you're doing on the driving board, you must first bring at least four beach towels to the pool. Divers need them to warm and dry and there's a good reason: When you're in mid-flight, up in the air and you pull in your knees or do a tight tuck, your hands roll also if you're wet. And, says Micki King Hogue, when you're standing ten meters above the water, thinking about a reverse one and a half somersault with one and a half twists, a single drop dripping down your nose can be distracting.

Hazards While Cars, Cyclers:

Cycling is one sport where bad technique can do more than make you look dumb, it can make a reckless driver. Don't try to steer while holding on to the end of the handle bars— when you hit a bump you go flying. It's best to hang on near the curve of the handle bars.

CAMP LAKE

This summer because of reduced registrations of our three camps all camps have been combined into one camp only by the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Management Board. They feel that one camp would be more beneficial than cancelling the whole program.

Our camp staff will be awaiting campers with lots of games and crafts in mind. The canoes will be ready for lots of action.

The camp will be in session next week, July 24-28. Cross your fingers for beautiful weather!!

TRAVELLING PLAYGROUND SCHEDULE:

July 24-28, Holden at Holden Playground.

July 31-August 4, Ryley at Ryley Playground.

August 7-11, Spitzstad at Spitzstad Hall; Fee: $0.50 per person.

Have you got any ideas on fall programs? Here are some of our ideas but we would still like to hear from you. Tofield - Loon Weaving, Curling Clinic; Quilting.

Holden supports senior citizen's unit

The Village of Holden has thrown its full support behind a proposal to construct a senior citizens' housing development in the village

At a recent meeting of village council, three motions pertaining to the proposed development, were passed by councillors

In one motion, council decided to notify Alberta Housing Corporation that it approved of the construction of an eight-apartment senior citizens' self-contained unit.

Council then gave its support to a committee of council which had written to the Alberta Housing Corporation stating that an eight-apartment unit would be fully occupied

Secretary-treasurer Sorenson was authorized to write, on behalf of council, to the Corporation stating that the survey conducted by the Corporation was not fully accurate and that such a unit was needed and would be fully utilized within the village.

Councillors gave their approval to two proposed revisions in the Regional Recreation agreement.

During the meeting, Mayor Shykora announced that he was declaring Monday, August 7th, to be a civic [illegible].

Agreement was reached that the exterior of the Community Hall would be painted if a reasonable estimate of cost could be obtained.

Authorization was given for repairs to the roof of the fire hall.

Approval was given for the provision of water and sewer service for three lots on two different blocks.

Councillor Mackay reported that Diane Pasnak had been hired as supervisor of the wading pool and, that a good amount of work had been done on the playground with the co-operation of village employees.

Accounts amounting to $14,484.21 were approved for payment.

A number of other routine business matters were handled at the meeting.

Minutes of a regular meeting held on June 21st, and special meetings held on July 7 and 13, were approved

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a [illegible] of village council held on July 19th.

Powerline champs ousted

The Powerline Baseball League will have a new champion in 1978.

The defending champions, Ryley Rebels, were upset in the league semi-finals, to bring their two-year winning streak to an end.

Ryley was stunned 6-1 by Camrose Roadrunners, in Ryley, on Tuesday evening with Camrose winning the best of three series two games to one, coming back after losing the opening game.

Nelson picked up the win for Camrose while E. Solberg was charged with the loss. Nelson, along with Berry, led the Roadrunner attack at the plate when each slugged a home run.

Camrose had deadlocked the series in Camrose last Thursday evening when they eked out a narrow 10-8 victory.

C. Sawchuk, in relief of Olson, was credited with the victory while Berge was tagged with the loss. Berry of the winners, along with E Solberg and Beattie of the losers, were each two for three at the plate.

Bardo went to Holden last Thursday and returned home with a fairly easy 9-4 triumph.

The win gave Bardo the best of three semi-final series in two straight games. Details of the second game were not available

The first game of the finals between Bardo and Camrose will be played this evening (Thursday) in Bardo, with a second game in Camrose on Tuesday

If a deciding game in the best of three series is needed, it will be played in Bardo, one week from today (Thursday).

Visit pays off

H Lesoway of Tofield RR4 won a microwave oven, during a daily draw conducted by the Rotary Club.

Bruce Stampede goes Sunday

by Bea Fredericks

Finally the last frantic week has arrived.

Now, although we know the farmers need rain, we hope it comes before the weekend.

Through the years, the weatherman's benevolence has been fantastic, only twice in the past 32 years has he forced us to postpone the Stampede.

As usual, the variety of rodeo events promises visitors an exciting afternoon.

They will be able to cheer for their favorite cowboys as they participate in Saddle Bronc, Bareback, Amateur Saddle Bronc and Bull Riding and be entertained by Steer Wrestling, Calf Roping and the Wild Horse Race.

Once again the Viking Treasury Branch has donated the trophy which will be presented to the all-around Cowboy

Last year, there was an extremely heavy entry in the rodeo events and we have reason to believe it will be the same this year.

In 1977, the whole rodeo entry system was changed. Previous to last year, entries were either phoned directly here or sent along with the first cowboy to arrive. It might be midnight when that persistent fellow arrived with a list of contestants scribbled on the back of a cigarette box.

Now, thanks to automation, cowboys enter through the C.R.E.S.T. office in Calgary and after July 24 can find out the stock they've drawn, a factor which has a great bearing on the points they will score for their performances.

This service is paid for by the cowboys and, as of this year, shared by the various organizations which sponsor the rodeos.

Since the list of contestants arrives by bus early in the week, last year, for the first time, it was possible to have printed programs, a much appreciated addition for ardent rodeo fans. Nearly a thousand programs were sold.

It was last year also that the spirit of the early Stampedes was recaptured when the Tug-of-[illegible] match was reintroduced

The event proved hilarious and will be staged again this year during intermission. No doubt the Ryley fellows will be back for the "big pull" in hopes of retaining the trophy.

The popular horseshoe tournament which draws an enthusiastic group of spectators is also on again this year and will begin at 4.30 p m

Anyone who is interested in entering either of these competitions can do so on Stampede day by contacting Roy Teske at the horshoe pit

Nobody need go hungry at the grounds, hot dogs, hamburgers, french fries, pop, chocolate bars, ice cream products, etc will be available. The Stampede Association has purchased a soft ice cream machine which should please young and old

At 4 p m the beef will be taken from the barbecue pit and those who enjoy more substantial fare can buy a tasty meal. The long line-up each year speaks for the quality of the barbecued beef

The 64th annual Bruce Stampede promises a fun-filled day for your whole family. See you on the 30th!

Centre

The Town of Tofield is continuing to grow in size and population, with many newcomers moving into the town. The population growth is attracting a number of new businesses to the community to provide essential services. One of the newest developments is a new shopping centre located on the east side of the south end of Main Street. Combined with a centre on the other side, the new developments will considerably alter the appearance of Main Street

Why bother?

So many MLA's are already declaring their intentions to run or not to run for the next provincial election, and so many nominating conventions are in the wind across Alberta, that we can't help but feel the word is already out in the halls of the Legislature, with everything but the final date being tied down.

And for the life of us, we can't see why Premier Lougheed would want to go to the polls in the near future.

Nor how he can justify it.

Prime Minister Trudeau's time is running out, next spring, and it's hard to guess whether he will jockey for a more favorable time, or simply let time force the issue. The latter is the least desirable, obviously, but his options are becoming fewer and fewer as time goes on, and the overall cross-country feeling doesn't appear to show he's gaining in material support.

On the other hand, Mr. Lougheed has almost two years left in his mandate. He holds ninety percent of the seats in the Legislature, so he can't claim to be threatened there. And he has already demonstrated at least once to the Ottawa government that he holds all the voter support needed back home here to support him when he goes to the federal bargaining table.

Why should so large a share of an election term be wasted, with no reason? Why should so much money be spent so long before it's called for? After all, it's not that oil money that pays for it all.

Guess whose money is needed?

Good ol' spud

Keen interest in the lowly potato is being promoted around the world, according to the Alberta Potato Commission, which includes a number of potato facts in a recent bulletin which we found fascinating.

For instance, they make the claim that, in terms of calories and protein, the yield of an acre of potatoes is considerably higher than that of an acre of wheat or rice, which are currently the two leading food grains in the world.

Especially in developing countries, therefore, and in an era of food shortages, the potato could have a major role to play.

The USSR is by far the world's leading producer of potatoes, with more than thirty percent of the world's crop, but their output is closely matched all around Europe, which, including the USSR, produces three quarters of all the world's potatoes.

The most remarkable increase is being shown in Africa, where production is rising steeply. Here in Canada, we account for much less than one percent of world production, and even that low level is held up more by our consumption of processed potatoes, such as potato chips, than by consumption of potatoes with our meals.

Rich in carbohydrates, it is one of the best sources of protein and Vitamin C, and also has significant amounts of amino acids, thiamine, niacin, methionine, and lysine, all of which are important to balanced diets.

Wow, how many of us knew all that? Now, Junior, better get busy and eat up that plate of potatoes.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (SF) – For the past six months to a year, expect heavy doses of propaganda on the constitution. At least that's what Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has planned for us.

He'd like to make his proposals for reforming the constitution the prime political topic in the land, but that's a tactic which will only work if things straighten themselves out economically.

Constitutional reform may not be the favorite topic of a Friday evening at the local pub, but it is damn important to the future of the country, and what Mr. Trudeau has planned could have serious ramifications.

He's vowed to put the first phase of his constitutional proposals into effect by July 1, 1979 – with or without agreement from the provinces. He's also aiming at implementation of the second phase – those things which require provincial agreement – by July 1, 1981.

There's no disagreement in federalist Canada that we need a rewritten constitution that can be amended here, rather than in the Parliament of Britain. But should such a fundamental rewriting of Canadian basics be attempted in such a politically charged, pre-election atmosphere?

Mr. Trudeau has asked that discussion on the constitution be kept non-partisan, but his very timing and the methods chosen are guaranteed to produce partisan politics. We could very well wind up with the ideas of a government with a stale mandate being shoved down the collective throats of [illegible] because [illegible] would use [illegible] to pursue legislation through Parliament if necessary.

The PM is awfully keen to leave his mark on history as the man who brought Canada's constitution home. But that ambition should not be allowed to submerge the need for national accord before enshrining things into the basic fabric of Canada. After all, the man has been Prime Minister for 10 years, and could well have tackled constitutional matters shortly after his election if he really thought it was of such top priority.

Changes in the constitution affect all Canadians. Surely such changes should only be made with the approval of two-thirds of our elected representatives, or perhaps approval of the people themselves in a referendum. Mr. Trudeau has legislation to set up a referendum process before Parliament, but the government refuses to allocate time for the subject to be considered.

Could it be that a referendum might decide matters differently than Mr. Trudeau would like, or is there, after all, some political value for the Liberal Party in the debate on constitutional change?

Warble inspections

The Alberta Warble Control Program will continue on-site inspections for warble infested cattle at all markets and terminal stockyards during 1978 says Alberta Agriculture's livestock superintendent [illegible].

Any infested cattle at markets being offered for sale will be treated and the pests unless they are to be sold for slaughter within seven days, are milking dairy cattle or are too young or sick to be treated.

The practice of inspecting and treating infested cattle at markets was started several years ago when Alberta counties and municipalities began passing their own warble control by-laws says Mr. Gould.

Eighty per cent or more of the ratepayers had to request a warble control program by petition. The province adopted warble fly regulations through the Agricultural Pests Act, and in 1976 a uniform policy was established for all markets in the province.

All cattle offered for sale are inspected, and infested cattle returning to the farm are treated to kill the grubs and prevent re-infestation. The treatment is paid for by the cattlesellier through a $2.00 per head deduction from the seller's proceeds for each animal treated.

"A few animals may retain one or two grubs even in herds which have been carefully treated in the fall," says Mr. Gould, "and we advise farmers to check their cattle several weeks before they intend to sell, and treat any that are infested. This will ensure grub-free cattle at the sale and avoid the cost of further treatment at the market."

"Farmers should note that any animals treated with Neguvon, Grubex or Ecco Trichlorofon can't be slaughtered for 21 days after treatment. Cattle treated with Spotton must be held for 45 days before slaughter. However, producers who use Ruelene for warble control can sell their cattle for slaughter seven days after they have been treated," says Mr. Gould.

Grain dryers experiment with use of solar heat

This spring in Swift Current, scientists will launch a series of solar energy experiments that could have a dramatic impact on Prairie agriculture.

Dr Harmon Davidson, an Agriculture Canada researcher at Swift Current, heads the study. It is being conducted in co-operation with the Saskatchewan government.

The scientists want to find out how easily built and inexpensive solar collectors can be used to dry grains and heat livestock barns and machinery sheds. They also hope to produce a map of the Prairies, showing areas which could best use these solar energy structures.

Three solar heat experiments are planned.

The first test aims to dry grain in a circular, 1,000 bushel grain bin, 4.27 meters in diameter and 2.44 meters high. The south-facing two-thirds of the bin is wrapped by a solar collector. Air enters the collector from the north side of the bin and is warmed by five to eight degrees C. It is drawn towards the front by a fan and forced under the bin.

The warm air passes through the mesh in the bottom of the bin and up through the grain.

The second experiment uses a square grain bin, with the solar collector on the roof and the south facing side. Again, the warmed air is forced into the structure by a fan. The same sort of solar collector could be used for heating barns, dairies or sheds.

The third experiment is similar to the second, but uses a rock pile to store heat, which is given off during the night.

The experimental solar collector is relatively easy to build. It has an exterior of clear fiberglass. Then there's a three-quarter-inch "dead air" chamber. The inner wall of the chamber is made of tin, painted black on the side facing the fiberglass. Behind the tin plate is a four-inch passage where the air is warmed.

The technology is still in its infancy. When developed, solar energy collectors could go a long way in reducing fuel bills for some Prairie farmers who are faced with drying moist grain.

He farmed with his father until his father's death in 1938, then continued on the farm until his retirement to town in 1958, having spent all but a few years during which he served in the R.C.A.F., enlisting in 1941, on the farm.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

You may have noticed my column are getting shorter and more condensed with every progressive week of summer.

There are a few reasons for this. There are so many people on holidays that our programs are quite limited. Few people would appreciate it if I went on and on concerning the daily activities of a playground program or listed the camp schedule of camp Iake.

Instead I've decided to tell it how it is in one short paragraph.

I've also had some problems with choosing topics to write on. I like to save the "heavies" like "Recreation in our society" or "The Advances Technology of Tennis" for winter columns.

After over sixty columns, I'm also running out of words of wisdom. I feel like I've told you everything I know! (has a lot to say for my limit of knowledge!)

Perhaps holiday fever is also catching up with me. When you drive on the highway seeing the bunch of campers with their tents, bikes, boats with a main objective of fun it has a way of affecting me.

So, when you see my condensed column of recreation happenings, you'll know that I'm still writing news; slowly but surely.

He has received a promotion to Major and will leave Sept 1st for Halberg, Vancouver Island, where he and his family will be stationed.

Are insects traps effective

How effective are pheromone or sex attractant traps compared with blacklight insect traps for monitoring the number and distribution of cutworm moths?

Personnel from the entomology section of Alberta Agriculture's plant industry laboratory are working with scientists at the federal research station at Lethbridge which developed the pheromone traps in an attempt to come up with an answer to this question.

Both types of traps are designed to help prevent cutworm damage by providing a method of predicting infestations so that Alberta farmers can be given advance warning of a potential problem.

The pheromone traps are baited with synthetic chemicals called sex attractants, which are specific for a particular species of moth. Since each attractant draws only one species of moth, farmers and others who are not trained in the identification of moths need only to count the number captured to be able to predict the type and seriousness of a potential infestation.

Work on sex attractant chemicals was started at Lethbridge in 1969. To date attractants for five species of cutworm moths have been developed. The odor of each attractant has to closely resemble the odor produced by the female moths of that species to attract male moths for mating.

Dispensing the attractants in field traps requires great precision. The scientists at Lethbridge have found that the male moths are not attracted if the concentration is higher than the concentration produced by the female moths. Apparently one ounce of attractant is sufficient to bait about 5,000 traps for one season. Such a massive amount of chemical is not sufficient to cause environmental pollution.

Future prospects for the use of sex attractants could include catching such a large number of a particular species of insect that those remaining would do little damage. Another possibility would be to capture the insects, sterilize them and release them or to confuse the species by flooding insects with their own attractant.

The blacklight insect traps, being used on a province-wide survey basis by Alberta Agriculture's entomology section, attract night fly moths by an ultra violet light. The moths are then drawn into the trap by a fan and collected in a lifting jar at the base of the trap.

The Alberta entomologists are also working with scientists at the National Research Council in Saskatoon to evaluate the effectiveness of pheromone traps versus blacklight insect traps in detecting the presence of bertha armyworm moths. These field tests are being carried out in a month of insects with their own attractant.

Confronting your Faith

With Rev John Unrau of the Tofield Mennonite Church.

When we first came to Tofield I remember being impressed with the abundance of churches - - - on almost every street corner "A well-churched community," I thought to myself. But during the last three years I have come to realize that an abundance of ecclesiastical buildings does not make for a church-going community. Why is there not more interest in attending church. It used to be that the life of the community revolved around the church Today, if it weren't for the occasional community suppers, Christmas and Easter services many people wouldn't even know that the church exists. For what reason does the church exist? Is it a ritual where we listen to a choir, hear a sermon, sing four hymns and wait for the benediction? Is it a tradition that has become habitual for the faithful few" Is the church only a place where we accommodate those who desire a divine sanction on their marriage or a respectable funeral? Too often this is the impression that people have of the church, and maybe for a good reason. You might ask, "If the church does exist for a purpose that makes it distinctive from any other club or organization why is it then not stirring up people on the inside and attracting people from the outside"" Maybe I can answer that best by saying that the church needs to be challenged; prosperity and lack of opposition are its greatest enemies. We need to be challenged to translate the message of salvation into modern day English We need to be challenged to occupy areas of need that have been neglected and tap resources that are lying waiting for us. We need to confess that we have become too much like the environment around us and have not set the kind of example that was consistent with what we said We need to confess that too often our willingness to reach out has been either hesitant or unobserved and too often we haven't been sincerely committed to what we believe in We, I admit that there are areas that could have been occupied that we neglected and there were resources that could have been employed that were wasted, but I still see a glimmer of hope I still believe that the church exists for a unique purpose and that is redemptive one This is expressed so vividly in Isaiah ch. 61 "To bring good news to the poor, to heal the broken-hearted, to announce release to captives and freedom to prisoners"

Our community desperately needs to experience the reality of Jesus Christ and it is my prayer that God will help the churches in this community to demonstrate the kind of transparency that will help others to see through them to Jesus Christ.

In a free press-fair hearings for all

There is something disturbing about a growing attitude among politicians and public figures that federalism is such a holy crusade that only one side should be presented by the media.

Liberal politicians have used the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission to try and bring the CBC to heel, firmly convinced that only the separatist viewpoint is being heard via Radio Canada. The recent CRTC inquiry found no such thing, though there did appear to be an emphasis on reporting that favored the separatist cause.

Now Harry Boyle, who was chairman of the CRTC when that inquiry was held, has warned that the media should not cast itself as the official opposition.

"If I were a media owner I would shiver every time I heard people talking about the role of the media as the 'political opposition' That's asking for trouble," he said to a Toronto audience.

He didn't specify what he meant by trouble, but presumably in the context of his association with the CRTC he was thinking in terms of licences that have to be renewed for broadcasters through the CRTC And as the CRTC is a creature of government, no matter how fondly it feels it is at arm's length from its creator, that means inevitably that a radio or TV proprietor could displease the CRTC's political parents even usually loses his right to exist.

Nothing could be further — freedom of speech, as applied to the broadcast industry, is a myth.

That is the difference between the newspaper and the electronic media. The newspaper needs no licence. It is governed of course, by the inhibitions of libel and every citizen is, the laws of libel and defamation, etc But it needs no licence from government to operate and is thus free to print news and opinion without fear of being put out of business by a politician.

Because there is no licensing of newspapers, we have the absolute guarantee of freedom of speech, the newspaper being beyond the vindictive reach of government.

"The Journal believes that Quebec belongs within the Canadian federation."

Mr Boyle believes that the current political situation in Quebec is too serious to be treated as just another federal-provincial argument That is quite true and newspapers are doing everything in their power to make their readers aware of the crisis that Confederation-ment that faces Canada.

But Mr. Boyle's stricture that the media must eschew even "a virtue of detachment" raises the obvious inference: whatever plan of lechery the government can make out of broadcasting by control of licensing cannot be duplicated in a free press, which clings stubbornly to the belief that all sides in a debate must be given a fair hearing

The Journal believes in the widest possible spectrum of opinion being presented on the question Per that reason, it has been running a column twice a month from Mme. Evelyn Dumas, an avowed separatist and the editor of Le Jour, a weekly newspaper totally supportive of the separatist cause. But The Journal has balanced that off against a column by George Springate, an articulate ex-goal kicker for the Montreal Alouettes and a Liberal member of the Quebec National Assembly, who appears to be one of the most often heard voices representing the Quebec Anglo community's views on federalism.

It goon without saying that The Journal is totally committed to the continuance of Canada as a nation from sea to sea, though not necessarily entirely in its present form. The Journal believes that Quebec belongs within that Canada and Quebec's attachment to the goal of separatism is an emotional reaction to frustrated aspiration

The Journal holds fast to the view expressed clearly by Premier Lougheed on behalf of the four western provincial governments that there should be no thought of an economic association between Canada and a separated Quebec that would give Quebec all the benefits of Confederation without actual membership

That view must be reiterated constantly and firmly, because Premier Levesque tried to dismiss it lightly when he appeared in Calgary a few days ago Mr. Levesque says he does not treat such statements by the western premiers as "eternal pronouncements."

Neither do Mr. Levesque's main architects of the separatist strategy — Mr. Morin and Mr. Parizeau. Their attitude seems to be that while the rest of Canada may feel disgruntled for a while, an economic association will eventually be arrived at once Canada has had time to cool off.

Indeed, Mr. Levesque said in Calgary that Quebec was more viable without Canada. He added that he was speaking in the "empire" of oil and gas. It is easy to follow Quebec's strategy here - since the Parti Quebecois came to power 16 months ago Quebec has been a fervent backer of Alberta's desire to attain world prices for her oil and gas.

The reason is obvious. If Quebec had to face a referendum on separation with domestic oil and gas prices considerably lower than the world prices, this would be a logical economic inducement for Quebecers to reject separation. But if Alberta's oil and gas prices were at least equal to the world prices when the referendum is held, then Mr. Levesque will tell his people that there is no point in staying in Canada because there will be no saving for the economy in this one vital area of cost.

It is a cute strategy, though obviously there is an element of self-inflicting of wounds attached to it But anything goes when you are an extremist.

It may be reassuring to some to have Premier Levesque tell us Quebec is not hostile to Canada, "not impelled to get back to the Plains of Abraham." However, the fact remains that Quebec talks of independence as though she is a vassal state

The word oppression is used in the fine flush of emotional rhetoric as though living in Canada can be equated with life under Idi Amin There is a difference between the freedom sought to escape the destroying iron hand of a conqueror and the uneven partnership between two founding peoples that has some unbalancing factors that need adjusting in the springs of the scales of history

Be all that as it may The Journal will continue to speak out in favor of federalism but it has no intention of pretending along with Jean-Luc Pepin co-chairman of the task force on national unity, that Canada will survive if we simply act as if there were no dissension.

We have no desire to lower the wattage of Mr. Pepin's beaming smile, but there are differences between Quebec and the rest of Canada and they must be discussed from all points of the compass

The preservation of the unity of Canada will not be achieved by turning the media into the lap dogs of politicians or by making newspapers into propaganda organs of unity.

Josef Goebbels tried that, for somewhat different reasons in Nazi Germany. His motives may have been less noble, but the purpose was the same

As Charles B. Seib, Washington Post ombudsman, said recently "A press that lets itself be used by the government, however patriotic that may seem at the moment, is not a free press It is a captive press to the extent it is used, and to that extent it is incompatible with the needs of a free society "

A newspaper is an organ of information and opinion and not an echoing chamber for propagandists

Global grain supplies

Although international grain prices have slumped somewhat from their speculative highs of August and September, there is little reason to fear a continuing decline as was the case during the first half of 1975.

This is the opinion of Peter Perkins, marketing analyst with Alberta Agriculture, who points out that the world grain supply is little different now from what it was a year ago. "Total production is currently expected to be about the same as the revised estimate of 931 million tonnes for the 1974-75 crop year," he says. However, distribution of the 1975-76 production is significantly different to that of 1974-75, and it is this fact that partially explains why current prices are some 30 to 40 percent lower than they were this time last year.

Another factor is that there is more certainty now with respect to available world grain supplies than there was this time last year. All that was known at the end of 1974 was that world supplies would be tight at least until the 1975 Northern Hemisphere crop was harvested. How tight they would be was anybody's guess!

"It was this fear of unmet shortages," says Mr. Perkins, "that created the atmosphere for the high prices that prevailed through the fall of 1974." In contrast to that situation, certain information for most areas of the world concerning the 1975 harvest is known with considerable accuracy and certainty.

The most serious crop failures in 1975 which prevented the much needed growth in world food supplies, occurred in the Soviet Union and Europe. The Soviet crop, now confirmed a disaster, yielded only 127 million tonnes, some 60 million tonnes less than last year's further enhanced harvest.

Although Western European production was late by historical standards, it was down 7 per cent from the record 1974 crop. East European crops also suffered from less than favorable weather and now appear to be about 5 per cent less than the last crop year.

However, these crop failures were for the most part offset by sufficient crops in Asia, North A[illegible] parts of the S[illegible] Hemisphere. India and China, for example, both claimed to have achieved record food production. The United States also harvested record wheat and corn crops and boosted their total grain output by 43 million tonnes to achieve a massive production of 342 million tonnes. Canada's total grain harvest should approach 34 million tonnes, which represents a 16 per cent increase over 1974's poor production level.

Australia's grain harvest is now in full swing. It is expected to reach 16 million tonnes, some 6 per cent less than 1974's excellent crop, but much better than had been expected following that country's very dry seeding period.

In contrast to their poor 1974 harvest of less than 5 million tonnes, Argentina appears set to reap a bumper wheat crop of more than 8 million tonnes. Other Latin American countries are expecting reasonable grain harvests except like Brazil whose dry season lessens of last July lowered the wheat crop. However, Brazil's base for soybean production was unaffected and a further gain of 20 per cent over the last crop year is expected.

"In essence," explains Mr. Perkins," the global 1975 harvest turned out much the same as that of 1974 with one critical difference. That difference is that all the major grain exporters, except France, have substantially more grain available for sale to traditional importers than they had in 1974-75. In fact, additional supplies to the tune of 30 million tonnes would be made by the major grain exporters without seriously affecting either their domestic supplies or their carryover stock position."

In 1974, because of crop failures in most leading surplus producing areas for the most part offset by sufficient crops in Asia, North A[illegible] parts of the S[illegible] Hemisphere. India and China, for example, both claimed to have achieved record food production. The United States also harvested record wheat and corn crops and boosted their total grain output by 43 million tonnes to achieve a massive production of 342 million tonnes. Gypsum helps soils

Over 10 million acres of land in Alberta and Saskatchewan are classified as saline.

The Russian-derived word applies to soils that used to be called [illegible] or blowouts. Other words in these soils will permeate but the plants will utter suffer from drought, even on irrigated lands.

The reason [illegible] is permeable soil layers 3 to 8 inches thick are present within 12 inches of the surface. These layers usually have a high sodium content and the sodium causes a complete breakdown of soil structure. As a result penetration by water and plant roots is poor.

"If the excess sodium could be removed from these layers, the production would be equal to that on other soils," claims J.C. van Schaik, a soil physicist at Lethbridge. But this is not always possible, so he suggests certain practical methods to reduce these soils.

One of the best ways to reclaim these high sodium soils is by deep plowing. The impermeable layer is broken up and the calcium of the [illegible] mixed with the sodium-rich soil. Water can then pass through the soil and remove the sodium.

Application of gypsum is also recommended for reclamation. At Lethbridge, van Schaik mixed the required amount of gypsum with the soil to a depth of about 4 inches. He found that coarser textured soils showed good infiltration but that fine textured soils did not show much improvement.

"This suggests that gypsum may be promising for reclamation in southern Alberta, where the subsoil is generally loam to sandy clay loam," he concludes.

Another test showed that as filtration did not increase significantly if the gypsum was just deposited on the surface. Water could not move sufficient soluble salts downwards to ensure removal of the sodium.

Therefore, if a method can be found to mix gypsum with the pulverized subsoil, fairly speedy reclamation with gypsum may be possible in southern Alberta. However, sufficient water must be available to wash the excess sodium out of the root zone.

Best first aid kit not always expensive

The best start to a summer vacation taking some precautions. One of them is to make sure your tetanus and polio immunization is up to date (adults every 10 years). Wearing a Medic Alert tag could save your life in case of loss of consciousness if you have allergies, chronic condition or illness and if you wear contact lenses. It is always a good idea to carry an extra pair of glasses or contact lenses while you are travelling. If you don't have a second pair, a prescription will do. Another precaution is to know your water safety rules and how to perform mouth to mouth resuscitation.

The best first aid kit usually isn't the expensive ready made one. Instead use your imagination for a container, eg. tupperware, fishing tackle box, tool box, etc. and stock it with individual supplies which can be adapted to any situation. For example if you were mountain hiking for ten days, you would add specific supplies in addition to the mentioned list of first aid supplies. Some of these would be moleskins, a sunscreen agent, flares, etc.

If children are around and you have to add medications to your first aid kit, the box should always be locked. In addition all medications should be maintained in [illegible] and labelled according to contents and dosage for both children and adults where applicable. Unless you are on special medications the best thing to do is not to carry any at all.

Some non-medical supplies your first aid kit should contain are a small flashlight, [illegible] (especially if hiking), matches, a sharp knife, loose change for a pay phone, pencil and paper, and wirecutters if you are a fisherman.

A good basic first aid kit is NOT overstocked. As the items are used, they should be replaced. Remember the contents of a package are no longer sterile once opened, outdated, or if the package has become wet.

A good first aid kit would contain the following items:

[illegible]
1 bottle antiseptic solution such as Phisoderm or Betadine scrub for cleaning cut and scrapes.
1 roll Sterile gauze bandage 2 1/2 in. x 10 yds.
5 packages 4" x 4" sterile pads.
5 packages 2" x 2" sterile pads.
1 roll Elastoplast adhesive strip - for cutting off size of band aid required—these all for dressing cuts, scrapes, etc
1 roll 1" adhesive tape
1 pair blunt scissors approx. 5½".
1 pair tweezers for removing splinters, rock particles, etc.
1 4" tensor - for arm and hand sprains.
1 6" tensor - for ankle and leg sprains.
1 triangular bandage - used for splinting arms and legs.
1 package various sizes safety pins
2 sterile eye pads - in case of eye injury should cover both eyes until seen by a doctor
1 bottle aspirin for headache or fever—or tylenol (adult and children)
1 bottle calamine lotion, for insect bites or itches or box of baking soda (also good for sunburns)
1 bottle gravol tablets - for motion sickness (car, boat, etc.)
1 Sunscreen agent - lotion.
1 Thermometer for taking [illegible]

1 bottle insect repellent to protect from insect bites.
1 package waterproof matches - for lighting fires in case of hiking emergencies - to keep warm
1 First Aid manual - can be obtained from St. John's Ambulance Edmonton Phone No: 426-8287
2 cubes chicken bouillon for heat exhaustion

REMEMBER
1. Read and study your first aid manual so that you know what to do when an emergency situation arises and know how to recognize symptoms.
2. NEVER use butter, oils, burn ointments on burns. ALWAYS use cold water or ice to reduce the pain and swelling. See a doctor immediately.
3. NEVER use a tourniquet to stop bleeding. Direct pressure to the area using a gauze bandage and your hand will stop the bleeding or control it enough until a doctor has seen it.
4. ALWAYS discard or throw out medications that are a year old. The properties they contain may have changed and therefore could be harmful rather than helpful.
5. The victim who has had first aid should ALWAYS be seen by a doctor.

Have A Happy Holiday!

'Love A Fair' expected to be bigger and better

"Love a Fair" may be the biggest and best agricultural fair ever presented by the Camrose Agricultural Society

Officials of the Society are brimming with confidence that this year's Fair, to be presented August 6-9, will attract record crowds and have slated a full schedule of events to please young and old alike.

Already it looks like at least one record could be shattered when officials learned that upwards of six hundred cattle, exhibited at the recent Red Deer Fair, could be coming to Camrose

Normally, cattle entries range two to three hundred head. The additional entries from large groups of cattlemen who are touring Fairs this year, could mean that this year's entry list could be between eight and nine hundred head.

Provincial competitions could also up this year's animal entry list as the local Fair will host the Alberta Junior Hereford Show while the Alberta Percheron Show will be returning.

Provincial championships in pony chuckwagon and chariot racing will also be held with the chariots racing each afternoon while the chuckwagons will go each evening.

Tractor pulling competitions, started just a couple of years ago, will again take place and the Central Alberta Draft Club will be presenting a horse pulling competition.

Following tremendous interest from the public, officials have again decided to kick things off with events on the Sunday, and have increased the number of events planned

Canoe jousting on Mirror Lake is expected to attract large crowds while a band concert and picnic near the museum is also expected to draw a large following.

Oldtimers will open a horseshoe pitching competition on the Sunday while the [illegible] field Glen Puppet Show will make a Sunday afternoon debut In addition, all of the commercial displays will open for exhibition on Sunday while many kinds of antique farm machinery will go on display, and some will be put into operation to show today's generation how it used to be [illegible]

For many, the annual Fair really gets underway with the giant parade on Monday morning. Details of parade entries haven't been finalized, but Chamber of Commerce officials expect this year's version to be the biggest parade ever

Grandstand entertainment will be presented twice daily, with this year's show being arranged by Tommy Young Wagoner Bros. will be bringing in a new midway which is expected to meet with public approval

Sheep shearing, introduced two years ago, will again be demonstrated.

Fishermen should know basic Water Safety rules and techniques. Take the Red Cross Survival Swimming course.

Final rites are held for Sophie Homeniuk

Sophie Irene Homeniuk of RR 2, Camrose was born in the Ukraine on April 16, 1905 and passed away at St. Mary's Hospital on June 1, 1978 at the age of 73 years.

She spent most of her life in the Round Hill, Camrose District, coming to Canada in [illegible].

On November 25, 1930, she was united in marriage to Anton Homeniuk, and to this union were born five children

She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband, Anton, two sons, Fred of Calgary and Ray of Camrose; three daughters, Mrs Mike (Anne) Kalinski of Sherwood Park, Mrs. Hazen (Mary) French of Camrose and Mrs. Charles (Olga) Hambling of Sherwood Park; ten grandchildren, and a host of other relatives

Funeral services were held on June 5th from the Round Hill Ukrainian Catholic Church with Father Martyniw officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery Burgar Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements.

Pallbearers were her two grandsons, James and Dan French, three nephews, Peter Homeniuk, Ray and Ted Swerda and a great-nephew, Allan [illegible].

CANADIANS LOVE FRUIT

Canadian consumers really enjoy fresh fruit. In 1975, we ate nearly 43 per cent more fresh fruit than the Americans, 113.4 pounds compared with 78.9 pounds in the United States.

We have also outstripped the Americans in coffee drinking, with the consumption average at 9.4 pounds each year compared with 9.2 pounds in the U.S., according to the Handbook of Food Expenditures, Prices and Consumption recently published by Agriculture Canada's Economics Branch.

Crops are deteriorating

Crops are deteriorating in most regions because of a lack of moisture, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Rainfall has been inconsistent throughout Central Alberta, with some areas getting heavy showers while others didn't get a drop of rain

Only in the Daysland area is the picture bright, with 201 millimeters of rain having fallen so far this month and crops are reported in excellent shape Rainfall totals in all other regions were considerably lower

Daysland crops are rated as better than normal, ranged from ten to twenty percent over normal conditions, with the exception of flax, which is only normal

Thirty percent of rapeseed and barley is headed while wheat is twenty percent headed All of the rapeseed has formed pods while all of the wheat is in flower and seventy percent of the barley has reached the flower stage.

Rain in the next few days [illegible] still bring a fair crop in the Camrose region although most crops started a severe downward trend during the [illegible].

Only rye is considered normal Barley is fifteen percent below normal conditions with other crops ten percent below normal.

Eighty-five percent of the barley is headed with other crops coming in between fifty-five and sixty percent.

In the Tofield area, conditions were described as being below normal for the first time, with all [illegible] reported about three percent below

Wheat and barley are just over eighty-five percent headed while rapeseed is about seventy percent headed out.

Holden farmers are reported that drought will result in about five percent loss of this year's crop as [illegible] dropped noticeably in the past few days with rye and rapeseed about five percent below normal conditions while all other crops are about ten percent below normal.

Twenty percent of the rapeseed is headed with other crops just arriving at this stage.

Conditions in the Round Hill region deteriorated during the past week with crops turning yellow because of the [illegible] lack.

Damage to crops in the Ryley area is estimated at about ten percent because of a lack of moisture

Wheat has dropped to about fifteen percent below normal conditions with all of the remaining crops being about ten percent behind. Loss of crops because of the moisture lack is rated at ten percent.

Wheat is the crop doing the best, being only ten percent below [illegible]. Tests on all other crops show the range to be between twelve to eighteen percent below normal conditions.

Farm Credit chairman plans August visit

A major step in bringing the Farm Credit Corporation to Camrose is expected to take place next month

Dr and Mrs. R P Poirier of Ottawa [illegible] be coming to Camrose [illegible] mid-August for a one-day stay

Dr Poirier is chairman of Farm Credit Corporation and will be coming to Camrose for discussions with city officials, as well as to make a brief tour of the city and surrounding area

The Poiriers will arrive early in the morning of August 19th and Dr. Poirier and Mayor Rudy Swanson are expecting to meet and discuss many of the aspects of moving the Corporation to Camrose

Dr Poirier is expected to give city officials some indication as to how many newcomers will be coming to Camrose, including the number of children who will need to be taught in French

During the afternoon, the Poiriers will be taken on a tour of the city. It was suggested that possible sites for the offices of Farm Credit Corporation would be inspected during the tour.

At a recent meeting of council, Mayor Swanson told aldermen that the City was experiencing some difficulties in obtaining information about the proposed move to Camrose by Farm Credit Corporation, and hoped that the visit by Dr Poirier would provide some much-desired data

While in Camrose, Dr and Mrs. Poirier will be guests of Mayor and Mrs Swanson.

Camp meeting all vegetarian

Ruth Smith from Camrose is in charge of the cafeteria at the Foothills Seventh-Day Adventist camp in Bowden. She says that nutrition is the single most important environmental factor affecting our health.

Mrs. Smith says the body can acquire all the necessary nutrients from meatless menus. You do not need to eat meat to get your protein. Proteins are found in other articles of food. Soy beans, lima beans, peanuts, almonds, red kidney beans, cottage cheese, eggs and many other kinds of foods are high in protein.

If people eat fruits, vegetables, nuts and grains in right quantities, they will be in perfect health even if they do not use meat.

Vegetarianism is not a test of fellowship for Adventists, but it is strongly recommended, and its principles are taught to all who join the Church. Flesh foods are considered second-hand sources of bodybuilding essentials provided first-hand by vegetables, nuts and whole grains. Most vegetarian Adventists are "lacto-ovo-vegetarians" — meaning they supplement their diet with essential dairy products such as milk and eggs. Under the laws of Moses, God commanded that His people abstain from eating certain flesh foods, which He declared to be unclean. These animals are listed in Leviticus II, and no Adventists eat it today.

A study published about Seventh-Day Adventists showed that they live longer than the average person for about 6 to 8 years. The cancer incidence is far less among Seventh-Day Adventists than among the general public. Adventists do not smoke or drink and most of them are vegetarians.

During the first week of July literally thousands of Seventh-Day Adventists from all over Alberta attended a camp meeting in Bowden. Each summer the denomination's conferences throughout North America hold about 60 Bible conferences, or camp meetings.

Progressive Farming

SWATHING CROPS

Every year a growing number of farmers are swathing crops earlier than it used to be the general practice.

Among the advantages of earlier swathing are that it catches weed seeds before they shell out on the ground; it shortens the time that crops are exposed to the elements and natural shattering; it results in swaths that are more securely anchored in the stubble (unless the stubble is very light). Most important, it hastens the time that the crop can be combined and safely stored in the bin.

WHEAT

—swath when the moisture content drops to 35 per cent (the kernels are in the firm dough stage and starting to turn yellow).

— Wheat intended for seed can be swathed at a moisture content of 25 per cent and left to dry until the moisture drops to at least 20 per cent. If combined above 16 percent, the grain should be artificially dried. To avoid germination damage, the drying temperature should not be allowed to go above 43 degrees C.

BARLEY

— Feed barley can also be swathed at the 35 per cent moisture level (when a kernel can be cut with the thumb nail without showing any water on the kernel) but malting and seed barley would be better left until the moisture content is down to at least 30 per cent (kernels are changing to a straw color, are firm when pressed between the finger, and thumb and no moisture appears). With malting barley, the whole field should be ripe, but not over ripe because of shattering and kernel damage during combining.

OATS

Oats can be swathed at a moisture content of 40 per cent (Early Dough) without any [illegible].

FALL RYE

Fall rye should be swathed [illegible] 45 per cent (milk stage) or it will shatter during swathing [illegible].

RAPESEED

A rapeseed crop is ready for swathing when it is a light gold with a slight greenish tinge and the green seeds are firm when rolled between the finger and thumb. Research shows that swathing rapeseed at 35 per cent moisture has no adverse effect on the yield, color, oil or protein content of the seed. However, swathing at 45 per cent seed moisture or above causes a 300 to 400 pound per acre drop in seed yield, increased dockage and results in a one per cent drop in the oil and protein content of the seed. On the other hand delaying swathing until the seed moisture content drops to 20 per cent or less results in a fluffy swath, which is susceptable to blowing, and increased losses from shattering and pest damage.

"Roundup* kills the roots but saves the soil

"You can clean up patches of perennial weeds like quackgrass or Canada thistle, and kill the weeds around sheds and barns and in shelterbelts with Roundup.*

"What makes Roundup* different from most other weed killers is this: it works right down at the roots, and although it totally controls the growth of the weed, it does not persist in the soil."

Vandals cause damage

Persons using guns caused property damage in Tofield and Ryley during the past week.

A water truck parked on a Tofield street was shot up by unknown persons while eight windows in the Ryley School were destroyed by someone using a b b gun. RCMP are investigating both instances.

RCMP have issued a warning not to leave farm machinery out in the fields, following damage on a farm near Tofield.

Don Shaw of Tofield told RCMP that nearly two hundred dollars worth of damages were done to his swather and combine when the machinery had been left out in the field.

A pocket calculator has been turned in to police and may be claimed by the owner at the Tofield RCMP Detachment Office.

Grant McCagherty of Tofield has been remanded to October 24th for preliminary hearing, on a charge of dangerous use of a firearm.

Melvin Chip, Edward Taylor and John Zelisko, all of Tofield, were each fined $300 and had their licenses suspended for six months on charges of driving with a reading in excess of .08.

RCMP report that six charges of impaired driving have been laid so far in July while another ten persons were charged with illegal possession of liquor.

Ryley seeks bids for street program

Tenders for a curb and gutter program in the Village of Ryley are being sought by village council.

Tenders for the program will be accepted until August 7th, after which the village's engineers will review all bids and submit a recommendation for council's consideration.

At a recent meeting of village council, councillors were told that the engineers had submitted reports to Alberta Environment and Water Resources Management Division in regards to a proposed drainage program, and are now waiting the approval, or suggestions, from the two bodies.

Councillors were told that the Local Authorities Board had given its approval for unexpended funds from construction of a water reservoir to be used on the new water treatment plant.

Accounts submitted for payment were approved.

A number of other routine business matters were handled at the meeting.

Minutes of a regular meeting held on June 26th, and a special meeting held on June 29th, were approved.

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a village council meeting held on July 10th.

Hay Harvesting and storage losses

Even when hay has been cut at the optimum stage of maturity (early bloom) considerable nutritive losses can occur during the harvesting and storage processes.

There are three ways in which the feed value of hay can be lost between the time it is cut and baled or stacked. These are through respiration, mechanical losses and leaching losses.

Respiration

Since the life process in grass and legume plants, like cut flowers, persists as long as there is enough moisture in the cells to support life, it uses up some of the food which was produced by the plant before it was cut. These respiration losses continue until the hay dries to a moisture content of about 25 percent, below which point the life process stops and no more respiration losses occur.

Ross Gould of Alberta Agriculture reports that recent research suggests a freshly cut crop of hay can lose from 7 to 11 percent of its original dry matter through respiration between the time it is cut and dried. The longer the drying period, the longer will be the respiration loss. Hence, quick drying is important for reducing these losses.

Mechanical Losses

The drier the cut hay becomes the greater the percentage of leaves and stems that tend to break off and shatter into pieces which are too small to be picked up by haying equipment. Research studies have shown, for example, that shattering losses vary from 3 to 20 4 per cent, depending upon the moisture content of the hay.

Mr. Gould says, "Losses can be kept below 10 per cent if the hay is raked or turned while its moisture content is above 35 per cent." During research studies the heaviest losses occurred when the leaves dried rapidly on a hot day while the stems were still damp. Hence conditioning, which speeds up the drying of stems can be expected to result in lower mechanical losses. Shattering losses were also found to be lower when the hay was raked in early morning or late afternoon because of the higher humidity.

"The highest losses occurred," Mr. Gould says, during the baling operation at the pickup. Normally these losses varied from one to 3 per cent of the total crop. Bale chamber losses were generally below one per cent."

Field chopper losses were similar to baler losses at the pickup. However, additional losses of one to 3 per cent were found to occur at the blower, especially if the wagon or stacker was not properly covered.

Leaching Losses

Leaching is another cause of loss which is often not recognized. Some of the sugars and protein constituents are in a soluble form which can be washed out by rain. One experiment suggested that about a 1 4 per cent loss would result from each 10 mm of rain which would be the same as a 3.5 per cent loss from each inch of rain on cut hay. It was also found that leaching losses are slightly higher in conditioned hay where the stems have been broken and the plant juices exposed.

STORAGE LOSSES

Hay dried to about 25 per cent moisture can continue to respire very slowly in storage. Research in Bellsville, Maryland, has shown that well dried, field cured hay can be expected to lose about 3 to 4 per cent of its total potential dry matter in storage because of continued respiration. Losses would be higher in hay that was stored while tough or damp.

Heating

When hay is packed tightly in a bale or stack, the heat produced from the respiration process is trapped and builds up to quite high levels. In addition to the losses from respiration, the digestibility of the hay can be damaged. At a temperature of over 40 degree C, for example, a complex reaction occurs between the protein and sugars in the plant material. This reaction makes both less digestible. Sometimes called "browning reaction", it can be recognized by the brown color and tobacco-like odor of the burned hay.

Dry matter losses in hay harvested at 30 per cent moisture have been found to be about 18 per cent. In hay with a 50 per cent moisture content, these losses went as high as 20 per cent.

The digestibility of the day matter was reduced by 6 per cent in 25 per cent moisture hay. Hay cut to 53 per cent moisture showed a reduction in digestibility of 14 per cent.

According to Mr. Gould these losses in digestibility were reflected in much lower rates of gain.

Ole Pehrson is a patient in the Daysland Hospital and on July 18th he observed his 93rd birthday there. His niece and nephew, Mr and Mrs Gunnar Stava and daughter Glena of Prince Rupert, B C., came to visit him and other relatives and are staying at the home of her sister, Mrs Palma Pashon.

The George Gradens were visitors one evening at the Bruce Peterson home on Friday night, Conrad and Alice Huseby were visitors at the Irvin Pederson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Reryl Smith of Edmonton were Sunday guests with her folks, the Joe Chrystians.

The Reo and Clifford Bratrud families spent a few days fishing at Lac La Nonne.

Marilyn Graden was employed the past week near Dodds at the Van Sickles chicken ranch.

Local callers were Olaf Bruce of White Rock, B.C., the Herman Hillands of Calgary, and Mrs Irvin Pederson of Gladstone.

Dieback of birch trees

"If the foliage on your birch trees is turning yellow and the tops are dying back, the chances are the trees are suffering from uncongenial growing conditions and lack of moisture", says Alberta Agriculture's plant pathologist Dave Stelfox.

The natural rainfall in Alberta is not sufficient in many areas to supply enough moisture for birch trees. They are northern plants and in their natural habitat they grow in moist, shaded forest soil, and along the banks of rivers, streams and lakes. Hence, it is not surprising that they thrive when they have a plentiful supply of water and will suffer if they do not get it.

Birch tree roots appear to be sensitive to high soil temperatures, which may result when they are moved from one location to another, or when plants, hedges, etc., which have been providing shade, are moved.

If a situation like this occurs in the middle or late summer, the leaves on birch trees turn yellow and some of them fall off. This leaf casting may be especially pronounced at the top of the tree and on some of the side branches. The remaining foliage may also be sparse and yellow. The following year the tops of these trees will frequently be dead and the lower branches will have only sparse foliage.

If you have birch trees growing on your lawn, remember, when you water the lawn be sure to provide enough moisture for the birch trees as well. Too often birch trees growing on lawns do not get enough water because the roots of the grass absorb most of it before it gets to the tree roots.

Mr Stelfox recommends soaking the soil under trees like birches until it is saturated to a depth of two or three feet. Start watering in the spring and continue throughout the summer, he advises.

In early September water the grass around the trees just enough to keep it green and healthy. This practice will allow the trees to mature before winter. In late October or early November water them thoroughly so that the roots will have enough moisture for the winter. If these trees are weakened by lack of moisture, they will be much more susceptible to winter injury.

Occasionally the damage on birch trees is caused by the bronze birch borer, the larvae of which mines the sap wood. If the injury is severe, it can kill large trees in three or four years. At one time it was thought that the bronze birch borer was responsible for the dying back of the tops of birch trees, but it now appears that this insect may be of only secondary importance. The affected trees were probably predisposed to attack following a drought or other weakening conditions. The best way to prevent a borer infection in your birch trees is to keep them vigorous and in the best possible growing condition.

Bluetongue disease

Until recently, Canada was free of bluetongue, a virus disease of ruminants.

This country's first outbreak occurred in a ranching area in Southern British Columbia that is now under quarantine. All cattle, sheep and goats there are being tested for the disease and infected animals slaughtered.

Agriculture Canada's Health of Animals branch veterinarians are confident that the bluetongue outbreak can be contained and the disease eliminated from Canada. They have found no infections in other Canadian cattle and are continuing tests of animals in areas along the United States border from British Columbia to Ontario.

Restoring Canada's bluetongue-free status is important to Canadian cattlemen. Semen exports to Australia and Great Britain and cattle exports to Britain have been cut off by these countries because of the presence of bluetongue in B.C.

Bluetongue is a foreign virus disease of ruminants, usually more serious in sheep. Depending on the virus strain, sheep losses may be 20 to 50 per cent. Survivors lose their wool and ewes often become sterile.

Cattle don't appear to be seriously affected by the disease.

Bluetongue is spread by biting flies - - in Canada by a species of midge. The midge feeds on the blood of an infected animal and transmits the virus by biting a healthy animal. Because of its dependence on midges, the disease usually dies out during the winter in the northern United States and Canada. In the southern United States, the disease lingers all year creating a pool of infection from which bluetongue spreads out in spring.

Agriculture Canada has sent a team of entomologists to British Columbia to study the midge - bluetongue relationship.

Cattlemen have expressed fears that bluetongue could linger in the wildlife population, making it a continuous source of infection. The disease hits deer severely, killing most infected animals. Because most infected wild animals die and survivors don't carry the virus, veterinarians believe wildlife will not be a threat if the disease is eradicated in cattle.

Through the cooperation of British Columbia wildlife officials, the wildlife population is being sampled.

Bluetongue originated in South Africa, spread through that continent and eventually to the southern United States, where the first cases were reported in the early 1950's.

Ryley news items

by Joyce Gladue

Summertime is a nice time for surprise visits from old friends and relatives.

Ezra and Lena Reil received word from Goose Bay, Labrador on July 12th, that Lena's cousin, Henry Shouse, who she hadn't seen since the summer of 1934 and his wife, Bella, who is a daughter of a Scot that they would be coming through Ryley on July 14. Henry's mother was Bertine Flotree, a daughter of a pioneer family from South Dakota, Mr and Mrs Jacob Flotree, and Rab Flotree was his uncle. He is related to Liplo's, Vergettes, and Helgeland families. After their pleasant visit in Ryley, Henry and Bella left for B.C., and then on to Seattle, Spokane, California and over to [illegible], South Dakota, where he grew up. While he was here, he was most interested in the "Beaver Tales" book, so he bought one to show his Flotree relatives while he visits them in the U.S.

Earl Hjelter, of Calgary spent some time with his mother who lives south of Ryley.

David and Ella Reil of Trochu, were visiting relatives in Ryley and Tofield last week.

Fred and Edna Johnson, from Fort Sask., were in Ryley visiting friends.

Darcy Anderson, grandson of Mr and Mrs Elmer Anderson, is visiting his aunt Podruzny and his cousins in Camrose.

Lena Hjelter is making her home in the Tofield Lodge, after spending sometime in the Tofield Hospital.

Last week, 51 youngsters between the ages of four to twelve enjoyed five days at the Ryley Seventh-day Adventist Vacation Bible School. A busy and varied program of songs, Bible stories and crafts kept the children and leaders occupied every morning from 9-12. Friday evening, parents and friends were invited to a program presented by the children. Then each child gathered up his Bible workbook and crafts to take home. This type of program is hoped to be continued during the fall in a weekly neighborhood Bible club.

Walter Valentine Klawitter, formerly of Ryley, who was a resident in Central Park Lodge, passed away in hospital at the age of 82.

Predeceased by his wife, Bertha in 1970, one brother and three sisters, he leaves to mourn his loss his son, Edwin of Edmonton, his daughter, Mrs Clara Kozack of Ryley; four grandchildren, Geraldine (Mrs Garry Kerhane) of Tofield, Evelyn Kozack of Edmonton, Sandra (Mrs. Barry Semuk) of Calgary, and Neil Klawitter of Edmonton; two great-grandchildren, Trevor and Michelle Kerhane of Viking, sisters, Annie of Fawcett, Rose and Helen of Tofield, and one brother, Johnny of Ryley. The funeral was held on Tuesday.

Fiddleheads grow here

Have you ever eaten fiddleheads? Do you know what fiddleheads are?

A fiddlehead is a type of fern that grows wild in Alberta's Lesser Slave Lake area. Since it is the first vegetable-type plant to appear in the spring, it has always been in great demand by local residents at the end of a long, cold winter.

Fiddlehead ferns grow in the creekbed, all round Lesser Slave Lake and are very rich in both minerals and vitamins. They can be eaten raw, steamed, baked and fried or in a cheese sauce or ice cream!

When eaten as a green vegetable their flavor is a cross between that of asparagus and broccoli. They remain fresh for at least four or five days after having been picked, and they can be canned or frozen.

Fiddlehead ferns are now being marketed in northern Alberta by Home Grown Products, located at Driftpile. Driftpile is about 200 miles northwest of Edmonton on the south shore of Lesser Slave Lake.

Home Grown Products was recently established by six people who are interested in promoting natural foods. They sell such things as wild teas in tea bags, wild mint, yarrow, rose hips, herbs and vegetable seeds which have been specially adapted to Alberta's northern climate by local amateur plant breeders. Many of the products sold by Home Grown Products are reported to have medicinal properties.

Four of the partners are employed in full time, small-scale farming. A fifth is building up a thriving wooden toy manufacturing business. He makes all the toys himself, while his wife makes a large variety of stuffed toys. All the toys are known as "Fun Farm Toys."

The sixth partner, Dale Rogers, is in the process of setting up an herbage and a tree nursery. He plans to experiment with various tree varieties that he thinks can be adapted to growing conditions in the northern part of the province.

Dale is a native of Prince Edward Island who came west several years ago. He took his B.Sc. in biology at the University of Alberta and then moved to Driftpile where he has spent the last three years. Being a Maritimer he knows all about fiddlehead ferns because they grow in New Brunswick and are considered a great delicacy in the Maritimes.

In 1975, their first year of operation, Dale and his partners picked about 100 pounds of fiddleheads and marketed them through the High Prairie farmers' market for $1 a pound. So great was the demand that a few minutes after they appeared on the counter, people were being turned away empty-handed.

Dale says "The main production period for fiddlehead ferns is from the beginning of May to the end of June. Yields vary according to environmental conditions, and, for this reason, it is difficult to assess yields in terms of pounds per acre. However, the more you pick them, the more they produce, and they like shady, moist conditions."

This year Home Grown Products hopes to sell their fiddleheads to wholesale and retail outlets in Edmonton. At the present time Alberta imports this delicacy from New Brunswick.

Dale plans to mimeograph a fiddlehead recipe book which will be distributed, at cost, through the High Prairie farmers' market and to anybody else who wants it. He says he is also prepared to provide a pamphlet on the other products sold by Home Grown Products if there is a demand for such information.

The address to write to for the fiddlehead recipes, which will be available in fiddlehead season, is Dale Rogers, Home Grown Products, Driftpile, Alberta.

PLAYGROUND

The Tofield Playground has been very busy the past week.

Last Thursday evening, we put on a Gong Show and a version of the play, "Snow White and the 13 Dwarfs."

Everyone is welcome to our shows. Friday morning we went to Tofield Stables. For the first while, retired jockey Ron Burrell showed us around the stables, and we watched Gary Hilkewich put the horses through their swimming exercises.

After which we followed Dave Coleman (the owner) out to the track, where Doug Risner, the trainer, took some kids for a ride.

We also met Jim Wiggins, the farm manager and Dr. Peter Tsang who performs acupuncture on the horses.

I'd like to thank all the people at the stables and Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Moffat.

RE—USE OIL?

What do we do with used oil? It's usually discarded with little consideration for either the environment or resource conservation. Most often, it is dumped in the garbage, sewer, on ground as dust and weed controller, or burned.

Waste oil is a problem. Open burning is not allowed in this province. Discarding it into sanitary sewers may affect the water, breaking clean water Regulations, and discharge on either public or private property is prohibited under the Litter Act.

RECYLCE OIL SERVICES

There are several oil collection agencies in the province which have been formed to alleviate this problem of waste oil. "Recycle Oil Services" is one such organization. They can assist you with the installation of underground tanks or drums, and then your free pickup service is just a telephone call away.

The waste oil is transported to a refinery where it is processed. As it is the additives, not the base product, which are broken down with use, the oil is stripped and made ready for marketing as a mineral oil. Or, new additives are blended in to produce either car journal oil or diesel engine oil and sold to railway companies.

For more information, call Recycle Oil Services at Edmonton, 465-1633 (Alta Consumer - Summer)

6,200 attend Bruce Stampede

by Don Fleckenstein

Approximately 6,200 people assembled under sunny skies on Sunday to enjoy the 64th annual Bruce Stampede.

The weather was ideal, a slight breeze and occasional breaks when the sun slipped behind a cloud kept everyone quite comfortable.

People gathered early on the main street of Bruce to view the parade led by Miss Rodeo Canada, Marianne Cole of Wetaskiwin and Bruce Stampede Queen, Tammy Miciak of Sherwood Park.

The parade boasted real variety – well groomed horses, colorful floats, antique cars, Scottish pipers, decorated bicycles and even John boy taking Grandma Walton to the Bruce Stampede.

The Morris Erickson family who received the Alberta Farm Family award were riding on the Bruce Agricultural Society float.

The rodeo events began at 2 p.m. and spectators were treated to a four-hour show in the arena followed by horse and pony chuckwagon races. Jack Daines was in the announcer's stand.

Lynn Jessen from Cardston picked up the Viking Tommy Branch all-around cowboy trophy and topped the Horseback Riding, marking a [illegible] a horse named Last Buck.

The Saddle Bronc event was taken by Ron Wilson of Queensland, Australia with a score of 74, while Jim Brown of Hussar took home top money in the Bull Riding with an 86. Ron Ostrem, the 1975 steer wrestling champion from Carseland, topped the dogging with a time of 5.2 which earned him $366. Earl Bourgerville of Pincher Creek grabbed the purse in the Calf Roping contest by tying his calf in 9.6 seconds and Ken Gunthner of Medicine was the Wild Horse Race. The rough and ready stock was provided by Vold Rodeo.

Rodeo clown Bruce Pappas and his donkey proved a real crowd-pleaser. Bruce endeared himself to many a lady when he jumped over the fence for the express purpose of giving her a kiss and his demonstration of his "automobile" brought many chuckles.

Crown Amusements had an excellent midway on the grounds with suitable rides for small children and a couple which were a bit more daring for the big kids. The Moon Walk appeared to be extremely popular with the younger crowd. The games of chance were also kept busy by those who dreamed of making their fortunes in one day.

The Tug-of-War matches staged at intermission proved to be a riot. Sherwood Park defeated Ryley in the first big pull, thanks to their fine anchorman, while Bruce managed to get by Holden in the second match. Bruce and Sherwood Park met for the big final and the local boys put forth a supreme effort to topple the Sherwood Parkers and keep the trophy here.

The Horseshoe Tournament had a big entry again this year but despite the fine competition, Peter Wilkinson and George Prytlan emerged victorious and walked away with the hardware. Wilkinson took Stensrud out in the semi finals of the A event, then went on to win against Smith and Griffith to take the A event. D. Juffer ded up taking the B and C events to go against Wilkinson who comes from Islay, was the champ of the day.

Hungry Stampede fans managed not only to devour hundreds of hot dogs and hamburgers but made short work of 600 pounds of barbecued beef. There was a long line-up but it moved quickly and the meal was ample to satisfy even the most severe hunger pangs.

The Pony Race and the Free For All drew a large crowd of spectators. In the Pony Race, Eugene Murphy of Fernlee crossed the finish line first, with Anita Abbott of Sherwood Park second, Dean Babbitt of Bruce third and Bonnie Babbitt of Bruce fourth. The Free For All saw two horses owned by Archie Sauers of Viking take first and second place while Eugene Murphy captured third spot and Ken McKinney of Viking was fourth.

Twenty-seven pony chuckwagons competed for the $1[illegible] purse but at this time the names of winners are not available.

The Saturday evening activities in connection with the Stampede were also deemed successful. A small but enthusiastic crowd attended the gymkhana organized by the Salsbury club. Teddy Field of Sherwood Park was the big winner of the evening. Two local riders also did very well in the events. Bonnie Babbitt placed first in pole bending, third in stakes and along with brother Dean captured third spot in the Rescue Race. Dean Babbitt claimed first in both pole bending and stakes. The fireworks which followed the gymkhana events were not only enjoyed by those at the grounds but also by those who had gathered at the Recreation Centre for the dance.

A supper to honor the Queen contestants and their parents was hosted by the Stampede Assoc executive on Saturday night before the dance. All guests received complimentary tickets to the dance and the Stampede Queen contestants' ticket sales for 1978 broke all previous records and the girls are to be commended on their fine effort.

The Stampede dance was a smashing success with some 700 lively people making the most of the excellent music provided by The Travelers.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Queen at midnight. Tammy Miciak of Sherwood Park was crowned and congratulated by last year's queen, Bonnie Simmonds. Marie Chrystian was runner up. The girls, Tammy Miciak, Marie Chrystian, Tara Christensen and Linda Kutiak, were presented with luggage, cowboy hats and cheques for 10 percent of their ticket sales. Queen Tammy received a special trophy and [illegible].

The three winners of the draw were all out-of-towners with Nancy Wilts of Sherwood Park the lucky recipient of $200 J. Antos of Viking is $100 richer and the consolation prize of $50 went to Marlene Nelson of Bawlf.

Missing gun dangerous

The firing of a gun taken in a theft could prove costly and possibly fatal, if the gun is fired, according to RCMP.

Tom Bodnar of Shonts had his truck demolished on Saturday when he missed a turn on the Round Hill Road. The mishap occurred about 3 a.m. When he returned to the scene at 8:30 a.m. among the items missing was a rifle.

As a hobby, Mr. Bodnar handcrafts rifles. This particular model was a Remington Rod 788 custom built Monte Carlo stock 243 calibre with self-loaded heavy-loaded shells.

Although the rifle looks to be in good working condition, it is not. It has been assembled, but the assembly has not been completed and it would blow up if fired, seriously injuring and possibly killing the person doing the firing.

While the thief - thieves might attempt to fire the gun, it is also possible it might be sold to some innocent person who could receive a serious injury if the gun was fired.

The thief - thieves who took Mr Bodnar's gun also helped themselves to many other items that were in the truck.

Missing on his return to the scene were a cassette stereo radio and speakers, western style seat covers, a hunting knife, a filleting knife, and a headliner for the cab.

When the thief discovered that it was impossible to remove a rifleers' band radio from the cab, the radio was completely demolished.

Powerline championship is on the line tonight

The deciding game to determine the 1978 champions of the Powerline Baseball League will be played this evening (Thursday) in Bardo.

Bardo Athletics and Camrose Roadrunners are deadlocked at a game each in the best of three series. This evening's game will start at seven o'clock.

Bardo edged Camrose 8-6 in the series opener which was played in Bardo on Friday after being postponed for one day because of rain.

Camrose led 3-0 after four innings but Bardo came back with six runs in the next two innings to take the lead and clinch the victory.

Bob Pashaug picked up the win with relief help from Ken Stauffer. Together, they allowed eight hits. Olson gave up 11 hits in taking the loss.

Bob Pashaug aided his own cause at the plate by going two for three while Warren Stauffer was three for five. C. Stang and D. Swanson hit home runs in the losers.

The Camrose game played in Camrose on Tuesday evening was a slugfest, with Camrose winning 15-8 in a game that was called after seven innings because of darkness.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (BT) — One of the greatest dangers during the coming months is that the country will become bogged down in discussing details of the legislative proposals Prime Minister Trudeau has made for changing the Canadian constitution. Fight about the detail, and the philosophy behind the package, may become accepted by implication. That philosophy represents deep basic change to the national fabric of the nation which most Canadians do not want.

During the past 10 years, more and more lawyers from the Quebec bar have joined the federal justice department to work in the drafting of legislation. The background of those men is rooted in the civil code of Quebec, which comes from the republican Napoleonic Code. Canada lives under British common law coast to coast for criminal matters, and civil common law for all provinces save Quebec.

Basic difference between Napoleonic codified law and common law is great. Under common law, individuals are presumed to have all rights which are not specifically taken away from them by law. You can't hatchet your neighbor, for example, because the law says you can't. Codified law, on the other hand, presumes no rights for the citizen, except those specifically conferred by law. There's no flexibility and the system involves extremely complex legislation with matching bureaucratic structures to administer the letter of the law. The spirit of the law becomes much less important.

Critics of the government in Ottawa, some of them senior Liberals, I might add, point to the fact that the complex structures of codified law are already appearing in our legislation, creating enormous difficulties in administration.

The ultimate example of this is the draft legislation put forward by the prime minister for constitutional reform. It's a nightmare, because of the detail. For critics to attack constitutional proposals on the basis of those details would fail to secure the fact that deep and fundamental change for Canada is intended in this document.

No single government has the right to manipulate such changes into law, particularly when that government is in the dying stages of its mandate.

Cut the fences

Canada's provinces are in dire need of pulling down the fences that are being erected between one another, or we'll quickly turn into a group of small balkan states.

Because of Quebec's recent move to restrict construction jobs to citizens of the province, it's easy to blame them as Premier Davis of Ontario seems to be doing, and to claim that only by retaliating the same way can the workers of Ontario be protected.

Particularly in times of high unemployment, (and Quebec is worse off than Ontario), this kind of protection for the local worker gets a lot of support.

But it can sap our national strength at the same time. And it's not just the Quebec-Ontario confrontation that we're thinking of.

There are numerous instances where provincial tenders offer a certain level of protection, say a five or ten per cent range, to workers from the province, sometimes extending down to a city. There are instances where production quotas, such as eggs, or turkeys, or other products, have been set with borders in mind.

Alberta's Agricultural Minister Marvin Moore rightly warned recently that production quotas in a number of areas governed by marketing boards were being set so strictly, and without regard to Alberta's growth situation, that Albertans might be forced in self protection, to pull out from the entire marketing program. He's right, of course, although probably all that would follow would be the imposition of new provincial marketing boards and quotas.

The real point is, from the start of our country, we have been something like the Common Market of the European Economic Community . . . we were a hundred years ahead of time, in fact. But just as no member of the EEC can unilaterally establish barriers against the products of other members, neither can the provinces of Canada afford to see such walls erected.

Our continued existence as a nation depends on finding some other means of protecting our members in their vital or highly sensitive areas, and pulling down the fences.

Area companies

Did you know that you can almost completely stock your larder with products processed in or near Edmonton?

According to Barbara Morin, area of Alberta Agriculture's marketing officers, the diversity of products processed here ranges all the way from appetizer sausages to ice-cream. Staples include meats, dairy products, fresh vegetables and poultry. Honey, fish, flour and cereals are also produced in the Edmonton area. Among the 'unique' food products are liquor, vinegar, spices, health foods, such as pizza; and popcorn.

Fine beers and ales are processed at several breweries in Edmonton, and pickled eggs, which go so well with beer, are produced at Two Hills, 90 miles east of the city.

"Sanitation and food safety are also assured as all processing plants to ensure that only quality products are marketed", Mr. Morin, says. "All products are subjected to federal government regulations regarding size and quality, and only the best reach the retail shelf. Liquid honey, for example, must not contain more than a certain percentage of moisture; and all meat packers are continually inspected to ensure that they meet grading and health standards".

Because carbon monoxide is lighter than air, keep close to floor level when attempting to reach the casualty Turn off the source of danger, open windows and doors, then remove the casualty as quickly as possible Start artificial respiration immediately if breathing is failing or has stopped When breathing returns to normal, place the casualty on his side with head back to keep the air passage open Obtain medical aid.

Warning for stolen cars

A new anti theft electronic car alarm system is being introduced to the Canadian automotive market by Robert Bosch (Canada) Limited

According to the latest available statistics more than a million cars are stolen every year in North America, about 160,000 of them in Canada Half of these never turn up again

A feature of the new alarm is that it can easily be installed on any vehicle, with a 12 volt electrical system.

Technically, the new anti theft system is an electronic warning device, which when triggered sets the horn sounding and renders the car in operative

The system is controlled by a water-proof keytype alarm switch When it is turned on, the alarm is triggered by various contact switches located on all doors, hood and trunk

It is also activated if the thief tries to bridge the ignition, or if any of the alarm wires are tampered with The system can be extended to also protect car stereos and C B units

Horn Flies Cause Substantial [illegible]

If you have not treated your cattle to protect them against horn flies, you could be losing a lot of money

A research project carried out on sandhill range cattle in Nebraska in 1974 showed the average weight of 287 steer calves from a treated cow herd was 386.66 pounds compared with 373.74 pounds for calves from a group of untreated animals. Since the average weaned steer calf price increase for the calves from the treated cows was about $5.75 per calf. The cost of treating the cows ranged from 90 cents to $1.10 per animal, depending upon the type of bag and product used, etc. Hence, the return from each $1 spent to achieve horn fly control was about $4.75.

Since horn flies do not usually attack calves in any number, unless the fly population on the older animals is extremely high, the higher gains recorded for the calves from treated cows are believed to have resulted from their getting more milk than calves from untreated [illegible]

Although treatment against horn flies should be started in the spring, it is not too late to do something about the problem now. There are a number of ways of treating cattle, one of which is the dust bag. It is one of the more practical, efficient and economical [illegible]

To use this form of treatment, it will probably be necessary to fence off the area surrounding the watering place or the salt lick so that the cattle can only reach it through one entrance. You should hang a large canvas-covered dust bag (available commercially) across the entrance so that it can swing freely. It should be low enough to ensure that the cattle will have to bump it with their shoulders to get through the entrance. It should also be large enough to cover the width of the entrance, and it should be hung with rope rather than wire because rope is easier on the bag

Some people believe that dust bags will work just as effectively when used on a free choice basis. The only way to guarantee effective control is through the forced use of a dust bag

The reason so many commercial cattlemen are losing so much production through horn flies is because the cattlemen do not realize that the flies, in addition to interrupting feeding, are continually taking blood from the cattle. The flies feed mainly on the belly line of the animals and take up to 10 meals of blood per day

In case you are wondering how you can tell whether your cattle are being attacked by horn flies or some other type of fly, here is a description of [illegible]

Horn flies are similar to house flies except that they are about half the size. On warm days they are most frequently observed sitting on [illegible] feated cattle and are especially prevalent on bulls [illegible] on their wings, they give the appearance of a shiny surface from a distance

Horn flies spend all their time on the host animal except for a short period when they leave to lay their eggs. These are laid in the manure as soon as it is dropped. The flies then return to the host animal. On a cool day they are more evident on the sides of the animal than on its back

Research carried out at the federal experimental station at Lethbridge confirms that economic losses from horn flies in this province are very substantial and that the provincial government is carrying out a number of farm trials in central and southern Alberta to test the effectiveness of various types of dust bags and insecticides

Accident claims Ryley farmer

by Joyce Gladue

A farm accident last Wednesday (July 25th) claimed the life of a Ryley District man.

Forty-four year old Marvin Lehman was operating a swather, which broke down. When he attempted repairs, he got caught in the machine and was killed instantly.

Mr Lehman had lived all of his life in the Ryley - Tofield area.

He is survived by his wife, Dolores; two sons, Kevin, and Wesley, a daughter, Rose; his father and step-mother, Joseph and Mary Lehman, all of Ryley, one sister, Hilda Purser of Edmonton, and three brothers, Earl of Edmonton, Harley of Tofield, and Larry of Ryley.

Funeral services were held at the Salem Mennonite Church on Saturday, with Rev Paul Voegtlin, of Edson, officiating.

Pallbearers were Eldon Boettger, Marvin Boettger, Roy Reist, Julius Turi, Donald Yoder, and Kenneth Zook.

Church has jubilee

The weekend of July 8th and 9th was a special event for the congregation and former members and friends of the Tofield Gospel Church. (formerly known as the Tofield Mennonite Brethern Church)

The church had the priviledge of celebrating its golden jubilee with a time of Thanksgiving and praise to God for His goodness, and also a time of reunion for former members and friends who had come to share the event with the present congregation.

On Saturday evening, there was an outdoor reunion with time for sports, and a wiener roast.

For Sunday services, the former pastor, Rev H H. Epp of Vancouver, B C was in attendance as well as two former Tofield M B church members, Dr A J Klassen of the Mennonite Biblical seminary of Fresno, California and Rev. John Klassen, pastor of the Hepburn, Sask., Menn Brethern Church.

Kind words of greeting were brought to the church from Ed Regehr, on behalf of the mayor, Dr W H. Freebury, and from representatives of most of the local churches.

The Tofield Mennonite Brethern Church was first organized with 14 charter members on March 4th, 1923.

The congregation consisted largely of families who had recently fled the revolution torn homeland of Russia, and had found an open door and safety in Canada. Their desire was to fellowship around the word of God and teach it to their children as well.

The group's first minister was Rev. Abe Friesen. At first they had their services in the various homes of the Trent Ranch eleven miles north of Tofield.

As the majority of families moved to farm in the Lind brook area services were held alternately in Lindbrook and Woodlands schools during the years 1927 to 1946.

In 1946, a church was built on a property six miles west of Tofield.

This building, with several additions, served the congregation well until 1963 when an enlarged congregation required more room. A new church was built just south of Tofield off Hwy 14. It was dedicated in August, 1983 and this building still serves the present congregation.

"Give Treflan a summer job on your farm
"Treflan, the hard-working herbicide. You already know what it can do in oilseed crops for pre-emergent spring clean-out of wild oats, wild millet and several of the broadleaf weeds. And maybe you've used Treflan in the fall, to get the jump on next year's weed control where you plan to sow rape.
"But now you can safely apply and incorporate Treflan in July and August, to keep the summerfallow black and weed-free with less discing, harrowing, cultivating or rod weeding. And less tillage means an immediate saving on time, labor and fuel costs."
Treflan, used in the summertime, not only does a good summerfallow job; it also prepares the land for maximum weed control in next spring's oilseed crops.

Record crowds expected at Camrose's 70th Fair

Record crowds are expected at Camrose's 70th annual agricultural fair which opens a three-day stand on Monday. Already, Fairground facilities are bulging at the seams with a record entry list, and Agricultural Society officials have spent the last week juggling space in an attempt to find enough room to handle all of the entries. In fact, some entries in the horses' competition have had to be returned because of a lack of space. Normally used for commercial displays, the Drill Hall may be used for beef cattle entries because there is simply no other place to put [illegible]

This year's Fair will have an unofficial opening on Sunday when a number of events have been scheduled.

Commercial displays have been moved to the curling rink while the grandstand show will be held outdoors, in front of the grandstand. Afternoons, the show will precede the pony chariot races, and in the evenings, the show will follow the pony chuckwagon races.

The official opening ceremonies will take place just prior to Monday night's grandstand show.

Involved in the official opening will be Mayor Rudy [illegible] of the City of Camrose, Reeve Arlen Adams of the County of Camrose, Gordon Stromberg, MLA; Arnold Malone, MP; and the Hon. Jack Horner, MP.

Fair officials have indicated that this year's horticultural exhibits will be the best seen in recent years. In addition, entries in the school competition are up and the domestic entry list, for all categories, has shown an increase in the number of com[illegible]

The Alberta Percheron Show will highlight a record number of entries in the horse competitions which has already seen officials forced to turn back a number of potential entries because of a space lack.

Fair officials were delighted, last week, to learn that construction on 53 Street will be halted during the three-day Fair to allow the street to be used by vehicular traffic. Had the street remained closed huge traffic bottlenecks had been expected.

Various awards are presented on Wednesday night, prior to the grandstand show with the most sought after award being the Farm Family Award, presented annually by Camrose Auction, for the family making the best showing in the different categories of competition.

There are a number of [illegible] which include the popular tractor pull, sheep shearing, puppet show for children, and a horse pulling competition.

Black powder shoot to go this weekend

Over one hundred shooters are expected in Camrose this coming weekend when this city hosts the Provincial Black Powder championships.

The two-day championship shoot will be held at the outdoor range of the Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club on Saturday and Sunday.

The club's outdoor range is located south of the city. To get to the range, go south on 50 Street for three miles and then go one-half mile west. Signs will be posted.

This will be the second major shoot held in Camrose in three years. In September of 1976, the Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club hosted the national championships.

Although a considerable number of events will be held during the two-day shoot, [illegible] pressure since they will be allowed to compete in the different [illegible] vience.

Because of this method of operation, it is likely that shooting in all of the different events could be taking place all of the time during both [illegible].

Novelty events are expected to attract considerable attention. There will be prizes awarded for the best costumes worn by both men and women.

Some of the novelties that will be offered as special attractions will include tomahawk and knife throws, as well as events for junior [illegible].

While the Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club is hosting the championships, all events are being organized and supervised by the Provincial Black Powder Association.

Some of the different competitions will include percussion pistol and rifle, cap and ball revolver, flintlock pistol and rifle, B.P. cartridge rifle and pistol, and smooth [illegible].

The public is invited to attend either or both days of competition.

Garden Club takes tour

[illegible] Club members, and non-members, enjoyed their trip to Edmonton on July 18th.

The first stop was to tour Robert Simonet's large garden with his lily field, strawberries, raspberries, fruit trees, vegetables, flowers and also his green houses, where everyone had a taste of his grapes.

[illegible] was eaten before going to visit Mr. and Mrs. George Shewchuk's lovely rose garden.

On the way home, we stopped at Mr. and Mrs. Robert Berreclith's to see their garden, where we all enjoyed lunch before returning home.

The first Farmer's Market was held at the Community Hall last Thursday.

There were only five tables, but members felt it was very successful with the fresh garden vegetables, strawberries, honey, eggs, jam, baking, cut flowers, plants, etc. that were sold.

The next Farmer's Market will be on August 24th, at 2:00 p.m.

Since the June meeting the association had conducted a successful training seminar in [illegible] for some seventy people who are working in various tourist information centres throughout the zone during the summer, and concluded the third annual essay contest among grade nine students.

B.R.T.A. was represented at the official opening of the new tourist information centre at Wetaskiwin on June 17, and at yet another such facility opened at Sherwood Park on June 27. As well, Mrs. Clemens participated in the Alberta Country Vacations Seminar in Camrose on June 21.

A delegation met with officials of Travel Alberta to iron out problems with the Stamp Around Alberta project on June 21. Mrs. Clemens had attended a "Zone Managers' Meeting" on June 27, and yet another delegation had attended a Directors' Meeting of the Travel Industry Association of Alberta on June 28 followed by a "Cabinet Presentation" later the same day. On the day before the meeting (July 19) a delegation from B.R.T.A. had appeared before the Review Board of [illegible]ce Program to discuss the application for funding for 1979.

During the month B.R.T.A. had participated in two parades - - Wainwright on June 24 and Leduc on July 1.

While all this was going on the day-to-day work of filling orders for T-shirts, post cards, literature and winding up the membership renewal work was looked after. In three months Mrs. Clemens reported that she herself had logged 755 hours on association work to say nothing of the hundreds of hours of volunteer work done by others.

Most important part of the meeting was the time taken up by Brochure Chairman, Leon D'Albertanson of Wainwright. He requested and received direction in connection with literature to be produced for the 1979 promotion. Particular attention was given to plans for the next editions of the Tour Guide and Zone Map. It is likely that the association will be requiring 30,000 of each [illegible].

Most encouraging news released at the meeting was the excellent state of affairs in connection with membership support. This now stands at 707, an increase of 15 percent over the final figure of 610 [illegible].

The next meeting of B.R.T.A. will be held in Wainwright on August 17, 1978.

[illegible] Friday afternoon for home. We didn't have any leftover kids hanging around, but I sure do have a lot of clothes leftover. If your child is missing something, please come and pick the item up. We are gathering up so much lost and found items, we are soon going to have to have a white elephant sale!!

Gun Safety — Anyone Interested?

Are there any young people interested in taking some tips on gun safety and use of a gun? There are a lot of gophers out, so you would have plenty of practice material after lessons!

Please call Colleen at 663-3730 if you are interested in taking a few pointers on guns. I don't set a program unless I hear from you.

Crops need rain

The need for rain for crops' growth is becoming more urgent, according to reports from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Loss from drought is already up to fifteen percent in some areas and, unless a good rainfall comes within the next few days, this rate could soar. In other instances, rain is needed to fill out grain heads.

Crops in Daysland, considered above normal up until last week, have deteriorated to normal conditions, except in two instances. Rye is still considered above normal while flax has dropped ten percent below normal.

Eighty percent of the rapeseed has reached the headed out stage while sixty percent of the barley and one-half of the [illegible] has reached a similiar stage of development.

With some rain falling last week, most crops in the Camrose area held their own, ranging from ten to fifteen percent below normal, with the exception of the rye crop which is considered to be normal.

Crops range from ninety to ninety-five percent headed, but rain is needed to fill out the heads.

Damage to crops from heat and drought ranges from ten to fifteen percent in the Hay Lakes region.

Wheat is five percent below normal while oats and barley are ten percent below, and rapeseed is considered to be only seventy percent normal.

All of the wheat has reached the headed stage with barley and rapeseed about ninety percent into this stage.

Over ten percent of the crop in the Holden region has already been lost to the drought, and crops are rapidly turning yellow from a lack of moisture.

Crops range from 80-90 percent of normal conditions and only thirty percent of the rapeseed has reached the headed stage with wheat and barley standing at only five percent.

Holden Agribition is ready for show

by Mrs. G.H. Tayler

No doubt you all have been reading these little blue Fair booklets that were mailed to you early in June and no doubt you have been doing some serious thinking about the many exhibits you will enter.

But in case some of you have been busy vacationing or entertaining holiday company, the Holden Fair Committee would like to remind you that now is the time to get out that blue booklet and scan the prize list.

The Holden Agribition is designed to be an educational event where many ideas are exchanged.

Your ideas are just as good as anyone so bring along as many as possible.

You may win some ribbons but if not, you will be well rewarded in the knowledge that you have helped to make this year's Agribition a successful one.

There will be a number of displays and demonstrations, both inside and outside the Complex, including some kiddies' attractions.

Members of the committee will be happy to assist you with the tagging of your entries. They can be brought in any time after 6:00 p.m. on Sunday, August 13th.

Remember, you are needed, your enthusiasm and your entries at the Agribition on August 14th.

Farm safety

The Alberta Safety Council reports that farm machinery accident statistics reveal the proper use of shielding or guards could have prevented most of the injuries.

A breakdown of the accident cases by the main object involved indicated that:

— belt and pulley (flywheel) were involved in one out of every five accident cases — "chain and sprockets, and augers were each involved in one out of every five accident cases — "power take-off components" were involved in one out of every seven cases.

When classified by cause or how the accident happened, results were as follows:

— "caught in or between" accounted for four out of every five cases reported — "struck by" accounted for 15 per cent of the cases.

More than two out of every three farm machinery accidents studied occurred because of the operator failing to completely shut off the machine before performing an inspection or other work on the unit or because he was operating the equipment without the proper shielding in place.

The Alberta Safety Council strongly recommends that the following safety practices be adhered to:

— be sure that all shields or guards are in place before a machine is started.

— replace any damaged or misplaced guards or shields.

— replace or secure all safety shields that you remove or open for access when making field repairs before restarting the operation.

— make certain that everyone is clear of the machine before starting power unit or activating any drive mechanism.

— always shut off the engine before leaving the operator's platform to adjust belts or chains or unplug a machine unless other wise specified in the operator's manual.

— wear until all power driven parts have stopped before attempting to inspect or service the unit.

— provide a temporary guard for knives when working near them.

— keep prompt vocation on till belts to reduce slippage and the temptation to manually 'help the pulley along' at high risk to the hands. Also adjust chains driven properly.

— keep hands free and clothing away from moving parts of the machine.

— stay clear when the machine is operating of such component parts as snapping or husking rolls, straw spreaders and choppers, cut turbines, augers, feed rolls, etc. which may be safeguarded for the proper function of the machine.

Ryley sets...

Exhibits for judging are to be at the Ryley Community Hall by noon on August 10. Judging of exhibits is to begin at 12:30 and displays will be open from 4-9 p.m. that day.

It is hoped that this change will make it easier for exhibitors and spectators, particularly those who work during the day and could attend only in the evening.

Various activities are planned for the afternoon.

A gymkhana will take place from 2-4 p.m. The popular children's pet show is scheduled for 4:30, with races to follow at 5:30.

Later in the evening, a tug-of-war is scheduled for 7:30 and a horseshoe tournament for 7:30 p.m.

Another change for the 1978 fair involves the introduction of trophies for aggregate point winners.

Trophies will be offered for individual, junior, senior and family aggregate point winners.

The points will be announced for placings in the various exhibits.

CHEESE MAKING ENZYMES

Canadian cheddar cheese makers have studied the enzymes in cheese separate curds and whey. But the change may be costing them money.

Agriculture Canada's Food Research Institute finds that the new enzyme breaks down more milk protein during the cheese making process than the enzyme used in the past. The result is less cheese from a given quantity of milk.

Lamb supply

A consistent year-round supply of fresh Alberta lamb is rapidly becoming a reality as sheep producers are now lambing their ewes from January to May.

However, Gordon Wells, formerly of Alberta Agriculture and now Manager of Lamb Processors Co-op, says there is still a need for more sheep feedlots in Western Canada to ensure a steady supply of properly finished fresh lamb, and for ewes that will breed every month of the year.

In an effort to fulfill this latter requirement, Agriculture Canada's research station at Nappan, Nova Scotia, has recently established a flock of Newfoundland sheep which is their natural environment breed all the year round.

As far as is known they are a combination of many breeds that have become part of the Newfoundland breed over a period of about 250 years. The director of the research station at St. John's, Newfoundland, believes that the main breeds involved are North Country Cheviots and Dorset Horns.

The scientists at Nappan are attempting to assess the breeding activity of the Newfoundland sheep under Nova Scotian conditions and to compare it with that of the cross-bred sheep in Lennoxville, Quebec, which have been bred for [illegible] out of season breeding. The scientists will also be comparing results obtained at Nappan with those obtained from a control flock at St. John's. It is possible that the cooler summer temperatures in Newfoundland may have something to do with the fact that the sheep in that province breed on a year-round basis.

The [illegible] obtained from both the Nappan and the Lennoxville flocks should help research workers in their efforts to incorporate this desirable trait into a new breed of sheep that will come into heat in any month of the year.

Once year-round breeding has become established in a commercial breed or cross-breed, the flock owner will be able to constantly control the time of year [illegible]

[illegible] like the Texel and Finnish Landrace show considerable breeding activity on a year-round basis, but, so far, no one has been able to maintain this trait well enough in any one breed or cross-breed to enable it to be used by commercial sheep producers. At the present time year-round breeding seems to reduce the frequency of "twinning" in a flock, while the ideal situation would be to have a breeding potential for 12 months of the year and a high percentage of twins.

The Village of Ryley does hereby declare Monday, August 7th, 1978, to be a Civic Holiday.

VILLAGE OF RYLEY

Last rites are held for Bert Tiedemann

Bert Tiedemann passed away suddenly on July 30 in the Tofield Hospital.

He was born February 3, 1901, in his parents' home, he farmed with his father until was married in 1940 to Alberta Herbert, and then resided on his own farm, near Tofield.

Through the years Mr Tiedemann was noted for his ability as a carpenter, building his own house, barn and other farm buildings out of poplar lumber, sawed from his own sawmill.

Perhaps he is best known as a musician, playing in his parents' band, then branching out on his own. During the war years, Bert, family and friends played every Saturday night at Lindbrook Hall for over four years straight, and on occasions earning as little as thirty-five cents for playing the whole night.

To the family, Bert was "The Inventor". When he was eighteen he built and performed on a three-swing trapeze. He also gave rides on his four-seater homemade ferris wheel, put to turning by human momentum, no electric [illegible]

If Bert couldn't find a tool to fit the job, he made one. Such as the homemade sawmill, lathe, plains and crooked wrenches, for thos hard to get at places.

Albert Tiedemann leaves to mourn his wife, Alberta; son, Don, daughters, Linda, Sheila and Sandra, and grandchildren, Joanna and Mark; his parents, Ed and May Tiedemann, brothers, Ralph and Art, sisters, Helen, Mrs Elsie Gray, and Mrs Vera Heitman; also many other relatives. He was predeceased by a granddaughter, Melanie in 1976.

Funeral services were held in the Tofield Gospel Church, with Rev. George Quiring officiating. Interment was in the Tofield Cemetery.

Bert's only known funeral request was to have his sisters-in-laws as pallbearers Honorary pallbearers were Mabel Hopf, Alice Blake, Isabele Riley, Jeanette Damburger, Norma Tiedemann, and Myrtle Tiedemann Pallbearers were Clayton Tiedemann, Reg Tiedemann, Larry Tiedemann, Glen Sargent, Doug Herbert, and Wilfred Damburger

Tea Dance raises $13,000

Funds of the Alberta Ballet Company were swelled by $13,000 when Mrs. Roslyn Sankeralli, chairman, and Mrs. Jeanne Lougheed, co-chairman turned over a [illegible] to Grahame Blundell, general manager of the ballet.

Mrs. Lougheed, right, is a native of Camrose, and known to many of the older citizens of the community. She grew up here as the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rogers.

The money was raised at the Sentimental Journey Tea Dance, held at the Chateau Lacombe the end of April. Over 300 people attended; and as a result of the great success of the dance, it is expected that a similar event will be held next year.

Lessen winter kill

Water your ornamental trees and shrubs thoroughly between now and freeze-up to minimize winter killing, advises Herman Oosterhuis who is in charge of the Alberta department of agriculture's tree planting program.

He explains that watering at this time is more important than at any other time of the year. Particularly in the case of pines, junipers and spruce. It is even more important if the tree or shrub was planted this year, or if it is growing in a dry [illegible] on the south or east side. Birch trees are another species that should be watered. Because of their shallow root system, they do not have access to deep subsoil [illegible] lot of rain most soil is very low in moisture at this time of year.

[illegible] and the plant is relatively dormant, [illegible] twigs, buds or needles to prevent them from drying out. A plentiful supply of moisture in the fall will enable the tree or shrub to withstand the drying force of winter winds and varying temperatures. Because evergreens retain their needles all winter, they are more vulnerable to winter [illegible] sing of the foliage than trees [illegible]

Mr. Oosterhuis says that a large percentage of ornamentals that winter killed last year, because the soil was very dry during the late summer and fall, could probably have been saved if they had been well watered before freeze-up. He recommends soaking each tree or shrub thoroughly about once a [illegible]

Pruning evergreens

June is the month to prune and shape most evergreen shrubs.

Herman Oosterhuis, Alberta Agriculture's tree specialist, points out that proper pruning is necessary to keep these plants healthy, attractive and within their allotted space in the garden.

Both spruce and pine should be pruned on the new growth rather than on the older wood. When the new growth is pinched off, buds form from which all subsequent growth will originate. This new growth helps the shrub bush out. When pruning is done on older wood, no buds will develop on the cut surface. A spruce hedge should be pruned only on the new growth for the same reason.

Mr. Oosterhuis does not recommend pruning tall-growing evergreens like Colorado spruce and lodgepole pine. He points out, however, that if one of these trees loses its leader (top) a new leader can be formed by forcing a top side branch into an upright position with a splint.

The mugo pine, a low growing shrub commonly planted close to building, often needs to be pruned back to keep its growth from getting out of control. If it is allowed to get out of control for even a year or two, the shrub quickly loses it shape and often becomes too large for its location. "The growth of this type of shrub" Mr. Oosterhuis says, "should be controlled by pinching the new sprouts or candles' back to within a fraction of the previous year's wood."

Junipers can be pruned any time during the spring and summer because the pruning is not confined to the new growth. However, when a branch is cut off, the cut surface should always be hidden by the foliage growing behind the cut. It is this foliage which will provide the future growth of the branch.

Cedars, often used for foundation planting, normally only require pruning for some additional shaping. The same pruning measures recommended for junipers apply to cedars.

LONG TERM INVESTMENT

A classroom talk 30 years ago by the USC's Lotta Hitschmanova, recently netted the agency $10 from a budding Winnipeg writer. She wrote, "You impressed me so much over the years that I decided I would tithe to the USC 10 percent of whatever I earned from writing." USC headquarters is at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS

Can be really exciting for kids, but not necessarily so for busy parents If the weather is good, kids can find lots to do, but rainy days can drag on Betty Birch Home Economist at Stettler offers these hints that might help in finding what to do when there's nothing to do

Bath Bubbles

Give your child a plastic drinking straw and a cup or can filled with soap flakes and water Children over two can learn to blow, not suck If you show them Put a tray under the cup because it will overflow Adding a tbs bit of cooking oil to the soap mixture will make the bubbles tough enough to float in the air A good place to play bubbles is the bathtub basement or outside

Macaroni Jewellery

String short pieces of macaroni on string like beads to make necklaces and bracelets Cellophane tape on the end of the string makes the tip stiff so it will thread easily The macaroni could be painted before it is strung to make the jewellery more beautiful

Play Dough

If the child is old enough to handle a dull knife, he could try shaping animals, boats or anything from a regular bar of soap

Play Dough

4 c flour, 1½ c water 1 c salt Add water to the dry ingredients, mix and knead until velvety Dough can be modelled, rolled, cut etc Place on a well-greased cookie sheet and bake at 250 degrees until the articles brown at the edges Water color or acrylic paints can be used to decorate the creations The dough will keep in a plastic bag in the fridge for about six months A suggestion to give a nice smell to the dough and to discourage children from eating it is to add a tablespoon of baby powder to the mixture

What would you do if

One mother plays this game with her kids when they are "hanging around" She asks What would you do if . . . a salesman came to the door and Mom was in the shower, or . . . you went hiking and thought you were lost?" She feels it gets her child's attention in a positive way by asking him to talk not listen, and develops his common sense Usually, she says, he has a pretty good answer If not, she's able to clear up any misconceptions She also advised that she has started it on to her older children For example, what would you do if you were at a drive-in movie and your date obviously didn't come to watch the movie She finds it a great way to communicate with her family

Shower Time Fun

What should I do with this fuzzy stuff I found inside the bathroom tissue?

I peeled all the bananas for my lunch next week

oh that! It's bubble bath I put it in the washing machine to make everything smell nice

You won't have much kids for your party tonight I already opened all the club soda

In case you're going to write letters, I licked all the envelopes

Hey mom! I figured out what to do about the ants in the kitchen I made a trail of honey to get them back out side

The herd has been purchased by Walter Jeram, part owner of the "Red Barn" near Bon Accord. He said the herd would be put on display in the grounds around the buildings and possibly butchering one on special occasions as the herd increases. Many large Eastern companies hold functions at the Red Barn and he thought buffalo meat would be an added attraction for them. The buffalo, which are not as tame as cattle, are easily agitated and harder to handle. For loading, the herd was separated, the calves from the cows and bulls, and loaded into three groups and it took 10 men two hours to load them. Louis Holden has also raised a number of mules on his farm during the years, several which were purchased some years ago by Al Oeming and are used in the "Mule Train" at Alberta Game Farm.

Louie Holden of the Bruce district, who has been raising buffalo for the past several years had recently disposed of the herd which now numbered 28 head, shipping 18 cows, 5 bulls and 18 calves, keeping just one young bull which has been halter broken. The herd has been purchased by Walter Jensen, part owner of the "Red Barn" near Sun Rv. He said the herd would be put on display in the grounds around the buildings and possibly butchering one on special occasions as the herd increases Many Range Riders companies hold functions at the Red Barn and he thought buffalo meat would be an added attraction for them. The buffalo, which are not as tame as cattle, are more agitated and harder to handle. For loading, the herd was separated, the bull, three cows and bulls, and loaded into three groups and it took 10 men two hours to load them. Louis Holden has also raised a number of mules on his farm during the years, several of which were purchased some years ago by Al Oensing and are used in the "Mule Train" at Alberta Game Farm

Curb, gutter program gets Ryley's approval

Second and third readings were given to a by-law authorizing the issuance of debentures for a curb and gutter program in Ryley

At a recent meeting of village council, members were told that the by-law had been given approval by the Local Authorities Board With such approval on hand, councillors gave the necessary final two readings and passed the by-law.

A letter received from the Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation authorized the issuance of a new debenture certificate amounting to $170,000 for construction of the new water treatment plant

Councillors agreed that the $170,000 debenture would complete the costing of the plant, as approval had already been received to use the surplus $61,737.35 left over from building the ground storage reservoir.

A signed agreement under the Street Assistance Program was received from Alberta Transportation.

Council rescinded two readings for a recently passed by-law and then proceeded to give the by-law two readings.

Rescinding the money by-law became necessary after Secretary-Treasurer R.C. Hovland told council that not enough members had been present when the original readings had been given Councillors agreed not to change the policy, at this time, in regards to the sale of unmetered water, and indicated that sales of water will be limited to domestic use only.

The next regular meeting of council was deferred until August 28th because the secretary-treasuer will be on holidays during the first part of the month.

Accounts submitted for payment were approved and other routine business matters were handled.

Minutes of a regular meeting held on July 10th were approved, with a minor change

Information for this news story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of a regular council meeting held on July 24th.

Preparations complete for Ryley's great Fair

by Joyce Gladue

Preparations are almost complete for the annual Ryley Fair to be held Wednesday, at the Ryley Community Hall.

A meeting of convenors was held Thursday evening to finalize plans and details to ensure another successful fair.

People will have the opportunity to participate in a variety of ways. Plans call for exhibits in many classes.

Those with a green thumb can share their talents through the horticultural area by displaying cut flowers, vegetables or fruits.

The cooks can enter in the baking and preserving classes.

Those handy with their hands have an assortment of classes to choose from - sewing, handicrafts and open hobbies.

Junior participants - those 17 years and younger - may enter in the special junior classes.

Following up a suggestion made last year, the fair will feature separate classes for seniors, including ceramics, crocheting knitting, leather work and quilts

The farmers are not left out either - the crop show features grain sheaves and grain samples

There is no entry fee for entering any class or activity Ribbons will be awarded to winners.

Something new this year is the awarding of trophies to the individual, family, junior and senior who accumulates the most points in the judging of exhibits. This is one way of recognizing those who help make the fair such a success.

Another new feature this year is the class for school activities Grade school children can enter in the penmanship or poster category The poster is to be along an agricultural theme, done on regular 8''x12'' paper

Besides viewing the exhibits, fairgoers will have other activities to watch and participate

The gymkhana goes from 2-4 in the afternoon, followed by the opening of the exhibits at 4 p m

By 4.30 p.m. all the various pets will have been washed, groomed and leashed for the children's pet show

Children's races are scheduled for 5.30 and a horseshoe tournament is slated to begin at 7 p.m

A display of brute force is next - the tug-of-war. Word has it that the fellows from south of town aim to win that beautiful handcrafted winners trophy Possibly this event could be an opportunity for the softball and baseball teams to decide on who has more strength.

Throughout the late afternoon and evening, refreshments will be available

Oldtimers will play

A team from Bardo-Tofield will be competing in provincial championship this coming weekend.

Bardo-Tofield Oldtimers will be going to Westlock on Saturday and Sunday to try and win the Twilite baseball championship, a crown they narrowly missed out on last year.

The team has been practising regularly for the past month and played a couple of exhibition games in Tofield during the past week.

Bardo-Tofield's first game will be played at 11.30 a.m. on Saturday morning against a squad from Highway 12 (Coronation, Castor).

Around the town

Bill and Elizabeth Davison have returned from an 11-day bus tour of England, Scotland and Wales, as well as a visit with Bill's cousin, Ralph in Birmingham.

They visited St. Paul's Cathedral, Windsor, Westminster Abbey, the Queen's home, Hollyrood House at Edinburgh and were able to watch the changing of the guards.

Gladys and Earl Brown attended the 20th Field Co. Royal Canadian Engineers reunion at Crooked Lake, Sask., last week.

Bardo wins Powerline crown

Bardo Athletics have won the championship of the Powerline Baseball League.

Bardo tripped Camrose Roadrunners 12-9 in the rubber game to win the best of three league finals and the championship, two games to one.

Four big runs in the bottom of the eighth inning brought Bardo from a 9-8 deficit into the lead, and the rally took so long before Camrose was able to stem the tide, that darkness set in and the game had to be called.

Bardo had won the opening game in the series by a score of 8-6 with Camrose rebounding for an 18-9 victory to deadlock the series

Ken Stauffer opened the bottom of the final inning by drawing a walk and was followed by Bob Foshaug who doubled.

Roadrunners then managed to get two out when Lyle Heiberg singled to knock in two runs and then scored himself when Don Boettger belted his second double of the contest.

Stauffer led the winners at the plate by going three for four while Brent Sawchuk posted a similiar record for the losers.

Stauffer picked up the win for Bardo when he relieved Bob Foshaug in the fifth inning.

Cam Sawchuk was charged with the loss. He had entered the game in the third inning in relief of Verlyn Olson. Sawchuk was himself relieved by Glen Nelson in the final inning.

Ron Foshaug aided Bardo's winning cause when he slugged a home run while Darren Stang and Cam Sawchuk of Camrose also hit four-baggers

Bardo had gained its berth in the league finals when they eliminated Holden in two straight games in one semi-final round.

Camrose's berth in the finals came after they had ousted the defending champions from Ryley two games to one in the other semi-final series.

During the past season, the new Powerline League champions from Bardo posted a 14-6-2 won-lost-tied record.

Final individual batting statistics for the team during the 1978 season are as follows:

Peter Ward's

Ottawa Viewpoint

OTTAWA (GF) — Among the sheaf of telegrams received by former Defense Minister James Richardson when he quit the Liberals was a wire which said simply: "Three cheers and a Tiger for you . . . The Toronto Liberals."

You might raise an eyebrow or two over the signature, but only if you don't know what's going on inside the Liberal Party. There are a growing number of party stalwarts expressing nervousness about the plans of the Prime Minister for constitutional reform.

Sure there is disagreement with the nuts and bolts of Mr Trudeau's ideas — the design for a reconstructed Senate, new rules for the Supreme Court — but it's philosophy and attitude which is proving to be the greatest stumbling block.

Jim Richardson's fight with the PM is based on what Richardson sees as Mr. Trudeau's attempt to make Canada into a bilingual country, with the Francophone tail wagging the Anglophone dog right down to the conjugation of irregular verbs. There may be some justification for Richardson's charges, [illegible] closely with the PM for eight years. You won't find many of the PM's opponents taking that line, though, because they are afraid they will be taken, at best, for red neck bigots.

When it comes to imposing Quebec-style codified civil law on the country by degrees, you'll find many who concede this is happening and consequently they are preparing a last ditch fight to stop it. No government in Canada has the mandate to abandon the nation's common law traditions in favor of republicanism. No government in Canada has the right to present specific and drastic changes, then force implementation of these changes under a time schedule deadline.

Mr. Trudeau has pleaded for non-partisan treatment of his constitutional ideas, but then he assured that the whole [illegible] will be totally charged [illegible] party politics. By his [illegible], he [illegible] be able to carry with [illegible] those of the party who are elected members of the House of Commons, particularly those who are office holders and hopefuls, but he is already creating huge gaps of support amongst those who follow the calling of politics by conviction.

The search for power can bend convictions and twist a man's personal philosophy. Constitutional change should never be dictated by [illegible] subject to such [illegible], but rather be conducted as Mr. Trudeau said in a non-partisan atmosphere — with no deadlines or power brokerage to mar the good will which all participants must bring to such discussions.

Edmonton scores

Long before the Commonwealth [illegible] are over, it's evident that Edmonton has scored a real winner in this entire program, hard though it was to pull it all off.

One of the most impressive factors lies in the point that the games facilities were built, almost exactly as planned, and almost within the original budget, all without huge deficits loaded onto other levels of government. There have been special means of financing, of course, including some of the revenues from lotteries, but there was none of the wildly escalating costs associated with another set of games in Canada not too long ago. Nor the reports of payoffs, and rip-offs.

As a matter of fact, one of the major reasons for the success of the games in Edmonton lies in the fact that so much of the work was done entirely voluntarily, and not by someone with an interest in spinning the job out.

Dr. Maury Van Vliet deserves, and is justly getting, a tremendously enthusiastic vote of gratitude for his sustained efforts, in masterminding the entire affair, for spark plugging it, for maintaining faith when even the stoutest heart might have wavered. And beyond Dr. Van Vliet, we're delighted to note tributes, though not sufficiently broadcast enough, for the work contributed by Dr. Ivor Dent, when, as Mayor of the city, he has the confidence and the vision to go out and sell the concept of the Games coming to Edmonton in the first place, against very real, very determined and very stiff opposition.

The end result is that Edmonton will wind up with some of the finest facilities in the entire country, which should help focus more and more attention on Edmonton as a centre for sports and other events.

And Edmontonians wind up with a new sense of pride in their own city, and its place in the sun in the future.

HOW TO GIVE PLAQUE THE [illegible]

Cleaning your teeth effectively is the most important thing YOU can do to keep your teeth and gums healthy for a lifetime. This is the second step to good dental health. (The first, as mentioned in a previous article, is prevention through regular dental examinations and [illegible].)

Correct brushing removes plaque and food particles that get trapped around the teeth and eliminate bad breath (halitosis) problems when done effectively. More specifically, proper brushing helps prevent cavities, especially in children, and gum (periodontal) disease in [illegible].

Plaque is the main cause of most dental problems. It is composed of saliva, bacteria, and decomposed food particles which stick to the teeth. If not completely removed daily, the bacteria in the plaque produces acids which dissolve tooth structures and cause cavities. Plaque also causes periodontal disease (pyorrhea) by producing chemicals which irritate the gums. If plaque is allowed to accumulate over a long period of time, it can harden to form calculus (tartar) which further irritates the gums. Calculus can only be removed by the dentist or his dental hygienist.

The irritation caused by plaque and calculus causes [illegible] and sore. This is the start of periodontal disease. Swollen gums which bleed easily are an early sign of this problem. Eventually pockets form between the teeth and gums and bone and tooth loss follows.

In order to properly remove plaque to prevent the above problems the right kind of [illegible] must be used. It should have soft nylon bristles with rounded ends, be flat along the top and small enough to reach all the tooth surfaces easily.

To brush teeth properly, the toothbrush should be held at a forty-five degree angle and the bristles placed where the gums and teeth meet. The brush is then gently vibrated in short back and forth strokes. All the inner and outer surfaces of the teeth should be brushed in this manner. To brush the insides of the front teeth, the brush should be held vertically, bristles angled toward the gums and small little circles made on each tooth. To clean the chewing surfaces, the brush is placed flat on the teeth and vibrated back and forth. It is best to brush on one or two teeth at a time, then move it on to the next teeth. A mirror can be used to make sure that the brush is being placed and angled properly.

It is ideal to brush after every meal (snacks too), but if this is not possible, brush thoroughly at least once a day to be sure to remove plaque and food particles. It's not quantity but quality brushing that gets the best results!

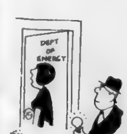
Although thorough brushing removes most of the bacterial plaque from the exposed surfaces of the teeth, the bristles don't reach all of the areas between the teeth. Dental Floss is a string-like material that helps remove trapped food particles and plaque that builds up in hard to reach areas such as between the teeth. It is in these areas between the teeth that decay and periodontal disease often begin. Proper instruction on flossing by a dentist or dental hygienist is recommended for the best results. By flossing, plaque and food debris can be removed and future problems are prevents.

Children cannot brush or floss their own teeth effectively. Continual help and supervision from their parents is necessary on a daily basis.

A fluoride [illegible] (toothpaste) can be used to help fight decay by making the tooth enamel more resistant to the acids found in bacterial plaque which causes tooth decay. Ask a dentist which fluoride dentrifice recognized by the Canadian Dental Association [illegible].

[illegible] can be used after regular brushing (not a special effort) to make sure that all the plaque has been removed from the teeth. They contain harmless red food coloring that temporarily stains plaque remaining on the teeth a bright red. Any stained areas indicate spots missed when brushing. Clean the teeth until all the stain has disappeared.

Next month "Too Sweet to Eat" will discuss the third step in preventing dental [illegible].



"Excuse me, sir. There's someone here that I think you should see."

Grain system decision

According to Bill Allan, writing for the Calgary Albertan June 1st issue, Cargill grain chose southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba points [illegible] in order to utilise a Gulf of Mexico export route for Canadian grain. The article also points out that Cargill (Canada) advocates a more open market system of grain trading parallel to the American export system. Presumably similar views are held by other multinational companies such as Continental Grain, because it was under such a system that these huge companies prospered and grew to dominate world grain trade.

Mr. Allan says that another Cargill strategy would abolish statutory rates for export grain. Of course this would be necessary before any company could begin to bargain with Canadian railroads for preferred rates in return for certain concessions. Higher east-west rates would make Canadian grain exports through New Orleans more attractive. Special rates for certain grain cargoes from specified shipping points carried in solid trains, could be attractive to a grain handler.

How the grain grower should feel is something else. If he is a large producer, located reasonably close to a shipping point potentially offering the features mentioned in the previous paragraph, he may be tempted. If the company offers to share the spoils with grain producers meeting its qualifications, many will go along. Of course some producers will not qualify and all producers may not always do so. They may not have a sufficiently large operation or their farm may be too remote. Perhaps the quality of grain, e.g., protein, may not be good enough from time to time.

If Bill Allan's projection is fairly accurate, and very strong, foreign owned interests are advocating a trend to the U.S. system, the threat is to all farmers, not just those near an Elm Creek or a Rosetown. At least some advisors to influential government ministers seem to have been persuaded that Canadian farmers and the organizations they own are incapable of maintaining an efficient, competitive grain handling system and that western Canada must import the technique and capital. If the result is eventually to have Canadian grain sold as American grain under the American export laws, no one should be surprised if smaller producers lose their right to an annual share of the market under the system visualized, perhaps they can be [illegible] out until a sale of the farm is [illegible].

The Budget salutes a daily newspaper which chose to interest itself in this development and try to analyze the trend. Since the business of selecting branch lines and equipping railroads reverted to governments, there have been too few critical examinations and attempts at disclosure. The search for an acceptable alternative to the Crow rates continues quietly, funded and supported in many ways. Decisions which are not reversible are being made every day for the majority of farmers. They have been referred to as the silent majority.

Care For House Plants at Vacation Time

If you do not have a babysitter for your plants when you go on your holidays this summer, here are some suggestions for solving your problem.

One is to put your plants in about two inches of water in your bath or kitchen sink. If there is no light in the room, it is a good idea to leave a light on while you are away. Your plants should be all right for about two weeks.

Another method is to use a clear plastic bag. First water your plant thoroughly and then insert two stakes that are slightly higher than the plant. Next put a plastic bag over the top of the plant and the stakes and fasten it securely to the rim of the pot with a rubber band or string. This method works best with [illegible] because they are not porous. When the soil moisture evaporates it will condense on the plastic and drain back into the pot.

After the plants have been placed in the bags they should be put in a cool place away from direct sunlight. The plastic bag creates an ideal environment for many house plants for about two weeks, but it should not be used for soft plants like fibrous rooted begonias because the excess moisture may cause them to rot.

Many garden centers and other plant outlets sell automatic watering devices which are very useful for people planning a long [illegible].

If you are lucky enough to have a neighbor who will babysit your plants, be sure to give instruction on how much water to give them, especially if the person is inexperienced with plants. It does not take long to kill a plant by overwatering it.

Some of the balloons released at the opening ceremonies of the Commonwealth Games have found their way to this area. Blair Evaniuk and his friend, Brian McFadyen, were lucky enough to find several in a field near the E. Lasiuk home just south of Holden. Several district residents have already attended or will be attending the Games Among them are the Morris Erickson family, the Rod Bazky family, Joan and Ken Stathlebeg, Hattie and Lawrence Bablitz and Grant and Bea Fredericks.

Six thousand people can make a lot of mess! However a good turnout of willing workers on Wednesday night made short work of picking up all the garbage which had accumulated during the Stampede the previous weekend. Children are very ambitious and they know there will be a bonfire and wieners to roast plus other goodies. There may have been a few tummyaches among the younger set, but in less than two hours, the grounds were neat and clean, all ready for next year's stampede.

Isabelle and Marvin Lund are enjoying a visit from granddaughters, Laurie and Debbie Lund of Red Deer

Annie and Rudy Koppel spent the long weekend at Slave Lake where they visited their daughter and son-in-law, Carol and Dale Kneavel

Rosanne and Sonja Bablitz and family attended a Buggs family reunion at Wabamun on the weekend.

Visiting Mary and Ernie Mastermaster last week were two young men from England. Ian Cutler and Richard Youngman are holidaying in Canada.

United Farmers of Alberta - owned by the farmers of this province - can save you money in many ways Take the petroleum division

First on your mind is, of course, quality UFA agents provide top quality petroleum products reflecting the latest technological advances Rigid tests ensure that these products meet or exceed manufacturers specifications

And these agents are not high-pressure strangers They are independent businessmen in your community with a knowledge of you and your needs the ability to help you plan intelligently for the future and the capacity to make available to you an information service which will keep you advised of new developments in your industry

Then there's costs Despite rigid quality control UFA offers its products at competitive prices

Further, UFA is a co-operative That means that, by becoming a member, you not only have a voice in how the association runs its business, but you also share in its profits by way of patronage dividends, based on the amount of business you do with UFA. These dividends are not token. This year alone UFA distributed $2,894,000 in patronage dividends to the farmers of Alberta.

That's why most Alberta farmers belong to UFA. If you're not one of them, contact your local agent.

Enumeration to start Tuesday

Enumeration for the provincial election which is expected this fall or next spring begins on Tuesday, August 15 throughout the province.

CANADIANS ONLY

To be included on the provincial voters' list, a person must be a Canadian citizen and an Alberta resident for six months prior to October 1, 1978. The citizenship regulation is a change from the past, when British subjects, resident in Alberta, who had not yet obtained Canadian citizenship, were also eligible to vote. The change means that many voters in previous elections will now be ineligible without clarification of their citizenship.

Mr Wark urges those who are uncertain of their status to contact the Court of Canadian Citizenship in Edmonton or Calgary.

Provincial electors must have reached 18 years of age by October 1, 1978, and must reside in the electoral division and polling subdivision in which they are enumerated.

Because of August vacations, it is possible that some Albertans will be missed in the enumeration. Anyone not enumerated by September 30 is urged to contact the returning officer in his particular polling division.

While no election is required in Alberta for a year and a half, it is widely thought that Premier Lougheed will base his election call on the action taken by Prime Minister Trudeau.

If Mr Trudeau were to call a federal election this fall, Mr Lougheed would in all probability wait until next Spring to call a provincial election. On the other hand, if the Prime Minister elects to wait until next year, Mr Lougheed would in all likelihood move this Fall. A provincial campaign can be conducted, with enumeration out of the way ahead of time, within thirty days, while a federal election, requiring enumeration after the election call, takes a minimum 50 days.

amily reunion held

Saturday afternoon, approximately 200 members of the Dave Regehr, Peter Regehr, Jake Regehr, John Baergen and John Schmidt families, came from Washington, Wisconsin, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and B.C., and various points in Alberta to become re-acquainted and acquainted.

Saturday afternoon was spent visiting and sharing a picnic dinner.

Each participating family contributed to the evening program which included various skits and singing.

Later in the evening, a sing-song was enjoyed by all around a campfire on the open ground.

Sunday morning, the griddles were heated bright and early and everyone enjoyed a pancake and sausage breakfast.

A church service was held which was unusual in that each family did some reminiscing. Dave Regehr gave a most interesting history of the grandparents which everyone greatly enjoyed, followed by a little bit of family history one from a member of each family. Rudy Regehr gave a very fitting sermon.

The singing for the service was led by Neil Baergen and the brass orchestra was conducted by Hilda Baergen. Everyone then enjoyed a potluck dinner.

An afternoon of sports was enjoyed by the young.

Dam Break in Georgia

by K. Neil Foster with Eric Hall

Ron Ginther placed his little girl on the roof and the angry water just washed her away. Awful anguish ripped at him, but there was nothing he could do.

This book is a record of a disaster with a difference. It catapults the small north Georgia city of Toccoa into the awareness of the world. It tells what happened to a college community when 176 million gallons of water smashed through the campus in the early hours of November 6, 1977

Former area woman serves B.C. mission

Prince George — When most people think of mission work, their mind wanders to the jungles of South America, the heat of Africa or some exotic setting.

Responding to the need for volunteers for our home missions in Canada, Miss Donas Bahry of Vermilion has joined Bishop Fergus O'Grady's Frontier Apostolate here.

The Frontier Apostolate is a lay volunteer program working in the Diocese of Prince George. From throughout the world dedicated Catholics have come to join in the work of the church here.

They receive room, board, medical coverage and a stipend in return for the opportunity to live in Christian community with other volunteers and to offer their services to help others and share the gifts of their faith.

After completing shcool at St. Joseph's in Vermilion, Donna moved to Edmonton to live and work. But a "call to serve" led her to a two-year commitment to the Frontier Apostolate.

Donna now shares a small home with volunteers at Sacred Heart Parish in Prince George.

Her time "on the job" is divided between the positions of secretary at the parish elementary school and assistant in the Religious Education office of the parish. Her pleasant smile and good humor add to the efficient and caring functioning of both these areas.

In her "free time," Donna has been involved in the parish choir and a mobile soup kitchen.

Reflecting on her time as a Frontier Apostle Donna says: "I came to serve and to give of myself and my skills."

"I see now how much I have learned and grown through this experience and the people I have met here."

Donna Bahry lived at Bruce and at Ryley when she was younger.

Recreation Report

by Colleen Walker
Program Supervisor

COMMONWEALTH GAMES
This Sunday 60 senior citizens of our County attended the Commonwealth Games. We left early Sunday morning stopping in at the Sanderosa Restaurant for lunch. Half of our group attended the athletic section at the new stadium. We saw several foot races, ball toss, shotput and the board jump. Our group was joined by the Queen, Prince Phillip, Pierre Trudeau to watch the athletics.

The other half of the gang enjoyed the gymnastics at the Coliseum where they saw several medallions presented.

We took the light rail transit from Belvedere to the activities, a first time experience for most of the group. Everyone seemed to enjoy this different form of transportation except unfortunately, we lost one of our group We fretted and fretted about our "missing person" day (Wednesday).

TENNIS—TOFIELD
What happened to you people who were interested in playing tennis? There were 30 people signed up for lessons, but when it came to getting down money, we didn't get enough registrations to make up one class. You people sure make it difficult to get instructors!

SENIOR CITIZENS — FALL TRIP
The fall trip for senior citizens is planned for September 11-14 to Calgary, Waterton Park and Lethbridge. We will be chartering a Greyhound bus for 45 people for the trip. Again, registrations must be mailed in.

Be watching for further information on the trip.

AQUATIC LEADERS WORKSHOP
The Red Cross water safety service will be sponsoring an aquatic leadership workshop in Red Deer, October 21. Sessions will be on public relations, promotion, publicity, and leadership education. Fee is $10.00 which includes a banquet and guest speaker.

SOCCER CLINIC FOR KIDS
A beginners soccer clinic will be held in Vermilion, August 19 and 20, for children aged 8-14 years. Let us know if you are interested and perhaps we'll get enough that we can run one car up to Vermilion.

Is Blanching Necessary?

I've had several inquiries concerning the importance of blanching vegetables for freezing. Blanching is essential for ALL vegetables. This scalding retards the action of enzymes which cause off-flavors and changes in color and toughening.

Blanching time varies with the type of vegetables, size of pieces, and degree of maturity. Blanch about 1 lb. at a time in at least 1 gallon of water. Immerse the vegetables into vigorously boiling water, place cover on kettle, and immediately start counting the blanching time.

It is important to chill blanched vegetables, preferably for the same length of time as they were blanched. This stops any further cooking of them and will help to hold a better color and texture.

Microwave Blanching

If you have a microwave oven, you might want to try it for blanching vegetables. (Canning should not be done in the microwave because the heat is not high enough). Using the microwave is not a great deal faster than the conventional method, except there is no waiting for kettles of water to boil, and your kitchen stays cool.

To blanch, wash, peel, slice or dice the vegetables as you normally would. Use a 2-quart casserole dish and add water as directed below. Cover the casserole and use the high power setting on the oven. The vegetables should be brightly colored when they are finished. Salt should not be added during blanching.

Blanch as Follows:

1 lb. Asparagus (1-2" pieces) with 1/4 c. water for 2 1/2-3 1/2 minutes.

Beans with 1/3 c. water for 3 1/2-5 1/2 minutes.

Broccoli with 1/2 c. Water for 3-5 minutes.

Carrots-sliced with 1/4 c. water for 3 1/2-5 1/2 minutes.

Cauliflower with 1/3 c. water for 3-5 minutes.

Peas with 1/4 c. water for 3-4 minutes.

Spinach with no water for 3-4 minutes.

Squash with 1/4 c. water for 2 1/2-4 minutes.

Turnip with 1/4 c. water for 2 1/2-4 minutes.

Plunge them immediately into ice water and cool thoroughly. Drain and package for the freezer.
